Funeral Services Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Impressive funeral services were planned today for William Howard Taft as evidences poured in of nation-wide mourning for the former President and chief justice.

Mr. Taft's body will lie in state in the rotunda of the capitol for three hours on Tuesday morning. The funeral service will take place at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at All Souls' Unitarian church, followed by burial at Arlington National cemetery.

Hundreds of telegrams received today by Mrs. Taft reflected the sorrow of the friends of the man whose death yesterday closed a life of distinguished public service. There were messages of sympathy from foreign countries as well as from all parts of the United States.

Public to View Body.

Plans, as far as completed tonight, contemplate that the body will be taken at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning from the Wyoming avenue home to the capitol, accompanied by a military escort. The public will have an opportunity to view it as it lies in state under the capitol dome. Just as was the case when President Harding's body lay in state, it is expected that thousands of persons will pass by to pay their respects.

A guard of honor at the capitol will consist of 20 noncommissioned officers, 10 from the army and 5 each from the navy and marine corps.

At soon the body will be taken with military escort to the All Souls Unitarian church, where Mr. Taft was a worshiper. The services at the church will be attended by President Hoover, cabinet members, justices of the Supreme court, and others of prominence in official and private life.

Justices to Be Pallbearers.

The Rev. Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, Mr. Taft's pastor, will officiate at the services both at the church and at the grave. Honorary pallbearers will be the eight justices of the Supreme court. The body bearers will be eight noncommissioned officers, four from the army and two each from the navy and marine corps.

From the church the body will be taken without a military escort to the Arlington cemetery, across the Potomac in Virginia. At the entrance to the cemetery it will be met by a military escort, and full military honors will be accorded at the grave.

Burial in Oak Grove.

Interment will take place in an oak grove on a slope in the northeastern part of the cemetery. This part of the cemetery is considered one of its most beautiful spots and has been reserved for distinguished citizens. Nearby is buried Robert T. Lincoln, who served as secretary of war in the Garfield and Arthur cabinets. Also close at hand is a plot reserved for Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the supreme court, a civil war veteran, who celebrated his 89th birthday yesterday.

The Taft grave will have a conspicuous position near the proposed plaza, which will be near the end of the bridge now under construction connecting the Lincoln memorial with Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Taft will be the first President to be buried at Arlington. The home where he died is within two blocks of the residence where Woodrow Wilson, his successor in the White House and the only President buried within the city of Washington, passed away. Mrs. Wilson was one of the callers at the Taft home this afternoon.

Salutes Will Be Fired.

The military forces of the nation, of which Mr. Taft was commander in chief as President, will pay honor to his memory tomorrow. Salutes which customarily are fired by forts and army posts on the day of receipt of the news of the death of a former President were deferred until tomorrow, because of this being Sunday. Tomorrow morning at every post of United States troops there will be 13 guns at reveille, one each half hour during the day and 48 at retreat at sundown.

As a mark of respect to Mr. Taft's memory both houses of congress are expected to adjourn tomorrow without transacting any business and neither house will be in session on Tuesday. Committees to represent the senate and house at the funeral will be appointed tomorrow by Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth.

GUNMEN KILL IN RAID TO GET CITY RECORDS

Books Also Sought by Prosecutor.

Last Thursday two assistant state's attorneys applied to Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court for the pay roll and time sheet records of the city's department of public works, headed by Commissioner Richard W. Wolfe. It was announced that State's Attorney Swanson was about to resume his investigation of city hall pay rolls, department by department, in a search for evidence of graft and pay roll padding.

Early yesterday morning Thomas Coughlin, 62 years old, 2133 Grenshaw street, a night watchman, was shot and fatally wounded while protecting some of the records sought by the state's attorney against a hoodlum raid. Two gunmen who entered a garage at 1309 West Harrison street, where the records were stored, and demanded the papers at pistol point, shot the watchman when they thought he was about to frustrate their plans. Coughlin died yesterday afternoon at the Mother Cabrini hospital.

Links Murder and Inquiry.

Last night Assistant State's Attorney Harold M. Keele said he believed he had established a link between the murder of Coughlin and the pay roll investigation launched by the state's attorney's office. Three detectives were placed on guard at the garage after a second mysterious effort to obtain possession of the records had been made following the shooting of Coughlin. The detectives were ordered to let no one have the documents.

The garage where the shooting occurred is listed under the name of Charles E. Patterson, 5305 Quincy street, whose name has often appeared in city hall voucher lists as a renter of trucks to the city. Patterson's garage had been leased to the city and fifteen trucks used by the city were kept there, it was learned.

Prosecutor Starts Inquiry.

When Assistant State's Attorney Keele was notified of the shooting of Coughlin and of the subsequent effort to get possession of the records he started an investigation that led to the placing of the guard at the garage and an inspection of the records. Last night Keele recalled the events that had preceded the murder.

"We first attempted to get the records of the public works department last Thursday, when we went into Judge Normoyle's court for a subpœna duces tecum," the prosecutor said. "Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen, representing the city, and Commissioner Wolfe promised to produce the records. Mr. Breen said no subpœna of any kind was necessary.

Tells of Breen's Promise.

"'If the state's attorney's office wants to see the records,' Mr. Breen assured the court, 'we will be glad to produce them and show them to the prosecutors.'

"Judge Normoyle then continued our request for the subpœna until next Tuesday, and we left it that way, taking Mr. Breen at his word. That afternoon we went to the city hall to get the records. They stalled us off; everybody was 'out' all the time. In the end we failed to get the papers we wanted.

Hear About Garage Records.

"On Saturday we discovered that certain valuable records were stored in the garage on West Harrison street. We planned then to obtain them on Monday. The gangsters who killed Coughlin tried to beat us to it.

"The two men, armed with pistols, walked into the garage and pushed their guns into Coughlin's ribs. This is the story as he told it before he died:

"They said, 'Stick 'em up!' But they immediately added that it was no ordinary stickup. 'We're not after money,' they said to Coughlin, 'we're after records.' Then one menaced Coughlin with his revolver while the other attacked a desk with a crowbar.

"They must have had the impression the records were in the desk. As a matter of fact they were in a safe and a filing cabinet in the garage and still are. About the time they got the safe open there was a honking of au-

DETAINED IN JAIL, SO CHANGES MIND ON WEDDING PLAN

Mrs. Nadine Wirth Gorman, 26 years old, 4237 North Hermitage avenue, daughter of a Milwaukee banker, who was arrested on Saturday on a charge of passing a worthless check, decided yesterday that she wouldn't keep an appointment to be married. When she saw she would not be released, she declared that her sweetheart, who she said was Edward Mahoney, son of E. J. Mahoney, 4216 North Harding avenue, a paving contractor, had given her three checks to pass, all of which were worthless.

Mrs. Gorman said she was to be married to Mahoney by Probate Judge John Karel of Milwaukee at the Sherman hotel at 2 p. m., and that Judge Karel was to give her $3,500 of a $20,000 fund which he held in trust for her. Judge Karel was found at the Sherman, but said he knew nothing of the marriage or the trust fund, or any of the woman's affairs.

Police started a search for Mahoney to question him about the checks which Mrs. Gorman said he had given her. Previously, Mrs. Gorman had accused Donald Fergus, 817 Lakeside avenue, of giving her a $15 check. Fergus was arrested when he appeared to keep an appointment with Mrs. Gorman and Mrs. Lucille La Voy, 1507 Arthur avenue, who was arrested with her at her apartment.

Crowds Hail Byrd as Polar Flight Leader

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, March 10 (Monday).—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and members of his antarctic expedition arrived here this afternoon aboard the barque City of New York after spending more than a year on the ice barrier of Ross sea.

Virtually the entire population of this city of 85,000 acclaimed Byrd as the first man to fly over both the north and south poles and the only man who has accomplished the latter feat, performed on this last expedition.

Gets Great Welcome.

The barque City of New York and the steamer Eleanor Bolling were met at the harbor entrance by launches carrying city and government officials, who greeted the explorer and welcomed him back to civilization.

Bands played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Conquering Hero" as the two ships, with their escort, made their way up the harbor escorted by tugs, launches, ferryboats, and steamers, while thousands of persons on the headlands, jetties, and wharves cheered.

A representative of the New Zealand government in a brief address lauded Admiral Byrd for his accomplishment of conquering both poles by air.

Byrd Gives Statement.

Admiral Byrd in an interview said that the expedition had been fortunate in many ways and "without that good fortune we would never have accomplished what we did. All that we set out to do has been done."

Six other members of the Byrd expedition also arrived here early today by motor from Invercargill, having landed at Stewart island Saturday from the whaler Larsen.

They commented on the good fortune that attended the expedition. None had been left behind in an icy grave, and none seriously injured.

The expedition will remain here for ten days and then return to New York via the Panama canal.

Byrd on Air Tomorrow.

Schenectady, N. Y., March 9.—[Special.]—The voice of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will be heard by radio listeners tuned to WGY Tuesday morning, March 11, at 7:30 o'clock. Then the Schenectady station will rebroadcast a conversation between that explorer and Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times. Ochs in Schenectady and Admiral Byrd in Dunedin, N. Z., will chat over 10,000 miles of space via short waves as though separated by only a few miles.

PURDUE TACKLE, SEEKING ROOM, IS SHOT IN HIP

Herbert Galletch, 23 years old, 35 North Dover street, La Grange, a tackle on the Purdue university football squad last year, was shot in the hip early this morning when he and a companion tried to force their way into a rooming house at 3565 Ogden avenue. His companion, Thomas Klein, 2149 South Lawndale avenue, was arrested and taken to the Lawndale police station, while Galletch was taken to the Bridewell hospital. According to the police, both youths had been drinking.

Klein said they were on their way to La Grange and decided to find a room for the night. They went to the home of Joseph Terrese at the Ogden avenue address and asked for a room. Mrs. Terrese told them she had none vacant, and then, according to Mrs. Terrese, they became abusive and broke the glass out of the door.

Terrese, hearing the commotion, sprang from bed and seized his pistol. Running to the door, he saw the youths and, believing his wife was being held up, fired at them. Galletch fell. Terrese held the pair covered with his gun until the police arrived.

BANDIT ROUTED BY WOMAN, DOG AND HOT COFFEE

A youthful bandit intruded upon Mrs. Ethel Evans, 35 years old, as she was lunching in the rear of her drug store at 1100 Belmont avenue last night. Mrs. Evans told him to pocket his pistol or she would scream. Before he could decide what course to take, Mrs. Evans' pet, a Boston bulldog, attacked the intruder at the seat of his trousers.

Mrs. Evans speeded his departure by drenching his head with a pot of hot coffee. He outdistanced her and the dog in a chase east in Belmont avenue and got away in the darkness of an alley. An internal revenue agent, W. C. Naunes, who had witnessed the chase, recognized the fugitive and traced him to his home at 1225 Melrose street. Arrested there by Sergt. Roy Koutre and his squad, the youth identified himself as Joseph Howland, 18 years old, and confessed the robbery.

Dies from Poison Taken When Spurned by Wife

Donald Walk, 31 years old, 2639 North Spaulding avenue, died yesterday in the Belmont hospital of poison which he swallowed on Feb. 25, after his estranged wife, Mrs. Valerie Walk, 3235 Warren avenue, had refused to live with him.

Three States to Spend Billion on Public Jobs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Three states—New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio—are to spend more than a billion dollars this year for construction and maintenance of state, county, and municipal public works, according to figures assembled by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont. Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania has just reported to Secretary Lamont that the total for that state is estimated at $305,988,113. The total for New York state is $475,275,442, while that for Ohio is $223,225,000.

"On the basis of complete reports from more than two-thirds of the states covering all types of public construction and maintenance to be carried out in 1930, together with reports from federal departments and commissions and public utility companies," said Secretary Lamont, "prompt decisive action in speeding up this year's $7,000,000,000 program of construction work of these types seems well established."

Michigan Has Big Program.

Other states for which estimates of prospective public construction work have just been received by Secretary Lamont include Michigan, for which a program for $93,000,000 [not including certain county items] was reported by Gov. Fred W. Green; Iowa, $70,000,000, reported by Gov. John Hammill; Kentucky, $57,670,000, reported by Gov. Flem D. Sampson; Maryland, $48,860,000, reported by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie; Rhode Island, $20,000,000, reported by Gov. Norman S. Case; Utah, $8,800,000, reported by Gov. George H. Dern, and Nevada, $3,250,000, reported by Gov. Fred B. Balzar.

The electric, gas, and street railway companies have reported that their total expenditures for new construction made this year, or to be made by March 31, will aggregate $305,000,000, 12 per cent higher than corresponding expenditures during the first quarter of 1929.

Utilities Are Spending.

The total estimated expenditures for construction and maintenance to be made by the public utility group, which also includes railway and telephone and telegraph companies, amounts to more than $3,500,000,000.

Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the new public construction division of the department of commerce, has been advised that the governors and the officials under them are acting vigorously to advance the construction program. Awarding of contracts for public projects is being speeded up through the country so as to get work under way at the earliest possible date, particularly in connection with highway work, in order that there may be no avoidable delay in pushing operations as soon as weather conditions permit.

Bids Are Opened.

On the subject of federal activity the records of the public construction division show that the supervising architect's office of the treasury department, which has charge of the general construction program and other federal buildings throughout the country, is rapidly putting work on the market. Ten of the larger projects, for which bids are to be opened in March, have a total estimated cost of more than $7,000,000. During the last two months plans have been approved for more than 200 alteration and repair jobs throughout the country, with an average cost of $1,500. The awards for these being made promptly after the plans are approved.

The army post housing program is being prosecuted more vigorously than at any time in the past. Flood control and river and harbor work carried on by the engineer corps of the war department has been unusually active throughout the winter months. Nevertheless, bids during March are being asked for in an amount larger than in the preceding months.

RED-HOT IRONS FORCE BROKER TO PAY $4,000

His Ex-Wife Seized in Extortion Plot.

The dramatic story of a kidnaping in which a band of criminals abducted a wealthy insurance broker and threatened to torture him with red-hot irons until he had paid them a ransom of $4,000 was revealed last night at the state's attorney's office, where eleven men and two women, seized as suspected members of the gang, were paraded before the victim, Theodore Kopelman of 548 Surf street.

As the prisoners filed past him Kopelman made a startled exclamation and pointed to one of the women. She was his divorced wife. Because of her knowledge of his affairs, the police believe, the torture gang selected Kopelman as one of the victims of a series of kidnapings which is reported to have netted the abductors between $100,000 and $250,000 in the last year.

Five Ringleaders Trapped.

As the captives were led back to their cells Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller announced that he would ask the grand jury to indict them today. Kidnaping for ransom carries a death penalty in Illinois.

Five of the prisoners, apparently the ringleaders in the alleged ransom plot, were captured on Saturday afternoon in a trap laid by Chief Investigator Patrick Roche of the state's attorney's office. They are Seymour Pellar, 27 years old, 4248 West 14th street; Irving Sandler, 25, of 2847 Washington boulevard; Charles (Chick) Hadesmen, 34, of 3417 Roosevelt road, a well known gangster; Norman Resnick, 25, of 847 Sheridan road; and Sam Gold, 25, of 1435 Kedvale avenue. Later the other men and the two women were arrested. Kopelman identified Pellar and Sandler as the actual abductors.

Kopelman Tells of Kidnaping.

Kopelman's story to Assistant State's Attorney Mueller in substance was as follows:

On the morning of Friday, Feb. 28, he was motoring alone at St. James place and Clark street when a canary colored automobile crowded his car to the curb. Pellar jumped from the other machine to the running board of Kopelman's machine and thrust a pistol toward the insurance broker.

He forced Kopelman to get out of his own automobile and enter the yellow car. There goggles stuffed with cotton were put on Kopelman. Pellar took the wheel and they started north. Pellar kept warning Kopelman not to make any outcry or signal and not to try to see where they were going. Another automobile driven by Sandler followed Pellar's car and a third machine brought up the rear.

Taken to Lake Resort.

They drove northwest and up through Libertyville and Antioch to a cottage on Camp lake, which is 20 miles north of Antioch and just over the Wisconsin border near Trevor, Wis. This cottage, the police say, is owned by Joseph Burke, secretary-treasurer of the Barber Porters' union, who is now sought for questioning.

In the cottage Pellar and Sandler were masked, and for a time they kept both mask and goggles on Kopelman. The insurance man talked freely with his captors, however, and after a while they apparently became convinced they could trust him, so they took off their own masks and permitted him to remove his mask and the goggles from his eyes. Then the three played cards.

Other masked men appeared at the cottage that day, and Kopelman was told that the gang would free him if he paid a ransom of $25,000. When he protested that he could not raise that amount the kidnapers told him they knew all about his business and about the amount of his life insurance. They said they knew the insurance company would pay a large sum rather than have him killed.

Boasts of Gang's Profits.

Pellar told Kopelman that he made $75,000 a year from the business of kidnaping persons for ransom and advised him to make the payment demanded because the gang was dangerous and would not hesitate to kill.

After some questioning Pellar and Sandler obtained from their prisoner the name of Attorney Louis Victor as one of the friends of the insurance broker who could be trusted.

A few minutes later Kopelman was horrified to see his captors put two pokers into a stove in the cottage. When the bars of iron were red hot at the ends Pellar and Sandler with drew them from the coals and thrust them close to his face.

"Now," they said, "write a letter to Attorney Victor and tell him to give us $5,000 or we'll put your damned eyes out."

Kopelman gave in and wrote the letter. That was the night of Feb. 28, and on the next day, Saturday, Pellar and Sandler presented the letter to Victor in his Chicago office. The attorney said he could not raise the whole $5,000 at once, but he scraped together $4,000 and gave it to the men.

Sandler and Pellar returned to the Camp lake cottage and that afternoon they took Kopelman to the home of Mike Rosenberg, 24 years old, at 1433 South Kenneth avenue, Chicago. There the insurance man wrote a check for $1,000 to complete his $5,000 ransom, and on the next day, Sunday, March 2, he was released by the kidnapers.

His first action was to telephone to the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank at Lawrence avenue and Broadway, on which the check was drawn. When two men appeared at the bank and asked a teller to cash the check they were referred to the cashier, who was under orders to request them to identify themselves. At this they left the bank without the money.

Seized in Dress Shop.

Pellar and Sandler then communicated with Kopelman, who told them to go to the gown shop of his sister, Miss Gertrude Kopelman, at 328 North Michigan avenue, where the check would be honored. This appointment was made for last Saturday afternoon.

Meanwhile, however, Kopelman had told his story to a representative of the Association of Commerce committee on prevention and punishment of crime and Attorney Walter Walker of the Employers' association was called in. Walker notified Chief Investigator Roche, who detailed Policemen John Greer, Michael Casey, Louis Capparelli, and John Nihill of the state's attorney's staff to go to the gown shop.

They concealed themselves in the store, and when Pellar walked in with the check he was arrested. Hastening outside, the policemen captured Sandler, Hadesman, Reznick, and Gold as they tried to speed away in an automobile.

Finds His Ex-Wife in Gang.

At the detective bureau Miss Kopelman identified Pellar as the man who had entered the store and Attorney Victor recognized both Pellar and Sandler as the two men to whom he had paid the $4,000.

The policemen who had made the capture went on to the homes of their prisoners. At the address given by Reznick they found the two women, who gave their names as Myrtle Gorman and Gertrude Willis, and took them into custody. They learned that the Gorman woman was posing as the wife of Reznick and the other woman was regarded as the wife of Sandler.

"Miss Gorman" was the woman identified by Kopelman as his former wife last night at the detective bureau. He had known her as Mrs. Myrtle Christine Larsen Thorn when he married her, he said. He was divorced from her on March 21, 1929. A settlement of $25,000 was given to her then, Kopelman said.

The police recognized "Miss Gorman" as the widow of Pete Gusenberg, gangster, who was slain in the Valentine day massacre.

Six Others Are Arrested.

After the women were arrested police took into custody six other men. They are Mike Rosenberg, Louis Clements, David Cohen, William Weisbaum, Herman Rosenberg, and Jack Lawrence. Mike Rosenberg confessed last night that Kopelman was kept in his home on the night of March 1, but said he did not know the reason. Pellar is his brother-in-law, he said, and he had given him permission to use the place.

The automobile used to kidnap Kopelman was licensed under the Gorman woman's name, but Investigator Roche said he understood it was owned by Burke, the owner of the Camp lake cottage, who was shot and wounded some years ago by former Police Chief Michael Hughes.

Seek Indictment of Woman.

According to Prosecutor Mueller the chain of evidence is complete as to the major defendants, including the former Mrs. Kopelman, who he said, will most assuredly be indicted and tried and for whom the death penalty will also be asked. That the kidnaping had been planned for some time and was directed against Kopelman particularly and not against whoever happened to be a likely victim was made certain, Mueller said, by the story of Endon Van Amburgh, 420 Diversey parkway, who is in the advertising business.

"The same gang seized Van Amburgh on the night of Thursday, Feb. 27, the night before Kopelman was kidnaped, as he left the premises at 442½ Surf street," Mueller said. 'They put him in an automobile after warning him not to try to get a look at any of them and when they had him in the car one of the men who looked at him through his fingers said, 'That's not Kopelman,' and thereupon Van Amburgh was released with a warning not to tell what had happened. But he did make a report to the police."

Police Records Found.

Most of the prisoners had police records. Pellar had been placed on probation for one year for theft of an automobile in 1926 and in 1928 a charge of receiving stolen property against him was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Sandler was known as a bomber and was once charged with larceny, but not prosecuted. Hadesman served one sentence in the House of Correction and was later charged with robbery and assault to kill. Resnick was put on probation after being found guilty of larceny. Gold was once accused of rape.

CANADIANS IN ARMS TO PREVENT A BAN ON LIQUOR TRADE IN U. S.

Detroit, Mich., March 9.—[Special.]—Alarmed at the support being given the proposal of W. L. MacKenzie King, premier of Canada, to ban liquor clearances to the United States, several Windsor liquor exporters and their attorneys will leave for Ottawa tomorrow to "pep up" the lobby against the measure.

A week ago the liquor men were confident that the senate would kill the King bill even if it passed the commons. But they have learned through their agents at Ottawa that Premier King has "read the riot act" to his followers in the senate, telling them bluntly that the talked of abolition of the senate may become a reality at the election expected not later than next fall.

Hugh Guthrie, Tory member in the Dominion parliament for South Wellington and former house leader of the Conservatives, has declared for the King bill. He expressed the opinion while attending the Sandwich sitting of the Supreme court of Ontario that the proposal would meet with little opposition in the commons.

Mr. Guthrie said he believed the Canadian government was determined to be relieved of "the stigma of being a party to the business of smuggling liquor into the United States."

YARDS FOLK VIEW OBERTA BODY AT MOTHER'S HOME

Thousands of Curious at Gangster's Bier.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

"Back o' the yards," where he lived his life with the exception of a few brief months, tolled a funeral march last night for John [Dingbat] Oberta, and the tune was the steady tramp of feet. Up the steps into his mother's little bungalow at 5544 South Richmond street, past the sumptuous bier where he lay in state, and through the tiny kitchen trooped the unending stream.

Literal thousands—some friends, perhaps foes, and certainly the morbidly curious—made up the perpetual procession of footsteps that echoed hollowly beyond the door of the room where Mrs. Florence Oberta sat and talked of two topics—grief and bitter resentment. Her face was haggard, her hands quivered a bit, but her eyes were as bright and her voice as even as when she gave testimony at the inquest on Thursday. She has not slept since she learned her husband was dead, she declared last night.

Widow Talks of Stories.

"They call him yellow, now he's dead," she cites the talk that has come back to her, "and they say he put people 'on the spot.' One thing Johnnie Oberta never was in his life was yellow, and if they knew things against him why didn't the police arrest him? He never had a record. He spent more on charity in this neighborhood than any man ever did, and the proof is in that stream of people marching through out there."

Fragrance of flowers filled the rooms of the bungalow. Great floral pieces banked the massive casket where Oberta lies on a soft white shirred satin lining. A gold and black crucifix is set into the upraised lid, a rosary twined through his fingers. Candles flickered at the head of the casket and black bordered mass cards lay in a row beside him. Each wall was hidden behind the closely arranged baskets, wreaths, broken wheels, and great sheaves of flowers.

"There are thirty-five more big pieces down at our shop," Mrs. Oberta says, listlessly. "There wasn't room, and besides they'd wilt, so we're leaving them there a while.

Denied Rites of Church.

She has just been informed that her ambition to step into her husband's place as a candidate for ward committeeman cannot be legally fulfilled. Her intention was to assume the reins and make the race in his stead, but the time for filing has elapsed.

That news was immaterial beside the ultimatum from Catholic church authorities that the rites of the faith in which he was raised would not be available for John Oberta. The information was a blow to the Oberta family, especially to the dead man's mother, who is herself a devoted member of the church. Arrangements that had been made at his parish church, where he was an irregular attendant, were later countermanded. It is understood that not even a blessing will be permitted on the casket.

tomobile horns outside. Coughlin got up and tried to open the door. The hoodlums shot him and ran out.."

Coughlin was taken to the Mother Cabrini hospital and soon afterward Sergt. Edward Balata was placed on guard at the garage at the request of the state's attorney's office. In the afternoon a city policeman, who did not give his name and has not been identified, entered the place and demanded the records in the name of Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe, Prosecutor Keele said.

When Sergt. Balata refused to permit the removal of the papers the policeman telephoned to a person who he said was Commissioner Wolfe and reported the failure of his mission. Balata told Mr. Keele. Balata said the unidentified policeman also called Patterson, but a woman answered the phone and he failed to reach Patterson. The policeman also called up and talked with a man named Sullivan, whom he described as the chief clerk in Commissioner Wolfe's office, Keele was told.

Starts Inspection of Records.

Last night the prosecutor found Patterson and they went to the garage. Keele said that Patterson told him that a man named "Burn," known to Patterson only as "Wolfe's man," had been trying to get in touch with Patterson throughout the day, but that they had not met or held any conversation.

At the request of Keele, Patterson opened the safe which Coughlin's slayers had nearly succeeded in looting and began looking through the records that caused the watchman's death. The prosecutor said he found several canceled checks which had been issued to Patterson by the city and records showing that Patterson had been drawing about $4,000 a month from the city up to Dec. 1.

Filing Cabinet Is Unopened.

After inspecting the documents and books that were in the safe, Keele turned to the locked filing cabinet which stood in the garage office and which he said he understood contained Patterson's personal records. Patterson explained that he did not have the key to the cabinet with him, Keele said, and the prosecutor indicated that he would go over the documents there this morning after the cabinet is unlocked.

Keele said Patterson's records showed that he has been represented in legal matters by Attorneys George E. Gorman and Joseph P. Savage.

The Renaissance in Style

Nineteen-thirty brings the fuller realization of the trend to an entirely distinct mode—a new birth of fashion—the modern adaptation of those gay and joyous styles of the Directoire period or the Moyen age—even Grecian and Egyptian style influences are seen in the motifs expressed by this Renaissance of 1930.

And what an opportunity these new styles provide for creative genius—the supple silhouette—the deep, full decolletage—the short bodice—the definite waistline—the clinging Grecian drape and the flowing lines affected by the maidens of Ancient Rome—all are evidenced in the modern interpretive creations of

FIND GIRL DIED BEFORE TRIP TO RAZED COTTAGE

Science Bares Clews in Murder Mystery.

For five hours yesterday Maj. Calvin Goddard, director of the crime detection laboratory at Northwestern university, sifted the fragmentary clews in the Deep lake murder mystery.

His investigation established three conclusions: First, that the torso found in the ashes of a fire which destroyed a cottage on the shores of Deep lake in northwestern Lake county early Saturday was that of a blonde woman between 25 and 30 years old; second, that her life was taken and her body dismembered elsewhere than at the cottage, and third, that the slayers exercised extraordinary cunning to hide their victim's identity.

Makes Examination of Torso.

Maj. Goddard's first step was to make a thorough examination of the torso, which has lain at a Waukegan mortuary since Saturday morning. Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county had previously performed a postmortem examination.

One bit of hair determined the woman's complexion. A strand of hair, which had been scorched black by the fire, indicated that the victim either wore her head dress long or had an untrimmed bob.

By microscopic examination, one fragment of scorched cloth was revealed as a piece of cotton underwear and another as a portion of a dress of blue taffeta. Further examination of these fabrics, which he plans to make today, may yield a clew as to the manufacturers of the cloth, the major said.

Make X-Ray Examination.

An X-ray examination of the torso and of the cranial fragments recovered yesterday was completed last night by Alex J. Link, Waukegan Roentgenologist. The photographs disclosed two bits of metal, one a pellet about the size of buckshot and the other an anchor shaped device which might be a specimen of dental work.

From the mortuary, Maj. Goddard went to the scene of the fire, the ashes of which had been raked over for two days in a hunt for clews. Between 400 and 500 curiosity seekers were at the scene.

In a heap of ashes the major discovered a fragment of blackened bone, which upon investigation was discovered as the cranial section of a human head. The brain within was intact, indicating that if the woman had been struck on the head the blow was of stunning rather than fatal force.

Former Tenant Visits Scene.

E. W. O'Toole, Chicago advertising executive, of 4829 North Karlov avenue, whose family occupied the cottage last summer until October, visited the scene yesterday. He said the seven keys on a ring and a bottle opener raked up from the ashes were not his property but he identified pieces of a shirt, vest, and trousers as parts of discarded clothing of his brother.

Meanwhile, Chicago police were working on the theory that the mystery of the murder might be unraveled by following trails in gangland. They were seeking the whereabouts of Louise Rolfe, blonde alibi of Machine Gun Jack McGurn when he was questioned last fall in the Moran gang massacre.

The Chicago police had previously considered the possibility that the cottage victim might have been Marion Miller, consort of Frank McErlane, who was reported to have shot him in a spat, or Mrs. Frank Biege, who talked to police last October concerning her husband's activities in gangland. Both these women were brunets, however.

SON OF DOWIE ACCUSES ZION OF HYPOCRISY

More than 1,000 followers of Wilbur Glenn Voliva packed the Independent Mission church at Zion yesterday to hear the Rev. A. J. Gladstone Dowie, Episcopal minister of Newport, Pa., and a son of Alexander Dowie, who founded Zion and the Christian Catholic Apostolic church, which Voliva now heads.

The burden of the Rev. Mr. Dowie's sermon was that the Zionists should return to the old ways and the old religion. Before his death his father had told him he regretted having founded the community of Zion, the Rev. Mr. Dowie declared. He accused Zion of hypocrisy and said that this was sufficient evidence of the elder Dowie's mistake. The Rev. Mr. Dowie has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Jane Dowie, at Bethesda home in Zion and preached last night by request of the Independent Mission congregation.

The second body was recovered at the foot of Fullerton avenue and was that of a man about 40 years old, clad in overalls and a black sweater. It was taken to the morgue at 3616 Broadway.

Sixty-seven names of south side property owners were signed to the petition received by the park board, but Dr. Black pointed out yesterday that the institution had existed on the site since 1895, caring for heart cases among children. He also denied that the sanitarium was privately operated.

U. S. AND BRITAIN TO OFFER FRANCE 'GOOD WILL' PACT

Refuses to Sanction Any Security Treaty.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald, it was learned tonight, have agreed on a counter proposal to the French demand for a treaty of mutual assistance as the price for reducing its navy tonnage requirements.

They not only refuse a security pact, but a consultative pact, and offer France the simple declaration that the signatories of the naval limitation treaty will use their influence for maintenance of the peace of the world.

The first inkling of this agreement between the American and British delegations on the policy to be pursued in dealing with the French demand for political guarantees was given by Mr. MacDonald in a radio speech, broadcast to the English speaking people tonight.

Quotes from Rapidan Statement.

The declaration, which Mr. MacDonald termed a "pledge of good will and pacific intention" is to be patterned on a clause of the joint statement President Hoover and Mr. MacDonald issued in Washington after their conversations on the Rapidan last October. Mr. MacDonald, in his radio address, quoted a paragraph from the joint statement in which the heads of the two nations declared:

"Each of our governments will direct its thoughts and influence towards securing and maintaining the peace of the world."

France will be asked to accept a similar declaration by the signatories of the London treaty, as the utmost measure of security insurance it can obtain from this conference. Mr. MacDonald referred to the mutual assistance treaty France wants as "entangling military alliances" on which, he flatly asserted, "we shall not agree to base any treaty which may result from this conference."

A Pledge of Peace.

He added that "bonds for war are not and cannot be a security for peace." But such a declaration, as it now transpires he and Mr. Stimson have agreed to offer France, "ought to allow the programs to be reduced to a minimum, if we have any confidence in each others signatures," the prime minister said.

In conclusion Mr. MacDonald said:

"A five power agreement will carry us on until 1936 and then the troublesome things which we are now facing will have been settled and whoever will be in our places will have an open road to proceed toward the cherished goal of nations and arms.

"It may not be our happy lot to get as far as some of us would like at this conference. Confidence in peace and in judicial settlement is still a tender plant. We have to get our inheritance of militarists, rivalry and nationalist distrust and fear well behind us, and if we do that, as I believe we are doing, we can, when we put our names to the agreement, lift up our hearts in thankfulness, that, at the very least, we have been able to set the face of the world toward the dawning day of universal peace."

STIMSON LOOSENS UP ON PUBLICITY AT NAVAL PARLEY

LONDON, March 9. — (AP) — The American delegation to the naval conference will enter the eighth week of the negotiations with a complete reversal of its previous policy toward the press.

When Secretary of State Stimson first arrived in London, he met the press daily, as he had done in Washington, but afterward the banterings of the foreign correspondents, and especially the reporters for the London newspapers, caused him to shun the newspaper men.

With the reopening of the conference tomorrow, Mr. Stimson will allow a considerable widening of policy regarding news, and permit delegates a greater latitude than was indicated in his general order nearly a month ago, requesting them not to discuss publicly the American policies. Despite the effort at secrecy full reports of what had gone on became public.

PARIS ISSUES DEFI

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—Foreign Minister Briand of France lunched with Prime Minister MacDonald at Chequers today and delivered almost an ultimatum—but not quite.

M. Briand stated bluntly that France intends to stand by its naval program, totaling 724,000 tons by 1936 and 800,000 tons by 1942, unless it obtains a security pact.

In view of Mr. MacDonald's attitude in declining to go into a discussion on the nature of these guarantees, M. Briand ameliorated his demands with an offer to try and reach some sort of temporary accord covering a five year period to allow the league of nations international disarmament conference to find a permanent definitive solution.

The British prime minister parried M. Briand's attempts to force the conversation on security by continually reverting to figures—the amount of global tonnage and the size of categories, and when the interview ended gave no assurances to the French delegate.

M. Briand put aside diplomatic formalities and spoke frankly, almost bluntly, explaining that the time had come to speed up negotiations and get down to brass tacks.

At the outset the foreign minister pointed out that the French note in December and the Paris government memorandum early in February stated plainly France's absolute requirements and indicated that they might be made relative through elaboration of some agreement regarding security.

He stressed that France's viewpoint on linking up security with naval strength had been consistently ignored. He also complained about the conduct of London's newspapers.

Complains of Press Attack.

"Developments have shown that London was no place to hold such a conference," M. Briand remarked bitterly. "Newspaper articles continually attack every sugestion and proposal we put forth, and unanimously agree that France is to blame in case a treaty is not forthcoming."

M. Briand reminded Mr. MacDonald that the nations represented here possess more than 80 per cent of the warships of the world, and an agreement among them for common action against a wanton aggressor forever bans naval warfare effectively in line with the precepts of the Kellogg peace pact.

The French foreign minister stated that France will not object if Great Britain, the United States, and Japan reach a triparty agreement.

"What difference would that make to us?" he asked.

Afterward M. Briand stated that, despite the lack of progress today, he is still hopeful that a solution may be found and professed belief that in his opinion the United States was swinging around so there is less antipathy by the Americans to a security pact than existed hitherto.

FACE CRISIS TODAY

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—The critical point of the naval conference is coming tomorrow morning when the French foreign minister, Aristide Briand, meets Prime Minister MacDonald and American Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson together, after separate conferences Saturday and today.

It is learned that he will propose to tell them that it is no use continuing the conference in the hope of a limitation of armaments, unless both England and America pledge themselves in a pact of mutual security to place their armies and navies at the disposal of France in future quarrels, if France can prove it has been attacked.

M. Briand is willing, according to a high authority, to scale down France's demand for a 700,000 ton navy by 50 per cent, if such a pact is given him. If not he will stand pat on France's right to build the biggest possible navy.

The British are beginning to observe bitterly that this is done with their money, referring to the immense war debt from which Great Britain forgave France absolutely and the large remission America gave her. In addition to that, the British point out that thousands of British subjects who were induced to invest in French loans during the war and lost four-fifths of their money by devaluation of the franc, are now compelled to pay for a big British navy as a safeguard against the French navy built with this money.

M. Briand motored to Chequers this afternoon and had a long talk with Mr. MacDonald, at which it is learned Mr. MacDonald told him such a pact as he desired would be impossible of agreement by the British people. Mr. Stimson told him the same thing about America yesterday, and both will tell him the same thing tomorrow.

M. Briand, it is declared, then plans to go home, leaving the minor members of the French delegation more or less as watchers, but not totally withdrawn, leaving the way open to return, if he and Premier Andre Tardieu decide to take part in the final settlement in the interest of France.

The intransigeant attitude of France has revived talk of a three-power pact. The questions between Great Britain and America are practically settled, and there is little fear of any hitch in a final settlement with Japan.

No Four-Power Pact.

A four-power pact containing clauses binding the power to support Italy has been mentioned, but was brushed aside at once, even by the Italians, as impractical. What may come out of the situation, if France stays out in the cold, is financial support for the Italian government in building up its armaments from both Great Britain and America—not directly, of course, by the governments, but through private financiers in close touch with government policy.

Whalen Punishes Cop Over Vitale Holdup

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Police Commissioner Grover Whalen announced today that he had found Patrolman Arthur C. Johnson guilty on four of the five counts for which he was tried and had fined him thirty days' pay as a result of the holdup Dec. 8 of the welcome home dinner to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale. Seven men took $3,000 from the guests and relieved Johnson of his service revolver. The weapon was returned within two hours by Magistrate Vitale, who, after a silence of two weeks, explained that another guest had found it on the sidewalk. Johnson was stripped of a first grade detective ranking.

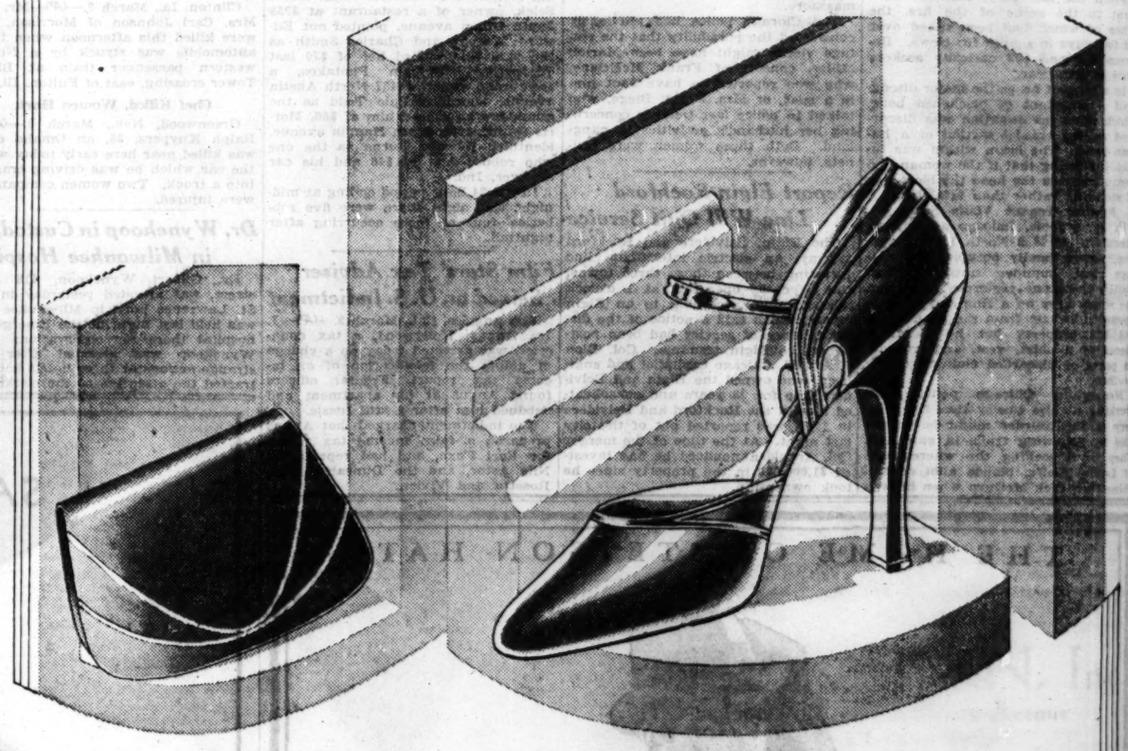
does such wonderful things to your feet



Truly, you'll hardly recognize your foot in this dainty bit of artistry . . . Those curving bands with their eye-deceiving contours and contrasts—why, they'll make even the longer foot look petite and dainty. And the strap. It buckles trimly, giving a clear-cut ankle line. Just the touch that you would like! And the heel? Ah! That's another bit of deception; for it really isn't as tall as it looks. But tall or short, you're going to be delighted with the way it arches your foot and "daintifies" your instep . . . Such a variety of materials in all the colors that fashion says are just the thing for Spring. Think for a moment how this Open Shank Slipper will add to your wardrobe. . . . And after all now—is there a reason why you couldn't come in? Today or tomorrow?

2 BOYS KILLED IN STREETS BY AUTOS; TOLL 171

Former Policeman Dies of Injuries.

Two boys were run over and instantly killed by motorists yesterday, while an infant girl lost her right eye in a collision which resulted in slight injuries for six adults, including her parents.

One victim, Michael Dusiok, 12 years old, 1748 West Cullerton street, was carrying an empty fruit box across the street in front of his home. His vision blocked by the box, he failed to see the car driven by John Marlowski, 20 years old, 2202 Wall street, which ran him down. He died en route to the county hospital.

The second boy, 6 year old Earl Dusk, 1424 Milwaukee avenue, was instantly killed as he dashed from the curb in midblock on Milwaukee avenue near Evergreen street, and was struck by the car of Joseph Koseman, 4584 School street.

Three year old Ruth Montgomery, 931 South Hermitage avenue, lost her right eye and sustained a possible skull fracture when a car driven by Robert Boyd, 30 years old, a boarder at the Montgomery home, swerved head-on into a Checker cab at Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue. Harold Shapiro, 25 years old, 3333 Washington boulevard, suffered a possible brain concussion, while the child's parents, Louis and Ethel Montgomery, and three other adults were slightly hurt. Police said Boyd admitted he had been drinking.

The deaths of the two boys and two others raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 172. The victims:

George McGuinigan, 25 years old, 1347 Norwood avenue. Killed when he drove an automobile through the stop lights at Sheridan road and Morse avenue and collided with a machine driven by Andrew H. Steele, 303 St. John's avenue, Highland Park.

Charles Miller, 53 years old, 2030 South Union avenue a retired policeman. Died yesterday at the University hospital of pneumonia following an automobile accident on Feb. 25. Miller was struck by a "hit and run" autoist at 20th and Halsted streets, suffering four fractured ribs, and pneumonia developed. Miller was a policeman 23 years until he retired three years ago.

WHERE JAPAN OPPOSES CHINA

China's plan for a new $6,500,000 deep water harbor at Hulutao on the Gulf of Liaotung is being opposed by Japan as it will seriously compete with Dairen, on which she has expended huge sums, in carrying wheat from the fertile Nonni valley.

Start U. S. Fund for Jews of East Europe, Palestine

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—A nation-wide campaign to raise $6,000,000 "for relief and reconstruction in eastern Europe, and for the upbuilding of Palestine" was started here today by the national conference of the allied Jewish campaign. Unified action by Jews of America in aiding Jews in eastern Europe and Russia and upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish homeland are sought. A letter from President Hoover was read, characterizing the work as "a large contribution to the cause of good will between peoples."

JAPAN OPPOSES CHINA IN STEAM SHOVEL BATTLE

Frowns at Digging of New Harbor, Rival to Dairen.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 9.—The battle in Manchuria continues! With her troubles with soviet Russia not yet settled, the Chinese now have picked a fresh fight with another near neighbor, Japan, by signing a contract with a Dutch concern, the Netherlands Harbor Works company, for the development of a deep water harbor at Hulutao at an estimated cost of $6,500,000.

Hulutao is located at the northern point of the Gulf of Chihli [also known as the Gulf of Peichihli or Gulf of Liaotung]. The place is controlled entirely by the Chinese, which is the reason the Japanese are looking askance at the enterprise, because a well developed port at Hulutao will be certain to detract from the economic importance of Dairen, upon which the Japanese have expended vast sums.

The Chinese claim that they are going ahead with the development and while the battle is to be fought with steam shovels, it is likely to be no less serious than the one which the Chinese fought with rifles and machine guns with soviet Russia last year.

British Also Protest.

Not many days had elapsed following the signing of the contract with the Dutch company before protests were filed with the Nationalist government by both Britain and Japan. The British protest was due to the announced intentions of the Chinese to use the revenues of the Peking-Mukden railroad for the purpose of paying for the Hulutao port development. The British have an outstanding loan of about $7,000,000 against the railroad, hence object to any other use of its revenues until they are paid. The British objection probably will be adjusted.

The Japanese protest, however, is an entirely different matter, because the Japanese claim that development of the port of Hulutao, combined with a system of Chinese constructed railroads running northward into the Manchurian hinterland, constitutes an infringement of their concession for the operation of the South Manchuria railroad. What the Chinese have done in the last few years is construct a new railroad system of several hundred miles in length which runs in a zigzag fashion paralleling the Japanese railroad.

The new road taps the Russian constructed and now soviet controlled Chinese Eastern railroad at Tsitsihar, northward of Harbin, and ultimately will be extended directly through the Nonni river valley of North Manchuria directly to Blagovyeschchensk, the Russian town on the Amur river in Siberia. All the Chinese now need is a port; hence the plan to develop Hulutao, and along with the plans for port development there are other plans for the construction of extensive grain elevators to handle the surplus wheat of the Nonni river valley.

Potential Wheat Center.

Although the Nonni river valley is located far inland, it already has attracted the attention of officials of the United States department of agriculture, as well as officials of western Canada, due to the fact that the Nonni valley, when developed, is expected to become one of the leading wheat producing areas of the world. Although sparsely populated, the Nonni valley already produces a surplus of wheat above the needs of Manchuria's 30,000,000 population.

Last year an official of a Chicago agricultural machinery firm visited the area and arranged to coöperate with Gen. Wan Fu-lin, governor of Heilungkiang province, in the development of an experimental farm that would utilize modern American agricultural machinery. The machinery now used by the Chinese farmers is most primitive.

WOMEN CALLED TO PATCH CASE OF HOUSE DRYS

Leaders of Organizations Will Testify.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Ten feminine prohibition leaders were announced today as dry witnesses before the house judiciary committee when it resumes its hearings next Wednesday on measures to repeal or modify the 18th amendment.

Apparently alarmed by the appearance of eight well known women produced as witnesses for the wets, a demonstration intended to indicate a swing of feminine sentiment toward modification the organizations supporting the 18th amendment have called upon the women's national committee for law enforcement to supply a full day of counter testimony.

Club Leaders to Testify.

The dry feminine witnesses announced for Wednesday by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the committee, include the following: Mrs. John F. Sippel, president, and Mrs. Clarence Fraim, legislative chairman of the General Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. F. I. Johnson, president of the Federation of Foreign Mission Boards of North America; Mrs. Orrin Judd, president of the Council of Women for Home Missions; Mrs. Jesse Nicholson, president of the Women's National Democratic League for Law Enforcement; Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, president of the New York state committee for law enforcement; Mrs. William Tilton, legislative chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and H. Edward Dreier, president of the New York Woman's City club.

The list also includes feminine notables in education, politics and literature, among them Bertha K. Landes, former mayor of Seattle, Wash.; Mary Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college; Mrs. Clarence Marshall Busch, president of the National League of American Penwomen; and the heads of local civic and political clubs in several eastern cities.

Drys' Contention Shaken.

It long has been the boast of the drys that women voters played a deciding part in putting prohibition into the constitution and that the women of the nation still are overwhelmingly dry. The manifestation of feminine wet sentiment at the congressional hearings, however, did a great deal to shake that traditional belief.

Such women as Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, former Republican committee woman of New York; Mrs. David Holmes Martin of Brooklyn; Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Lorraine Catlin Brower of Chicago, presented wet arguments as effective as those of the male witnesses.

Further, these women spoke for growing organizations aligned against prohibition such as the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, represented by Mrs. Sabin, who declared her group is "growing at the rate of 3,000 members a week." In days past, with the W. C. T. U. and women's church groups at the height of their strength, such a thing as a woman's organization against the prohibition law was unknown.

Real Temperance Desired.

But what seemingly has perturbed the drys more than the caliber of feminine witnesses produced by the wets was the trend of their testimony.

Almost without exception the wet women declared themselves in favor of temperance and against the old saloon. But, they argued, under prohibition the temperance movement has been scrapped and poison liquor speakeasies have replaced the saloon. Further, they said, the home has become a home brew distillery, while children in their teens are being debauched by hip flask parties never heard of before prohibition. From society matrons to high school girls, women are drinking as never before, they asserted.

No announcement of the dry program beyond Wednesday has been made. The drys, however, will hold the stage again on Thursday and probably two or three more days the following week. They have been allotted a total of seven days, the amount of time consumed by the wets, and so far have used only two days.

1ST SPEED TEST PASSED BY NEW TREATY CRUISER

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Her fore decks wet with spray whipped up by a 30 knot gale, the 10,000 ton cruiser Pensacola, recently commissioned at the Brooklyn navy yard, steamed 70 miles to sea today off Ambrose channel lightship and in deep water successfully completed her first high speed run.

With turbines humming under 500 pounds of steam pressure, the new cruiser, second of the "treaty" class, rode smoothly at 28 knots over a rough sea and proved to her officers' satisfaction her ability to "take it."

HOOVER AGREES ON BALLOT BOSS TO PACIFY HAITI

U. S. to Withdraw Troops After New Treaty.

HINCHE, Haiti, March 9.—(AP)—President Hoover's investigating committee, stopping here for the first night on their trip through inland Haiti, tonight announced that the President had approved their plan for a provisional government in Haiti.

The plan has also been personally approved by President Louis Borno.

Though the commission's formal statement does not mention the fact, it is known that the plan includes the ultimate replacement of the American military high commissioner, Brig. Gen. John H. Russell by a civilian minister of the diplomtic service after negotiations for a new treaty to replace the present one have been completed.

Under the plan, President Borno will serve out his term, which ends May 15. On that day his council of state will elect as provisional president the man chosen by the delegates of the various groups assembled at the capital.

The provisional president will then take office, and the council of state will cease to function, unless the president wants to choose his own council.

Will Call Popular Election.

The president thus chosen will call a popular election at the earliest possible date and present his resignation to the new legislature so that it will elect a president for the regular term.

President Hoover's approval of the plan was received here this afternoon, and it is believed that his assent has solved the Haitian problem. The commissioners said that they hoped to see Haiti back on a constitutional basis of peace again within a period of three months.

It now is considered certain that negotiations to end the American occupation of the island will begin within a short time.

Leaders of the groups opposing President Borno said they believed the people would be well satisfied.

Settlement Forecast in Handlesman Divorce Suit

A settlement is expected this week of the divorce suit of Jacob Handlesman, Detroit theater promoter, who has charged his wife, Dora, of the Rogers Park hotel, with desertion. Mrs. Handlesman, who had filed a cross bill for separate maintenance, demanded $25,000 for allowing an uncontested divorce so he can remarry. He in turn offered to make her the beneficiary of a $40,000 insurance policy and pay her $10,000 within a year and the balance thereafter.

BURDEN OF DRYS IS IRKSOME TO HOOSIER G. O. P.

Republicans Worried Over Next Elections.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—[Special.]—With the dry saddled on them and facing a farm organization which in 1928 generally supported Al Smith, the Republican leaders of Indiana have gone home from their two days' annual festival harboring considerable apprehension concerning the outcome of the state and legislative contests next fall.

The G. O. P. organization is also not a little bothered by the recollection of the general revolt of the people last November against the Anti-Saloon league and the religious intolerance of what is left of the klan and other dry organizations. The Republicans feel the revolt may carry over into this fall.

Democratic Mayors Win.

That there was a strong revolt was evidenced by the fact that there was a wholesale election of Democratic candidates in November, including mayors in 69 out of 80 cities. Here in Indianapolis the Democratic candidate was given a plurality of 25,000, a larger vote than any given a candidate in years, while Gov. Leslie, Republican, won the city by about the same number.

The men who won the Democratic offices were candidates who for the most part were open enemies of the Anti-Saloon league, who denounced its leaders and the other hide-bound drys—and that is what now worries the Republicans. With the G. O. P. leaders it is a case of "save me from my friends."

The outstanding fight for nominations in the state convention on June 5 will be that of B. F. Willoughby, judge of the Supreme court. Justice Willoughby, who has served two terms, seeks to be renominated, and sensational charges by Arthur L. Gillom, former attorney general, that the drys are girding their loins for a fight on him has lifted his candidacy into the limelight as the most important contest in the state.

Warns of Dry Opposition.

Gillom, himself a Republican and renowned for his fearless attacks on dry fanaticism and intolerance, in a letter to Elza Rogers, Republican state chairman, warned that the drys were attempting to defeat the renomination of Justice Willoughby because he would not conform his court decisions to the dry viewpoint.

There are figures to support the claim that the drys are slipping in Indiana, that they slipped even under the domineering and militant leadership of the late Dr. E. S. Shumaker. For instance, in 1924, when President Coolidge carried the state by a majority of 210,000, Willard B. Gemmill, a dry candidate for the Supreme bench, was given only 153,000 votes. Again, in 1926, the Indiana Anti-Saloon league opposed Justice Julius C. Travis of the Supreme bench, and Dr. Shumaker made a terrific effort to defeat him, yet he won by 32,000, while the head of the ticket went over by 80,000.

Justice Travis was concurring judge in the several opinions for which the drys now so cordially abhor Justice Willoughby, wherefore in the campaign of 1928 the Anti-Saloon league again sought to pillory him. They even overlooked the fact that Judge Travis' Democratic opponent, Thomas B. Branaman, had voted against dry measures while in the legislature. But they made little headway. Travis won by 142,000.

While the furore in politics goes on, there also are incontrovertible figures to show that there is plenty of intoxication in Indiana, which boasts of the most drastic dry law in the states. Board of State Charities statistics show that 11,103 persons were sent to jail in 1929 for intoxication, and that 4,355 were jailed for infractions of the liquor laws, while 1,407 were arrested for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of liquor.

DROWNS HERSELF

MISS BERNICE JANIS.

Walter Sinder, 1812 West 39th street, a taxicab driver, was held at the Brighton Park station on an open charge last night after he had told the police that Bernice Janis, 25 year old waitress, had committed suicide after he had told her of his intention of returning to his wife. The girl ran from his cab Saturday afternoon, Sinder said, and leaped into the river from the 35th street bridge. Her home was at 3327 South Halsted street.

Brother of Chicagoan Leaps to Death in N. Y.

Morris Finkelstein, 3755 North Spaulding avenue, secretary of the Booster Glove company, was notified by New York police last night that his brother, Louis, 22 years old, a student at the College of the City of New York, had leaped to his death yesterday from the twentieth floor of the Hotel Commodore, New York. Detectives learned that the youth had recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Ocean Palace, Everglades Hut 43 Miles Apart.

[A few days ago, after reporting the Miami prize fights, Mr. Pegler went over to Palm Beach and then through the near-by Everglades to observe the pioneering, courageous, and often tragic lives of the people in that isolated region so near the nation's winter society center. This is the first of three dispatches covering Mr. Pegler's impressions.]

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Palm Beach, Fla.—One day last week, in Palm Beach, a weary lady implored a society reporter to make no further mention of the cost of her jewels nor her entertainments. Not because she questioned the taste of this topic, but because, she said, with a plaintive gesture of her hand, flashing a famous diamond the size of a slightly melted high ball cube, and commonly understood to have cost $150,000, every repetition of these figures brought down upon herself and her husband a flurry of begging letters.

"Myself," she said, with a cold smile, "I am not much bothered by these things any more because my secretary keeps them from me, "but," she added, "my husband is incurably sentimental, and they do worry him so."

Story Is Recounted.

That evening in an all night lunch wagon much favored by the chauffeurs and bell hops of Palm Beach, the girl who had had the interview related the whole encounter with rich mimicry and said it had reminded her of the time Andrew Carnegie rang for his bouncer and, with tears in his eyes, pointed to a paralytic pauper leaning on his desk, saying, "Throw him out; he's breaking my heart."

I am not sure it was Carnegie. It sounds more typical of the late Frank Munsey, but, at any rate, this recital of the troubles of the rich lady in Palm Beach, perversely set me to thinking of the troubles of another lady, living only 43 miles away on the frontier of the Florida everglades, a neighbor lady in the geographical sense, although neither a neighbor nor even a lady in the social meaning of the word as Palm Beach would understand them.

This lady's name is Mrs. Gus Roberts. She lives again beside the road in Belle Glade, near Lake Okeechobee, with her young husband and their two children, a pioneer in a region of gruesome reputation, in the same rickety frame dwelling that was washed off its concrete foundation blocks on the night of the flood in 1928 and swirled away into an alligator swamp as she clung to a rafter in the attic, clutching the younger child and thinking of cotton mouth moccasins which might be crawling in the dark. Her husband, Gus, sat on another rafter, holding the older child, the boy, above the water and on the third and only other rafter in the little attic, a Negro field hand gibbered his prayers.

In Floats the Negro.

About fifteen minutes before they took to the attic the flood had come over the road, which forms a low dyke before the house, and, riding the first wave and yoo-hooing above the howl of the storm in the darkness had come the Negro peasant, afloat on a mattress. As the flood hit the house an eddy of the water swept the mattress against the dining room window and Gus Roberts, hearing a yell of distress outside, stepped from the table on which he and his wife were trying to keep above water, onto the window sill to lend a hand.

"O, my God, Mista Roberts," the Negro cried, as Gus dragged him into the very dubious haven of the flooded house. "Ah'm most drowned and mah wife, she's plumb drowned."

As to his wife, this was quite true. She was one of the 3,000 Florida pioneers who were swept off into the great, flat treeless reaches of the Everglades that night and beached by the seeping and receding waters, some of them, where only the buzzards ever would find them.

There are about 700 Negroes, victims of that frontier disaster, buried in one trench in the cemetery in West Palm Beach, the serfs' quarters of the Palm Beach colony, on the landward side of Lake Worth. A steam shovel scooped the pit and the rescue and salvage parties brought the bodies to town and dumped them into a bed of quick lime. Many of them were put away unidentified, first, because a Negro field hand in the Everglades has very little identity, and, second, because the weather was hot and the circumstances therefore were urgent.

Buzzards Blown Away.

They had been recovered only with the greatest difficulty by soldiers of the militia and unofficial gleaners in the dangerous morasses of the glades because the blow which had sent the water of the shallow lake brimming over the dyke, much the same as one might blow water out of a saucer, had blown the buzzards so far out of the county that they didn't really reappear for two weeks.

Some of the militiamen sent up from Tampa didn't answer mess call for days on end as this work went on and I am told of town boys in the National Guard enlisted for the aggressive horrors of war became hysterical in the presence of tragedy and snakes along the battlefront of progress in the glades.

Just after Gus Roberts helped the Negro in through the window the house began to move off, scraping bottom, and Gus decided that they had just one refuge left, the attic. The roof might come off and they might be scattered to drown separately, but the attic represented one more chance, so Mrs. Roberts, standing on the table, held both children above the flood while Gus and the Negro swung over to a clothes closet and dislodged the hatch on a scuttle giving onto the attic. Then they lifted Mrs. Roberts and the children through the hatch and all five rode out the night in the air pocket under the ridge of the roof.

Wade to Roadway.

In the morning the waterline had fallen to such an extent that the grown people decided to wade for it, carrying the babies, with the high ground of the roadway as their objective. Mrs. Roberts stands about five feet four and receding water reached her chin but she was going well enough until she was within six feet of the road.

"I forgot there was a ditch alongside the road," she said, "and the first thing I knew I was in over my head. But Mr. Roberts pulled me up and I was all right."

Four dead Negroes floated in the garden of the house next door, the headquarters of the South Florida Conservance district.

"I'm originally from Ohio, myself," Mrs. Roberts said, "and I can tell you I didn't care much about coming back into the glades to live, but Mr. Roberts likes it here, so, of course, we came back. It was a funny thing about how the children didn't catch any colds. They were soaking wet and we couldn't get them any dry things until the day after. That was Monday. But they didn't catch a speck of cold."

I hope I do not resort to a cheap and obvious dramatic contrast in comparing the lives of two neighbor ladies living only 43 miles apart, the one in Palm Beach and sore beset by society reporters with vulgar tastes as to news, the other in Belle Glade, in the reassembled fragments of a home once washed away by a flood which may recur next hurricane season.

No Market Here for Hyacinths.

It is only an hour's ride in the least of the cars in the Palm Beach lady's garage, from the villa on the ocean, where the drawing room walls are done in pure gold leaf, suggesting a state house dome turned inside out, to the rickety frontier home that Gus Roberts knocked together again after the flood went down. One rides out over a hard surface road laid along a ridge which hugs a wide borrow-pit, as the engineers call it, from which the coral rock and muck were dredged to build the grade.

Nowadays the borrow-pit is choked with hyacinth light blue pom-poms on a field of green, the same hyacinth which will sell for $1.50 a stem in New York at Easter time. In the drainage and irrigation canals of the south Florida conservancy district hyacinth are expensive vermin, for they clog the trenches, and one sees great bundles of them as big as cotton bales drying on the banks for miles, where they have been dredged up, bulbs and all, by a floating weed puller locally known as a hyacinth dipper.

In the days of the land boom down here I sometimes saw gangs of convicts in stripes, some of them dragging leg-irons, building or mending highways like the one leading from Palm Beach to Belle Glade, and always in the background, sitting in some cart or on a stump, one noticed the keeper, with his badge on his vest and his rifle across his knees. They were very evil keepers, of far more cruel aspect than the men in stripes, but their black slouch hats, their rifles and the psychology of the thing may have figured in the pity which I felt for the convicts.

At any rate, the reality of convict life of the roads in a pioneer section of a none too mature state was so desperate that I have remembered it vividly ever since. I mention this, hoping again that I do not resort to unsporting contrasts, because just the other day the rotogravures published a jolly picture of a society ball game at Palm Beach, showing Grover Whalen at bat in a policeman's coat and behind the bat, wearing convicts' stripes, the husband of the lady who wished the reporters would forego mention of her extravagance because the letters of the poor distressed him so.

Society, at loss for something to do, had chosen up sides, and had taken the field as cops versus convicts. And here was a Wall street broker mocking the kind of men who waded in the muck among the moccasins, building the roads through the jungle to open a new American domain.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

After playing hide and seek with the authorities for a week, Miss Laverne Lindgren, cashier of the People's State bank of Maywood, was at liberty yesterday, awaiting trial. Miss Lindgren on Saturday posted a $50,000 bond for her appearance on charges of embezzling bank funds. She, with Elmer Langguth, the president of the bank, is under indictment for taking approximately $173,000 from the institution.

5 MINERS DIE IN UTAH BLAST; 2 OTHERS HURT

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 9.—(AP)—Five miners were dead and two others were suffering from burns and the effects of gas today as a result of an explosion in the Peerless Coal company's mine near Castle Gate, Utah, late yesterday. Six men escaped from the mine uninjured.

The blast occurred while the 13 men were preparing to leave the shaft. Gas quickly spread through the tunnel.

The dead were: Clement Turner, Daniel Turner, Lester Curtis, William Curtis, and James Jensen. All were married.

Al Ross and L. S. King were burned about the hands and face and suffered from the effects of gas. They were carried to safety by Victor Bane and Tony Kamlinker.

The cause of the explosion had not been determined tonight by officials who are investigating.

MILK PRODUCERS OF CHICAGO AREA MEET TOMORROW

BY PAUL POTTER.

The 18,874 dairymen who produce the daily milk supply of Chicago and 18 cities within a radius of 130 miles of Chicago are to hold their annual meeting at the Morrison hotel tomorrow.

W. C. McQUEEN.

C. E. Hough, former Connecticut senator and manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association, will address the farmers following a forenoon business session and noon dinner. Mr. Hough was recently named a member of the federal farm board's advisory committee on dairying. The meeting will be held under the direction of the Pure Milk association, of which W. C. McQueen of Elgin is president.

The Pure Milk association now controls practically 100 per cent of the milk production in the 28 counties in three states surrounding Chicago, Mr. McQueen said. It has a corps of 11 laboratory men inspecting the milk and cream from farm to consumer, working in cooperation with the Chicago department of health.

Plans to be submitted to the membership tomorrow call for an increased deduction from the farmers' milk check to build this force to 20 men and conduct educational advertising of dairy products in the metropolitan area.

FERON IS TRACED EAST; OAK PARK AWAITS ARREST

Attorney Bares Tangle in Magistrate's Affairs.

James M. Feron, Oak Park police magistrate who is being sought on a warrant charging him with embezzlement, has been discovered in an eastern city and his arrest is expected within a short time, according to a statement issued last night by Charles H. Crysler, president of the Oak Park village board.

According to Crysler, Chief of Police Benjamin Barsema has traced the missing magistrate to the Hotel La Salle on the day of his disappearance and later to the La Salle street station, where he bought a railroad ticket to the east. His description has been telegraphed to a city in New York state, where he is known to have relatives.

Reveals Financial Tangle.

The involved financial affairs which led to Feron's alleged defalcation were revealed yesterday by Attorney Frank E. Cantwell, who with his brother is counsel for Crysler. Cantwell said that Feron had between $100,000 and $150,000 invested in Oak Park real estate, all of it heavily mortgaged.

When the First Oak Park Trust and Savings bank demanded payment of $25,000 on a mortgage which it held, Feron was unable to obtain the money and the bank foreclosed, taking over a large part of the magistrate's subdivision holdings, according to Attorney Cantwell.

Investigate Use of Fines.

Cantwell said Oak Park officials were investigating to determine whether Feron had used some of the money he had collected in fines when the banks began pressing him for funds. A check for $14,000, which the magistrate had given to the village trustees a few days before his disappearance, was returned, leading to the warrant for embezzlement.

As a result of Feron's departure a new political situation has developed in Oak Park, with J. Edward Jones, attorney, as the only formal candidate for police magistrate. Crysler and the political faction of which Feron was a member have advanced Justice of the Peace William P. Churchill as a candidate and are making a campaign to have Churchill's name written on the ballot at the election. Thomas Walpole, village prosecutor, is also campaigning for the office.

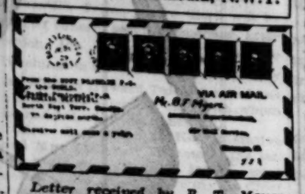
From Bache Peninsula, N.W.T.



Letter received by B. T. Meyers, assistant superintendent, Air Mail Service, Chicago.

This letter was mailed by Corporal B. Arnstead of the Royal Canadian mounted police at Bache peninsula postoffice, Franklin district, Northwest Territory. It is 79 degrees north and is the most northerly postal station in the world. It was dated Feb. 10, 1928, and reached Chicago about Sept. 12. The writer said:

"Have just date stamped for next July, because we only receive mail once per year, that is, providing the supply ship can force a passage through the ice. Last summer we had to go thirty miles out to meet it, and lucky at that.

"As regards our surroundings the scene is composed of rocky, mountainous land, ice caps, glaciers, ice, and snow. During the summer months it is about the same, except that we can see a little more of the rocky land when the snow has thawed away. During the winter months it is so silent that the ears ring, and in summer it is one continual roar of rushing torrents.

"Population, we have none except the three of us and two Eskimo families, so that if all postoffices were as busy as we are, the government would show a huge deficit. Our greatest friends are our dogs, although at times we do not think so, because they can be twice as stubborn as mules."

BODY OF TAFT TO LIE IN STATE IN U. S. CAPITOL

Funeral Services to Be Held Tomorrow.

Longworth both called at the Taft home today. The Vice President canceled an engagement to speak last night in Indianapolis, boarding a train for Washington as soon as he heard of Mr. Taft's death.

Court Will Be Closed.

The Supreme court will hold no sessions tomorrow or Tuesday, cases set for arguments on these days being postponed. It was announced that the argument on the Chicago water diversion case, which is set for Wednesday, will take place as scheduled.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Associate Justices James C. McReynolds, Pierce Butler, and Harlan F. Stone left tonight with the body of Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford, whose sudden and unexpected death yesterday gave a double note of tragedy to the day. Services for Justice Sanford will take place tomorrow in Knoxville, Tenn., his home. The justices will return to Washington in time for the Taft funeral Tuesday.

Mr. Taft's two sons, Robert A. and Charles P., arrived this morning from Cincinnati and were active in the making of funeral arrangements. Accompanied by Col. Campbell B. Hodges, the President's military aide, they drove to the White House where they conferred with President Hoover. Later they visited Arlington cemetery with Col. Hodges.

Mr. Taft's two brothers, Henry and Horace D., also arrived, the former from Augusta, Ga., and the latter from Waterbury, Conn.

Many Call at Taft Home.

Mrs. Taft and the daughter, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, received many callers during the day.

A constant stream of callers appeared at the Taft home. Among them were Miss Mabel Boardman, Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison, Charles MacVeagh, former minister to Japan, Justice McReynolds and the Canadian minister and Mrs. Vincent Massey.

Curious sightseers passed the house in a steady procession. A battery of photographers was on duty. A policeman sought to keep the crowd moving.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sends Message.

Among telegrams received by Mrs. Taft was one from Mrs. Edith Roosevelt, widow of Theodore Roosevelt, whose fight on Taft in 1912 was responsible for his defeat for reelection. Mrs. Roosevelt's message read:

"I send my sincerest sympathy in your great loss."

Elihu Root, who served in the Roosevelt cabinet with Mr. Taft, sent the following:

"Deep sorrow and sympathy with you and all the family."

There were messages from all of the living cabinet members of the Taft administration—Franklin MacVeagh of Chicago, who served as secretary of the treasury; Henry L. Stimson, present secretary of state, who was secretary of war during the latter part of Mr. Taft's presidency; George W. Wickersham, who was attorney general, and Frank H. Hitchcock, postmaster general.

Among the many scores of others who sent messages were: Secretary of State Stimson, Victor Rosenwater of Philadelphia, Norman E. Mack, W. L. Mackenzie King, the Canadian prime minister; Chao-chu Wu, Chinese minister to the United States; Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio, and Ernestine Schumann Heink.

50 HAMILTON CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND TAFT FUNERAL RITES

Committees to attend the funeral services for William Howard Taft were named yesterday from the Chicago headquarters of the American Bar association and by the Hamilton club as various Chicago organizations followed the proclamation of President Hoover concerning the death of the ex-President.

President Bell of the Hamilton club, of which Mr. Taft was elected an honorary member prior to his election to the presidency, appointed a delegation of 50 members to attend the services. The group includes several personal friends of Mr. Taft. Mr. Bell also directed that the front of the club be draped in mourning.

Flags were flown at half staff from various governmental and private buildings in the city. The Lafayette post of the American Legion was one organization to fly its flag at the mourning position and the Medinah Athletic club was another.

Coolidge Does Not Expect to Attend Taft Funeral

Northampton, Mass., March 9.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge, now the only living former President, told newspaper men this afternoon: "I do not expect to attend the funeral of former President Taft." Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge returned home today after a six weeks' trip that took them across the country.

MAC VEAGH TELLS SACRIFICES OF TAFT FOR NATION

Calls Him Great Executive with a Genial Soul.

William Howard Taft, as his close friends and cabinet members knew him, was sketched vividly last night by Franklin MacVeagh, veteran Chicago merchant, who was secretary of the treasury under the late President.

"In Taft, America has lost her leading man," Mr. MacVeagh said. "His figure will grow to magnificence on the canvas of the years. His administration was almost perfect—he was one of the greatest administrators in our history. His genial smile gave people a misconception of him. He was no light humorist, but he was a man of great charm, very personable."

Mr. MacVeagh is now 92 years old, but he is still vigorous, and his blue eyes are keen and expressive. They twinkled as he talked amiably of Taft and flashed when he grew emphatic in the correction of some misconception of his chief who sat in the White House 20 years ago.

A Man of Sacrifices.

"Mr. Taft was a man who was always ready to make personal sacrifices to serve his country," Mr. MacVeagh continued. "He never was particularly interested in being President. What he really prized was the post he got at the end of his life, that of chief justice.

"During his presidency he was so fine to deal with and always so fair. He didn't insist on choosing our cabinet assistants, as practically all of his predecessors and successors have done. We did all that ourselves.

"Taft loved Roosevelt as a friend. He had been secretary of war under him, you know. He always after that spoke of him as 'my President,' even when he was President himself. He would not believe that Roosevelt would turn against him, and while he was angered, of course, when it happened in 1912, he always afterward rather harked back to the years of their friendship than to discuss that phase of their relations.

"He couldn't long retain any ill feeling toward Roosevelt. He liked him in spite of the bitterness of 1912. They shook hands and became friends again, you know."

Recalls Tariff Fight.

"Taft made the first real fight in the Republican party for tariff reforms. He was like a lion in his great fight on the tariff sponsored by Senator Aldrich and his group. He was against a blind and unreasonable tariff. He won many points in his fight and compromised only when he could do no more.

"I say that his figure will grow on the canvas of time because he brought every public act of his life to a successful conclusion. His work as governor of the Philippines was a masterpiece of administration. This country then had no experience at colonization. McKinley, a genius at choosing the right men for the right places, prevailed upon Taft to leave the bench and go to the islands in the Pacific. Taft reluctantly went when persuaded it was his duty."

Radicals Sure to Demand "Liberal" Successor.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—President Hoover can scarcely avoid a fight in filling the Supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford unless he names some one of known liberal tendencies. This seemed apparent today in view of the issue recently raised by the senate radicals in opposing the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes for chief justice.

The President, in order to avoid trouble, must not only select some one who will side with the three liberal members of the court—Justices Oliver Wendell Holmes, Louis Brandeis and Harlan F. Stone—out must also choose some one from the south.

One of the names suggested for the vacancy is that of Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, former senator from Iowa. Judge Kenyon joined forces with some of the present senate radicals during his service in the senate, and his nomination would meet with no opposition from the radical group. Some of the regulars, however, might not be so well pleased.

Kenyon on Law Commission.

Judge Kenyon is serving on the President's law enforcement commission and in that capacity has come into contact with Mr. Hoover recently. There also are a number of other lawyers and jurists on the commission who might possibly be considered by Mr. Hoover in filling the Sanford vacancy, among them being Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard Law school.

Among others suggested among possible selections are John W. Davis, former solicitor general and the Democratic presidential nominee in 1924; Attorney General William D. Mitchell, also a Democrat, and Curtis Wilbur, former secretary of the navy and appointed by Mr. Hoover as a federal judge in California.

May Renew Hughes Attitude.

If President Hoover selects some one who has had large corporations among his clients it is a certainty that the senate radicals will make the same sort of a fight against him which they did on Mr. Hughes. The contention will be advanced that such an appointee would line up with the present majority of the court, which, according to the view of the radicals, favors "property rights" as against "human right."

Failure of Mr. Hoover to give the appointment to the south is likely to cause resentment inasmuch as Justice Sanford was one of the two southern members of the court. Southern Republicans have resented the failure of Mr. Hoover to name a cabinet member from the south in view of the fact that he carried five southern states in the election.

RESTAURANT CASHIER ROBBED.

Miss Bessie White, 21 years old, 1108 North Dearborn street, a cashier in the Union restaurant at 68 West Randolph street, was robbed of $85 yesterday by a gunman who entered the restaurant while she was alone.

JUSTICE SANFORD TO BE BURIED TODAY IN KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—The body of Justice Edward Terry Sanford, accompanied by a group of his colleagues from the Supreme court, left here tonight for Knoxville, Tenn., where there will be a brief funeral service tomorrow, after which the justices will return to Washington for the final rites Tuesday for William Howard Taft, who died but a few hours after the man with whom he had sat upon the bench.

Mrs. Sanford and Representative and Mrs. Fisher of Tennessee, the latter a sister of the late justice, were accompanied on their journey by Chief Justice Hughes and Justices McReynolds, Butler and Stone as the committee representing the court.

Justice Sanford died suddenly yesterday after an illness of less than three hours. Leaving home in the expectation of joining his colleagues in honoring Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes on his eighty-ninth birthday, he collapsed in a dentist's chair and was removed unconscious to his home. He died a short time later.

CHAMBERLAIN STALLS PLANE, FLOATS DOWN

Roosevelt Field, L. I., March 9.—[Special.]—By skilful piloting, Clarence D. Chamberlin demonstrated the safety of his Crescent monoplane here today. Simultaneously he throttled his motor, stalled the plane, and released a parachute jumper at 1,500 feet above the field.

As the roar of the motor was hushed, the jumper was precipitated into the clear sky. Almost immediately the parachute opened. Jumper and plane seemed to hover in the air.

The great white silk umbrella deposited the jumper on the ground in 50 seconds, a minute and five seconds before the silent airplane glided to the field in a slow landing.

Chamberlin announced his purpose in making the test to prove that an airplane can be brought down without power safely and landed more slowly than a parachute. He said the pilot has practically perfect control of his choice of landing spots, whereas the jumper must land where the wind blows him.

Hoover May Address Boy Scouts from His Study

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Plans for President Hoover to address a meeting commemorating the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America tomorrow night were threatened tonight by the death of former President Taft. At the White House it was announced that President Hoover was canceling all engagements, but it was indicated that he might make the Boy Scout speech from his study in the White House. Plans had been made to broadcast the address.

Watchman Shot When He Flees from Four Robbers

Orville Cal, 65 years old, 700 South Winchester avenue, was shot in the left arm last night by one of four bandits who stopped him as he was on his way to work at the Illinois Research hospital, where he is employed as a watchman. The four drove up in an automobile and hailed Cal at Wood and Polk streets. When they ordered him to throw up his hands, he started to flee and one of the men fired.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

Mrs. Carrie Laser, 74 years old, 6717 North Ahland avenue, died at the Lake View hospital yesterday as the result of a fall on the stairs at her home on Jan. 26.

POISON LIQUOR KILLS 4 INDIANS; BLINDS OTHERS

Paralysis Cases Spread in Other Districts.

Devils Lake, N. D., March 9.—(AP)—Four Sioux Indians are dead, three others are in a serious condition, and another is missing as the result of drinking what is believed to have been denatured alcohol at a dance near Tokio, N. D., on the Fort Totten Indian reservation last night.

James Jackson, a member of the party, is missing and it is feared he may have succumbed while en route to his home following the dance. Jackson left the A. O. Coates place, near Tokio, where the dance was held, on his pony.

Doctor Finds Three Dead.

Dr. B. Sedlacek of Oberon was called to the Coates home and took Supt. Gray. They found three Indians dead, and the fourth dying.

Indications are that if the sick men recover they will be blind.

Matthias Taylor, a Sioux Indian, is being held for questioning. It is alleged that he stole a quantity of denatured alcohol used as an anti-freeze solution for automobiles, and this was what the Indians drank.

50 Paralyzed in Tennessee.

Johnson City, Tenn., March 9.—(AP)—Fifty cases of partial paralysis, in a form which so far has thwarted diagnosis, were reported today to health officers of Washington, Carter, and Unicoi counties.

Dr. S. S. Moody, Washington county health officer, said he was investigating "the possibility that poison alcohol is the cause." Several of the patients had been drinking liquor of doubtful quality.

Peril Abates for 300 Victims.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 9.—(AP)—The cause of a paralysis-like malady which has stricken hundreds of residents of Oklahoma City remained a mystery tonight but physicians and chemists viewed the situation with optimism as the condition of some patients under observation improved.

Dr. Walter H. Miles, city health director, reiterated his belief that the strange disease could be attributed directly to the drinking of Jamaica ginger, and expressed the belief that danger, for the present at least, had passed.

"I am convinced," he said, "that all of the cases were caused by one bad shipment of Jamaica ginger."

Denaturant Is Suspected.

Dr. Miles said the nature of the drug which caused the paralysis had not been determined although other physicians who have been studying the cases under observation believed some drug which had been used as a denaturant of the alcohol in the Jamaica ginger, was to blame.

If the contaminated liquor were confined to one bad shipment of Jamaica ginger as Dr. Miles believes, he said it was possible that the entire shipment had been consumed, and that no samples could be secured for tests.

The plight of the hundreds of sufferers brought a quick check to drinking, police agreed. Only seven persons were arrested for being intoxicated last night, whereas the number usually is "between 35 and 40," for Saturday night, the desk sergeant said.

Brooklyn Bull Fighter Kills Four Bulls in Day

COBB AND LODEN FOUND GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Benton, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Del B. Cobb of West Frankfort, former president of subdistrict nine of the United Mine Workers of America, and Edward P. Loden of Benton, former secretary treasurer, were found guilty by a jury in Circuit court here early today on a charge of larceny by embezzlement which carries a sentence of from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

They had been indicted on a charge of withholding for their personal use, $10,500 from a $50,000 fund voted to aid destitute families of striking miners. The fund had been voted out of the subdistrict treasury at the fifth biennial convention of miners in Benton, May 25, 1927.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

William Howard Taft had a full career in American public life. It not only was long, but it was varied beyond the experience of other Americans distinguished for length of service. It was an exceptional career, hardly with parallel. Taft was governor of the Philippines, secretary of war, President, and chief justice of the Supreme court, and died virtually in office. John Quincy Adams was secretary of state, President, and died a house member in congress, a unique record. Roosevelt was governor of New York, Vice President, and President, but had been long in private life when he died.

Generally men attaining the presidency, satisfying their desire for two terms or being disappointed in it, have regarded their span in high office as ended. There have been long lives of public service in one field, as in the senate or the house of representatives or the judiciary, but Mr. Taft's was exceptional in its variety as well as its distinctions.

In presidential policies and politics he has been regarded as unsuccessful. His period was one of unstable opinion, of experiment and enthusiasm, of an excited liberalism which was pressing for a different model of democracy. Economic ideas were in transition. Political ideas were in ferment. The development of corporate wealth was dreaded and its influence with the old school Republicans in congress was exasperating. Joseph Gurney Cannon, as speaker of the house of representatives, and Boies Penrose, in the senate, had come to be accepted as patterns of the control which the Standard Oil company, for instance, exerted over legislation.

Liberalism and radicalism insisted that government should be taken back to the people through the machinery of reform laws which would give popular control of administration and legislation by the initiative and referendum, by the recall of judicial decisions, the recall of elected officers, by the direct election of United States senators, the direct nomination of candidates for the presidency, and by the direct nomination of all candidates for all offices in city, state, and nation.

Some of these reform laws would not find many responsible advocates now. Some of them were obtained and are operating and in their works are observed with doubt and questioning or even with a sense of their failure. Liberalism was trying for some features of pure democracy which have lost the charm of their youth. There is a little less certainty that a mass decision on any question must of its very origin be wise. Mr. Taft would not as President today seem so reactionary as he did when his administration was being attacked by new ideas of popular rights and powers. What was politically wrong then is being accepted as sound in principle and what was economically dangerous then has adjusted itself by evolution as well as by law.

Mr. Taft was not the man who could survive the period and he had less chance because of his sponsorship. He was introduced with the authority of Theodore Roosevelt behind him. When Roosevelt, the champion of Republican liberalism, discarded him and when the old guard welcomed him it seemed to be betrayal. Taft's fate then was plain and Woodrow Wilson's destiny was made. Taft could get the renomination through the organization of the reactionaries, but Utah and Vermont, with eight electoral votes, were the only states he could carry.

In his return to private life Mr. Taft became almost an obscurity. His amiability was a genuine part of his personality, but in the days of conflict it had not made any effect upon the public. Mr. Coolidge, with a touch of green persimmons in him, has held a great deal of public interest. There is a Coolidge legend. He is a person of importance in retirement. Reporters recall how many times in seeking Taft they found him sitting alone in a railroad station or saw him walking unnoticed on the street, an expansive and cheerful man. His amiability, being real, made him and kept him many friends, but it was of no avail to him when the criticism of his administrative policies and of his political associates was strongest.

If his future after the presidency had depended upon general political action, his retirement probably would have been for the rest of his life, but President Harding, having the appointment of a chief justice in 1921, turned to the former leader of the wing of the party with which he himself had been associated and the former President returned to high position to round out his life.

The election of Harding in itself was indication that the wave of liberalism in the party had ebbed. It had lost its force in the war and the internationalism of Wilson had created new issues overpowering the domestic questions. Taft's services as chief justice will be questioned at points. A finer sense of the substance and intent of the American system of government in its origins and authority is found in the dissenting opinions of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

MORE JOBS AND BETTER BUSINESS.

The administration in Washington finds satisfaction in the latest statistics of unemployment. The figures show gradually increasing industrial activity and warrant the belief that the end of the period of recession is nearing.

The government at Washington, both in its legislative and executive branches, would have greater cause for satisfaction if their contributions to the resumption of business activity had been greater. Congress has made few important constructive contributions to the relief of the depression. Certainly the endless consideration of the tariff without the enactment of a tariff law has not helped. Perhaps congress may be credited with a prompt reduction of the income taxes, but it is hard to say whether the credit in this matter is to go to congress or to the President, who suggested it.

To date, the chief contribution of the executive branch, unassisted, has been the calling of numerous trade conferences intended to encourage capital expenditures. What the good effect of these conferences has been it is difficult to evaluate at present. Meanwhile a real and important contribution to the relief of the situation has not been pushed to the point which might have been attained. We refer, of course, to the construction of public works and buildings for which the need is manifest.

The Chicago postoffice will serve as an example. The delays in pushing the plans to the point of final approval would be difficult to justify under any circumstances, but in the present circumstances must be regarded as inexcusable. The project was approved in congress many months ago and hundreds of men might now be employed directly on the building and many more might be indirectly occupied with it but for the delays and procrastinations. The responsibility here seems to fall directly upon the executive.

A somewhat different neglect of an opportunity to stimulate business is the failure to appropriate for the Illinois waterway. Without federal aid the waterway may take years and an amendment to the state constitution to complete. With a federal appropriation of about $5,000,000 the waterway can be completed within a year or two at most. The executive has not pressed the matter upon congress and congress has done next to nothing on its own initiative. Much labor would be required to complete the channel and vastly more would be engaged in building docks, bridges, road and rail connections, and warehouses, not to mention barges and towboats to be used in connection with the new trade route once it is opened. The government appropriation of $5,000,000 would be much more than matched by private enterprise which is waiting for the government to act. The completion of the waterway would serve as a business stimulator of the first rank.

GUARANTIES FOR FRANCE.

The American delegation in London is reported as of divided and uncertain opinion on the French request for some understanding which would promise aid in case of aggression against its interests. That is presented as a necessary complement to a French reduction of naval defenses. The French say they will be content with the promise of the American government to take notice of such aggression and to consult with the nations interested in preventing it.

Any American delegates who oppose this will be using good judgment. It may seem to be far remote from an alliance, but it presents an obligation which has no proper relation to the purposes of the naval limitation and which an American government would improperly assume. The theory of navy reduction is to minimize provocations and to decrease expenses. If it increases the probability of war it has defeated its intent. The cost of navy upkeep is not a serious matter for the United States, and, if other nations do not wish to reduce, the United States is not called upon to give them special rewards for doing so.

France is justified in rejecting any proposals which are regarded as dangerous, but the United States should not be asked to underwrite the security of another country. If the present day American government came to such an understanding in such fashion as not to require the consent of the senate the promise would be only an embarrassment to the next administration, if it were anything. The senate, if it has to be consulted, would hardly make an agreement of that kind, not unless the senators have taken leave of their senses.

Consultation is a mild word, but as used in this case it means entrance into a controversy with no assurance that there is an exit. It is intended to commit the United States to the cause of France in whatever issue its interests or security may be threatened by an enemy. If it means anything it is that the implication of force has been added to the naval agreement. The French are not asking the United States to promise to listen to a recital of injuries with the understanding that Uncle Sam will then pick up his hat and go home.

If force is required to make the naval agreement safe the London conference will produce an alliance for possible wars instead of an agreement to promote peace. Europe thinks of security in terms of armed alliances, and peace agreements are important only as they lead to such protections.

Editorial of the Day

THE FRUIT CASE.
[Grand Rapids Press.]

Four hundred railroads have protested an order of the interstate commerce commission reducing the freight rates on deciduous fruit from the western coast to all points east, including the cities where Michigan deciduous fruits must compete with these western products. The railroads protest that the new rates are below a fair return and that the commission has no right to assess such rates at the expense of other classes of freight.

What happens to other classes of freight rates does not seem a very important question compared to the vital one, for Michigan and its neighbor states, which is: "Why should the federal government, through a rate setting board, establish artificially low rates for our far west competitors so that they can enter markets from which they would otherwise be ruled out by natural handicaps of distance and freight?"

Whatever the decision may be as to whether the new fruit rates are confiscatory, it is to be hoped the Supreme court will speak out to the effect that the federal government has no right, for economic, social or political reasons, to push the products of one part of the country into the territory of other producers by establishing either unnatural freight reductions, as charged in the fruit case, or forbidding voluntary reductions, as in the coal case.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Well, Now, Mahatma Gandhi, We Might Give You a Few Pointers.

We see by the papers, Mahatma, that you are putting on a civil disobedience campaign against the British in India. We are having a little civil disobedience ourselves over here in the United States of America and we might help you.

If we were you, Mahatma, we wouldn't use any bootleggers or hijackers or rum runners or dry enforcement officers in your civil disobedience stuff, because then it wouldn't be civil very long. O, Mister Gandhi, it wouldn't be civil more than fifteen minutes. The civil disobedience over here started civil enough with cocktail parties, hip flasks, and little informal gin gatherings. Everybody was lighthearted and gay, and said the one to the other, "O nonsense about the 18th amendment and the Volstead act. Get a good bootlegger." And all hearts were light and gay.

But, Mahatma, our civil disobedience didn't stay that way long. The boys that furnished the likker commenced to play rough. The dry enforcement officers began to play rough. First thing you know the gin parties got rough—everything got rough. And they got rougher and rougher. And they're getting still rougher.

Yes, Mahatma, you may learn from us that civil disobedience is all right as long as you can keep it civil. But take it from us—we know. Look out for the rough stuff.

FANTASY:
A LULLABY FOR ENNUI.

Where the oceans roll
And break into crystal foam
I have found my soul
An iridescent home,
Shut out from time and toil as with a glittering dome.

Deep in the heart
Of the sea, of the falling spray,
She lies alone, apart,
In a spatter of rainbows gay,
Where no hard hand may prick the bubble of the day.

Sea-green, sea-blue
Lie gentle about her head,
Billows of green and blue,
And the coral's silken red;
And the red silk sprays of the coral of the garlands of her bed.

So far, so deep,
So cut from her mortal bars,
The night of her golden sleep
Is sprinkled with mirrored stars,
With the pale green glow of the moon and the distant glimmer of stars.

O lone, O lost,
O hid in the roll of the sea
From the silver spears of the frost
And the snowstorm over the tree,
She floats in the drifted foam, in the falling spray of the sea.

WE TRIED TO cheer Snowshoe Al up. He's been rarin' around to find a job without any tangible results and we showed him the latest news from Washington, where it said that within sixty days the storm will be over and everybody back at work at good pay. "But what did Washington say I was to eat," demanded Snowshoe, "during the next sixty days. Huh?" We told him they didn't say and he said to find out. So, Washington, what does Snowshoe Al eat for the next sixty days and where and how? Send answer Rush, Prepaid.

THE COUNTESS OF WARWICK says very gloomily that George V. is going to be the last of the English kings and suggests the Prince of Wales as first president of the British Republic. We wish the countess would stop forecasting and fire one of those guides she's got in Warwick castle. Somehow we always draw him when we go through the old home of the Warwicks and he always acts as though he was going to grab a halbert or a battle ax off the wall and chop the heads off about fifty tourists. Not but what some of them have got it coming, but, after all, they've paid a shilling a head to go through the castle and at least the guide ought to give them their money back before he scares 'em to death.

LAGNIAPPE.

PREMIER RAMSAY MacDONALD tells the naval parley to get a little action, as the public is becoming impatient. Impatient is not the word, Ramsay. If you peek through the curtain you will see that the public is merely getting up, yawning politely, and walking out on the show. Tell 'em to speak louder, Ramsay. Louder and funnier.

BABE RUTH HAS finally and with great reluctance accepted eighty thousand bucks a year for the next two years with the New York Yankees. Too bad! We're sorry for the Babe, but by strict economy, living on one meal a day and going without an overcoat in winter, he'll probably be able to get along. But only eighty thousand bucks a year! Gosh, our heart just bleeds for that boy!

AND NOW THE Farm Board wants another hundred million dollars. They've already had a hundred and fifty millions from congress. Go to it, farm board, the first hundred million is the hardest. From now on you'll be wanting another hundred million pretty often.

O, GENTLE, LOVELY, BEAUTIFUL SPRING! You're here at last. Yesterday you burst upon us with blue skies and soft, balmy breezelets from the south. First robins danced gayly in every yard and the grass kept up a low rumbling of joy as it broke its way through the cold, hard mold. Spring, thrice welcome, thou beautiful one, ah, we have missed thee sore! (Hank, if it snows tonight kill this paragraph and run the one starting, SPRING IS A DARNED OLD HUSSY.)

COMPLAIN OF COLD.

IN many offices during winter and spring employés are complaining to the management that they are uncomfortably cold. The management, unmindful of the effects of discomfort of employés on the volume and the quality of work done, responds to the instinct to defend and points to the thermometer. This instrument, set on an inside wall about seven feet above the floor, records eighty, let us say. If the complaining employé is both well informed and persistent he will appeal from the thermometer seven feet up to one at the floor level; he will insist that the instrument be detached from the wall and placed on the floor in about the location of his feet, and then read after an exposure of about fifteen minutes. On the basis of that evidence he establishes his point, for the reading of eighty is apt to be changed to one of sixty to sixty-five. If he wants any supplemental evidence of the unequal distribution of heat in the room he will ask for readings near the doors and beneath the windows on the one hand, and close to the ceiling on the other.

Plaints of this kind are not limited to office employés. Members of the British parliament have complained of "hot heads and cold feet" as the result of sitting in their halls, and congress itself has not been wholly without voice on the proposition as it applied to its members.

The managers of the offices where the complaint is registered may go farther into the question. They may find that the sickness absentee rate of the force in late winter and early spring has been unduly high and shows no tendency to decline. They may hear a good deal of coughing and see a good deal of nose blowing. Perhaps they find more pneumonia than should prevail among a force not exposed to cold winds and sleet.

But if the manager searches for a remedy he will have a hard time of it. He may strip his windows and close a few doors. He may even change the location of some of his radiation so as to preheat some of the cold air before it can reach the floor. He may heat the floors, or carpet or otherwise cover them. He may provide stools for the feet of those who sit, or standing benches for those who stand as they work. The employés may wear warmer stockings or provide themselves with dry, warmer, looser shoes to wear while working. And these are about all the remedies that we know of.

BABY LEFT ALONE.

Mrs. M. H. G. writes: I have a breast fed baby, 6½ months old, weighing 24 pounds. Seems healthy in every way and is never cross. I am compelled to go to work and will be away from him nine or ten hours a day, and would like to know what foods to give him.

REPLY.

You can continue to breast-feed him. Let him have one or, at most, two feedings from the bottle during your absence. A child seven months old can have orange juice, cod liver oil, cereal, strained soups, a little finely mashed vegetable, and pot liquor, in addition to milk.

BEDTIME EXERCISE.

S. K. writes:

I exercise before bedtime.

Is this as beneficial as morning exercise?

REPLY.

It is.

WATER ISN'T FATTENING.

M. R. C. writes: Is water fattening?

REPLY.

No.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

L. P. writes:

1. Do hemorrhoids cause high blood pressure?

2. When they bleed profusely does it relieve the blood pressure?

3. Will a hot foot bath relieve a headache?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Temporarily, and to some extent.
3. In many cases.

ROUNDWORM OR TAPEWORM.

L. writes: Recently my niece passed a tapeworm about twelve inches long, and two days later she passed one six inches. We went to the druggist and got some worm candies and have been giving these to her, followed by castor oil. Are tapeworms dangerous? How many does a child have at the age of five?

REPLY.

Are you certain these were tapeworms? Your description suggests roundworms. Roundworm treatment is not of much service for tapeworm. The rule is one worm to one person. Roundworms come in droves.

GLANDS BEHIND EARS SWELL.

Mrs. R. D. writes:

1. What causes the glands behind the ears to swell?

2. What can be done to relieve this?

REPLY.

1. The most frequent cause is some infection. A contributing cause of enlarged glands in that location is scratching the scalp.

2. Exposure to sunlight will cure if the cause ceases to operate. Is the head infested?

ILLEGAL CHARGE ON LOAN.

Chicago, March 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I received a loan of two hundred dollars on my car at an automobile loan office, to be paid in ten months. I had to pay $89.90 interest for this loan, making a total of $289.90. Can they charge 7 per cent more interest on this amount? W. S.

In our opinion the $89.00 is, in substance, a cover for usurious interest, which would mean that they cannot collect more than the principal and costs.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL IN MISSOURI.

Chicago, March 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I borrowed $750 several years ago, giving a promissory note from a bank in Missouri. The note bore 7 per cent interest, payable semi-annually. The recent renewal note stipulates an interest rate of 8 per cent, payable semi-annually. What could be a justification of this increased interest rate? K. L. J.

It is legal under Missouri law. In general the creditor is entitled to name his own terms for extending. No "justification" is necessary. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

QUESTION OF CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, March 4. — [Friend of the People.]—I was born in the U. S. in 1905, went to Germany in 1913, returned in 1927. My father was a naturalized citizen before my birth. Am I a citizen? L. Z.

Unless the writer expatriated herself by some act of her own she, being born a citizen, is still a citizen. This fact was, no doubt, determined when she entered the United States by the American consul in Germany. Did she receive an American passport?
FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Naturalization.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 10, 1865.

WHEELING. — Col. Thompson of Gen. Sheridan's command has just arrived from Winchester with 40 officers and 1,300 enlisted men as prisoners and eight pieces of rebel artillery, captured and destroyed. The principal battle fought was at Fisherville, five miles from Staunton.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's Washington special says: "Gen. Emory telegraphs from Winchester that some of our men coming in represent that Sheridan's victory over Early was more complete than any report we have had. When last heard from he was pushing for the canal running from Lynchburg to Richmond."

WASHINGTON.—Information from the Army of the Potomac says that all is quiet. A freshet is subsiding. The exchange of prisoners is resumed. A report is in circulation that Lynchburg is in our possession.

WASHINGTON.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Senator James Harlan of Iowa to be secretary of the interior in place of Judge Asher, who has resigned. The nomination of Brig. Gen. Rawlins to be chief of staff to Lieut. Gen. Grant was also confirmed.

NEW YORK.—The World's Wilmington correspondent says: "Our advance under Gen. Terry is some 12 miles from here on the northwest branch of the Cape Fear river, with Hoke's troops confronting it on the other side. Sherman is reported as being within 60 miles of this place."

CINCINNATI.—The examination of James S. Rock, late of the Chicago Times, was continued before the military commission hearing the Chicago conspiracy case. Rock said he joined the Society of the Illini in 1863 at the instigation of either James Goodsell, local editor of the Times, or a Mr. Richter, proofreader of the Times. Among the employés of the Times who were members of the Sons of Liberty besides himself, he said, were Goodsell, Richter, a man named Berry, and others of the compositors.

MARCH 10, 1900.

FRANKFORT, Ky. — William H. Coulton of Jackson county was arrested in connection with the assassination of Claimant Governor William Goebel and four other warrants are unserved. They are for Caleb Powers, Republican claimant to the office of secretary of state; his brother, John L. Powers of Barbourville; former Secretary of State Charles Finley of Whitley county, and Capt. John Davis, for years the private policeman on statehouse square. All are prominent Republicans. It is said that other warrants are to be issued—that the "big game will be reserved for the last." Senator Goebel was shot on the morning of Jan. 30 from a window in the secretary of state's office as he was passing through the capitol yard.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Douglas Story, former editor in Pretoria and a Boer sympathizer, says that if England is waging a war of conquest the Transvaal and Orange Free State will fight to a finish, but otherwise peace terms guaranteeing independence will be considered. The English press ridicules the offer. The British will invade the Free State with 70,000 men. Gen. White will lead one party.

NEW YORK.—Edward John Phelps, former minister to Great Britain and for nearly 20 years Kent professor of law at Yale, died after an illness of two months at the age of 77 years.

CHICAGO.—Robert Griffith, one of the aldermen representing the 25th ward, died at his home, 1168 Sheridan road, of pneumonia, at the age of 52.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 10, 1920.

HOUSTON, Tex.—A cablegram sent by P. J. Blackmon, manager of the Magnolia Petroleum company of Tampico, to S. J. Byington of Houston states that "Pat" Foley, an employé of the company, had been killed by Mexican bandits. James M. Arthur of Nogales, Ariz., manager of the Mexican Consolidated Mining company, is being held for ransom by Mexican bandits.

CINCINNATI, O.—State Senator Jesse Bloch of West Virginia, racing from California by special trains, autos, and airplane at an expense of more than $5,000, left here on the last lap of his trip for Charleston, where the stake is "Votes for Women in 1920." The senate is tied, 14 to 14, on ratification of the federal constitutional amendment and on his vote depends the outcome there. Assent of three more states is needed to ratify the amendment. Washington and Delaware vote on it on March 22, so it's up to West Virginia. Two other states, Vermont and Connecticut, have yet to vote on the amendment but their legislatures have not been called.

CHICAGO.—The marriage of Miss Katherine Eleanore Pick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pick, 3941 Fine Grove avenue, and Walter Louis Gold of Milwaukee will take place today at the home of the bride's parents.

CHICAGO.—Dr. Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois, has tendered his resignation because of ill health. He is 64 years old. His resignation was read at a meeting of the board of trustees at Urbana. He will be made president emeritus, dating from Sept. 1, 1920, and it is understood that Dr. David Kinley will succeed him.

PIUS XI. TO THE AMERICANS.

Chicago, March 7.—The caption of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of March 7, "Pius XI. to the Americans," is in fact, if not in intention, misleading. The pope was not addressing Americans, directly or indirectly. He was lamenting the sorry pass to which youth had come. He wished to illustrate his contention. At worst the pope was voicing a fear that has been so often to the fore in Europe. The authenticity of this might be well supported by the current news and editorial comment of THE TRIBUNE. In its crusade against the ravages that Volsteadism has worked on American boys and girls the pope could have easily found apposite confirmation for his conference with the selected Lenten preachers of Rome. And, assuredly, there was about the speech less of that tone of infallibility than the editorial in question so modestly assumes. At all events, the pope was speaking for an institution of which he is the spiritual head. There is hardly any discounting this fact. And who shall deny him this liberty? Can THE TRIBUNE assert, with equal truth, that it is the unquestioned mouthpiece for three-fourths of the American people? With all due allowance for its genuine greatness, THE TRIBUNE would hesitate over this assumption. One thing about the Catholic church that fair-minded Americans are agreed on: it tends to its own business. THE TRIBUNE, great protagonist against organized reform, might be led, all unconsciously, into that mentality which it so heartily detests. And, after all, reading lessons to an institution that has a reputation for a rather competent equipment, and a long history in which to test it, is, to put it mildly, somewhat jaunty. T. V. SHANNON.

NOT EX CATHEDRA.

Chicago, March 7.—Your editorial, "Pius XI. to the Americans," correct in spirit, is, however, based upon false premises. Your information upon the office, power, and authority of the pope is untrue.

As we Americans regard the Supreme court of the United States, so do we Catholics regard Rome—viz.: as the seat of adjudication of ecclesiastical or canon law.

What the Supreme court of the United States, sitting as the judicial branch of the American government, rules is one thing; what an individual justice in a public speech might say is quite another. So far as the governmental theory of the Catholic church is concerned, the positions of the pope and the chief justice of the United States Supreme court are very similar.

What the pope says when he is speaking ex cathedra; that is, when he is rendering a decision, so to speak, on Catholic doctrine of faith or morals, he asserts as the supreme court of the Catholic church (after, of course, the subject has been discussed, debated, and argued in the college of cardinals), while what he says publicly, either as the pastor of his universal flock or as an individual, is merely opinion, advice, or counsel. In the instance to which you refer he was not speaking ex cathedra; he was admonishing Catholics in America.

The pope does not arrogate to himself the right to interfere with the private lives and habits of non-Catholics; neither does he, in fact, assume that right with those of his own faith. He does take the liberty to voice his opinions. KATHLEEN E. GALLAGHER.

WHAT THE FANS WANT.

Blue Island, Ill., March 4.—Why must White Sox ball fans be bothered seeing Edward Burns' writings about the well known bag of wind, Whataman Shires? We don't care if he reports to the Sox or not. The club has a good first baseman in Pud Clancy, so why worry about one who is too conceited for his own good and who is too foolish to realize it? If Mr. Burns would give us the dope on those fighting youngsters the Sox have secured to play ball this season and forget the bragging Shires, we would appreciate it. I am not criticising Mr. Burns. He is a good sports writer, but please tell him to forget Shires.

White Sox fans want to know about every man on the team, what they are doing, how they shape up as future big league ball players, and how those old standbys, who are greater light now than Shires ever will be, such as Faber, Thomas, Lyons, and others, are getting along in their training. Forget Shires. Forgetting him will be the quickest way of bringing him to his senses. C. A. R.

FISHING HOLES.

Fort Atkinson, Wis., March 5.—There are 10,000 lakes in Wisconsin in which first class fishing holes could be made by giving young fish protection from gar pike. All a gar pike asks is a lair, bottom free from tree tops and snags, and he will catch any fish that lives. Thousands of boys have been busy this winter getting out logs and tamarack poles for farm use and now have the opportunity to make fish protectors that will give them secret fishing holes in the lakes nearby.

Triangles, made of six sticks or logs and called tetrahelrons are the best, although some build log houses and sink them. Whatever form is used, the ends should be tied together and then bored for ¼ inch iron rods to pass through the iron ends hammered over to hold. Bolts are expensive and not necessary. Iron rods or wire can be picked up in every refuse lot. Logs ten feet long and 4 to 6 inches thick make the best fish houses. If green hardwood is used a stone or two tied on will sink them to the bottom, where they will lie without decay for a thousand years or more. A heavy house will not be pulled up with a fish line. Minnows darting around these houses easily escape the larger fish. The big fish hang around, hoping to get a meal of young ones, and thus, with a little wit and pleasant labor, you have a first class fishing hole. Two or three beef heads tied in the frame will furnish food and add to the charm of your fishing hole. The scent of the meat will draw both minnows and big fish to the place. Otherwise it would take a long time for them to discover your hide-out.

The writer sent a sketch of this plan to the New York state conservation department and got this from Commissioner Alexander Macdonald: "There can be little doubt of their efficacy. It would seem as though they should afford good protection to the young fish."
HALBERT LOUIS HOARD.

BIG AND LITTLE WARDS.

Chicago, March 3.—The election calendar issued by the election commissioners shows a total of 2,981 precincts in the city. If these were equally allotted each ward would have sixty precincts. At present the Thirteenth ward has 51 precincts and the Thirty-ninth ward has 114. While we are talking equal representation and reapportionment, let us make a start with our own city council. Thirteen wards have less than 46 precincts and nine wards have more than 90 precincts to the ward.

The vote of a person living in a lodging house on the lower west side is worth four to five times as much as the vote of the resident of Logan Square when it comes to representation in the city council. The members of the city council insist that Chicago is a council governed city and that they are a representative body. If so, let's have some prompt action on a plan for remapping the wards so that equal representation will become a reality instead of a joke. Let's go. R. P. WEIL.

THANK YOU.

Chicago, March 6.—Your editorial, "Jacobites and Jacobins" in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE was a masterpiece. Too bad that all people who can read and discriminate do not have the opportunity to peruse such articles of good judgment and sound facts. More speed to your doctrine of Americanism and your fearless editors who are not afraid to write facts. H. A. SCANLAN.

DENEEN'S WIFE DISCUSSES HER POLITICAL DEBUT

Stumps City as Senator Campaigns Downstate.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

One of the stiffest campaigns of his forty odd years of public life finds Senator Charles S. Deneen stumping the downstate counties, while Mrs. Deneen, for all these years as passive a politician as her husband has been an active one, has taken to the political platform in Chicago.

A distaste for the limelight hitherto has kept Mrs. Deneen off the stage, but always at hand behind the scenes through each of the campaigns that advanced Charles Deneen from post of ward committeeman to the Illinois legislature, then to the governor's mansion, and later to the United States senate.

Now that friends have convinced her that her presence and her voice at meetings in behalf of the Deneen ticket and her husband's renomination by the Republicans may weigh more heavily in public opinion than she can conceive, Mrs. Deneen has stepped resolutely, even if a bit timorously, to the front. Her method of campaigning has proved more feminine than professional.

Talks of Her Campaigning.

"It simply isn't in me to take the stand and tell people what a marvelous man my husband is," Mrs. Deneen said, with a smile, yesterday when confronted with a request to discuss her new activities. "I have to take it for granted that they are friendly to him and to the whole ticket because they come to those meetings. I think perhaps I might be able to do it for some one else—I'm not sure. But it comes too close to talking about myself to talk about my husband.

"There are real political speakers, too, at the gatherings, whose time is too valuable for me to take up for more than a few minutes at a time, and they surely do say enough nice things about him. As for me, I do think he's the best man I've ever known, and after all our years of married life I can say sincerely that he has higher ideals and has lived closer to them than any man I know—but to put that in a speech—well, it would be worlds easier for me to put it in writing. So I just content myself with assuring the people of our appreciation of their support and our awareness of how hard they are working."

Her Outlook on Life.

It may have been the family of four children she has reared, the exigencies of life in the governor's mansion at Springfield, where she was chatelaine for eight years, or the combined experiences of diverse years and associations in and out of politics that gave Mrs. Deneen her serene, yet interested outlook on life. As she expressed it herself:

"I've had an awfully full life, but I've also had a delightful time out of life. I know I'm getting older, but it's only because the birthdays are piling up. I'm keenly interested in what's going on, and I like to watch things happen."

Things have had a way of happening in the Deneen home at 457 West 61st place. There was the explosion of a "pineapple" beneath the front porch of the residence about two years ago. Mrs. Deneen was not in the house at the time.

"Of course it was a shocking thing," was her comment yesterday on the bomb that was tossed by still unidentified persons and which blew off the front porch of the senator's residence. "But as we were in Washington and no one was hurt, and none of my paintings and books in the front of the house were damaged to any extent, I felt it hardly called for hysterics."

Reminiscences of Office.

Unless it is her grandchildren, there are few topics Mrs. Deneen enjoys more than her reminiscences of days at Springfield and in Washington.

"My very brightest memory of our stay at Springfield was the visit of President Taft," she recalled, and paused to shake her head regretfully over the former President's death. "There was a terrific discussion, I remember, as to whether the reception we were giving for him should be held in the mansion or in the statehouse. Finally it was settled—the statehouse—and was a most enjoyable affair. When the President left (Maj. Archibald Butts was with him) he expressed to me his compliments on the occasion so enthusiastically that I was certain he had had an unusually good time in Springfield.

"On another occasion—one of the Lincoln anniversaries—we had Robert Todd Lincoln, Ambassador Jean Jules Jusserand of France, and the English ambassador there for dinner and speaking, which was at the armory. And still later we had Roosevelt—after he was President. Medill McCormick accompanied him at that time, and we had a breakfast for them in the mansion."

Why She Votes for Deneen.

One query left Mrs. Deneen groping for expression of one of the multitude of ideas that rushed to meet the question:

"Why would you vote for Mr. Deneen—provided you were not Mrs. Deneen?"

"Why! Why!" and Mrs. Deneen threw out both hands. "I couldn't possibly say all of the things I want to to that," she replied. "Why, his experience—his achievements—his ideals—there just aren't words enough to say it all. Here's a pamphlet that will tell you part of it."

The pamphlet is impressively long and legal and technical, and correspondingly dry. By way of confession, it wasn't read. But Mrs. Deneen had made it unnecessary to peruse it to find out what kind of a man she believes her husband to be.

FEARS REDS DAMAGE NEW YORK BUSINESS; SEEK DEPORTATIONS

New York, March 9.—(Special.)—The first communists who have been held in jail without bail since the riot in Union Square last Thursday will have a hearing in court tomorrow morning on a charge of unlawful assembly.

The Chamber of Commerce of New York launched a "militant fight" against the communists tonight with the formation of a committee that will work through patriotic societies, as well as governmental agencies, to deport "ship loads' of aliens and induce employers to discharge all employés with radical tendencies.

In announcing this action, the chamber disclosed that in its opinion business conditions here are menaced by communist activities.

Police Commissioner Grover Whalen's account of the activities of his secret agents in investigating communists here drew criticism today from Socialist leaders, who, however, disclaimed any sympathy "with the aims and methods of communism."

ALDERMEN PLAN ACTION TODAY ON S. SIDE TERMINAL

A step toward a solution of the south side railway terminal problem is expected today when the city council terminal committee will ask the Illinois Central to reveal the terms of the invitation it extended to other roads to share its proposed new terminal.

Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th], chairman of the committee, said if he finds that the terms which other roads have rejected cannot be met the Illinois Central will be asked to go ahead immediately with the construction of its new station, which will cost from $15,000,000 to $18,000,000.

If, however, there is only a slight variance between the rental which the Illinois Central asks and the figure which other roads are willing to pay, an effort will be made to effect a compromise. Regardless of the outcome of the effort to induce others to share the terminal, Ald. Kaindl said, the committee will have a definite basis on which to work in forcing the Grand Central, La Salle street, and Dearborn station groups to build new terminals.

Seek Robber Who Fired at Girl Cashier of Theater

The police last night were seeking a bandit who fired one shot at Miss Barbara Coleman, 20 years old, 2227 South Ridgeway avenue, late Saturday night, after he had robbed her of $25 at the Milo theater, 1821 South Loomis street, where she is employed as a cashier. The manager, Gust Mrusele, had just taken $500 from the cashier's cage. Drawing a gun, the man demanded all the money. When given $25 in change he apparently became angered at the small amount and fired at the cashier's cage as he ran to an auto, where an accomplice was waiting. The bullet struck a glass panel over Miss Coleman's head.

Reynolds, vice president; G. J. Downing, secretary; G. V. Rountree, treasurer, and E. H. Lamp, sergeant at arms.

FLORIDA G. O. P. LEADERS RESIGN TO BRING PEACE

Lakeland, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Glenn B. Skipper, Republican national committeeman for Florida, and E. E. Callaway, Republican state chairman, jointly announced their resignations from these offices today, and at the same time Mr. Skipper announced his decision not to be a candidate for congress from the First district.

The action of the two party leaders followed conferences here last night and today which were said to have resulted in a general agreement that harmony would prevail in the rank and file of the party if they were out as its heads.

William C. Howey of Howey-in-the-Hills, former Republican candidate for governor, said the resignations removed "the last possible object for conflict within the party."

TOM MIX VISITOR IN CITY; TELLS PLANS TO PRODUCE TALKIES

Tom Mix, cowboy of the films, visited Chicago yesterday. He arrived on the Chief of the Santa Fé line with the remark that he was thankful for the spring weather.

"My warm blood won't stand the cold," said Mr. Mix as he posed in his fawn colored outfit consisting of a fancy coat, waist length, and with a collar of coonskin, breeches that were wide at the hips and skintight on the legs, and cowboy boots.

"Yes, my horse, Tony, and I are going to make talkies," Mr. Mix continued, flicking a speck off his sleeve. "Just at present I'm bound for Peru, Ind. I'm going down there to get the Tom Mix-Sells Floto circus together and bring it to Chicago."

Charged with Laziness—

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

That persistent feeling of tiredness—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system. Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality, taxes our nerves and pulls us down physically and mentally.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, corrects acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the entire gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal, stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All these effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this 5-day test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids at small cost from Walgreen's Drug Stores and Economical Drug Stores or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and note how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If 5 days' use does not tell you volumes return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will cheerfully refund your money.

MUELLER LASHES REBEL REICHSTAG OVER YOUNG PLAN

Ratify Within 24 Hours or Dissolve, He Warns.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 9.—Chancellor Hermann Mueller tonight issued a 24 hour ultimatum to the parties of the government coalition in the reichstag enjoining them to accept the government's financial reform plan and ratify the Young plan. The chancellor warned that rejection of the Young plan would cause international complications and the formal dissolution of the reichstag.

Government parties spent all night and all day bartering for a compromise on the government's financial reform plan, which guarantees the smooth fulfillment of the Young plan.

Taxes Called Socialistic.

They failed to come to an agreement because the Socialists claimed that the government proposals favor the bourgeois industrialists, while the Centrists and German People's party complained bitterly that the new taxation plan is socialistic.

The Centrists and the German People's party continue to insist that the Young plan must not be ratified by the government until government finances are well balanced so as to insure regular payments to the allies.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht's resignation and denunciation of the "distorted Young plan" stiffened their resistance against a compromise with the Socialists. Opposition to a simultaneous ratification of the Young plan and the German-Polish liquidation agreement ordered by London and Paris is growing also because reports of Polish violations of minority agreement.

Dawes Plan Is Alternative.

This revolt in the ranks of government supporters endangers the Young plan. Chancellor Mueller cracks the whip in tonight's ultimatum in a last desperate effort to bring them back into line. He left no doubt in the minds of party leaders that he is convinced that a "rejection of the Young plan means a dissolution of the reichstag and continued payments of the full quota of reparations payments under the Dawes plan."

Chancellor Mueller's opponents, on the other hand, indorse the stand of the Nationalist deputy, Von Freytag-Loringhoven, who yesterday on the reichstag floor declared in effect that the United States would not resent Germany's rejecting the Young plan.

INCOME TAX RETURNS THIS WEEK TO SHOW PROSPECTS FOR CUT

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Treasury officials are awaiting the first definite information as to the effect of the stock market crash on tax revenues in the income tax returns to be filed this week. A shrinkage in revenue from the high mark of last year is expected, but the treasury experts admit that they are entirely in the dark as to how great the reduction may be. Upon the volume of revenue this year will hinge a decision as to whether the administration will recommend that the recent tax cut be made permanent.

Income tax revenues in the quarter ended March 31, 1929, amounted to 676 million dollars, a gain of nearly 80 millions over the corresponding quarter of the previous year. Income tax revenues for the entire calendar year 1929 amounted to about two and one-half billions, an increase of more than 330 millions over 1928. The abnormal increase was attributed partly to huge profits in the stock market.

Income tax returns must be filed with collectors of internal revenue not later than midnight next Saturday.

SET 5 INCENDIARY FIRES IN GARAGE; TRUCKS DAMAGED

Five incendiary fires broke out simultaneously last night in the garage of the Motor Transportation company at Lake street and Racine avenue, where twenty-three city sprinkling trucks are stored. Several of the city's trucks and several belonging to the Tobey Furniture company were damaged, with a loss estimated by Chief Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan at $2,000.

The fire started while Mike Chappell, 1901 West Huron street, the watchman, was asleep in the office. When a watchman at a neighboring garage awoke him, he found three fires burning in the main garage and two others blazing in a wooden annex, separated from the main building by a fire wall.

In several of the furniture trucks, firemen found burlap sacks soaked in oil. Joseph F. Ryan, 5539 Quincy street, superintendent of the garage, said the company had had no labor trouble and knew no reason for the fires.

ASK GRACE ON TAX BILLS.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 9.—[Special.]—More than 2,000 West Allis residents have petitioned for an extension of time for paying their taxes, John Hackett, city treasurer has announced. About $300,000 of West Allis' taxes remain unpaid, the treasurer said.

BUSINESS MAN TELLS INTERESTING STORY

MR. ROY A. SIEGELSEN

Wife certainly gave right advice

"A man in my business is subject to frequent colds and coughs, because he's constantly exposed to the weather," says Mr. Roy A. Siegelsen of 2912 35th Ave, Minneapolis. "Our winter's very long and cold and I'm busy delivering fuel all over the city. I had a bad cough this winter that nothing relieved. Then my wife said to take REM and it helped me at once. It's strange how she happened to hear of it. One day she had a very bad cough and a friend told her she had something to relieve her. My wife said she didn't believe anything would help that cough. Well, this friend gave her a dose of REM, and it gave her such quick relief that she went right away to the drug store and got herself a bottle of it. The good results she got from it sold me on it too."

A Lily of France Duosette . . .

And a new figure is the first essential for 1930 smart frocking. For the ladylike spring mode has no sympathy for the unrestricted waistline.

It demands, rather, a graceful high bust . . . a gentle curve of slender waist and hip . . . and the Duosette achieves just that by its artistry of design.

The supple model illustrated, of crepe de chine with silk elastic inserts, has absolutely no boning. It has a lovely allover lace top with uplift bust that is cut low at the back.

LUTHERANS OPEN PRAYER CRUSADE AGAINST RUSSIA

Strike First Blow in Religious War.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 9.—First blows in the crusade of prayer in behalf of the persecuted Christians in Russia were struck today in all Lutheran churches in northern Europe. Similar services will be held later by the Roman Catholic church, under orders of Pope Pius; the orthodox church, the Church of England, and numerous others.

For the last fortnight Baltic papers have published scores of letters relating to the terrorist activities of the cheka against believers in Russia, and how Dictator Joseph V. Stalin's determination to communize villages by establishing communal farms is resulting in arrest and banishment, not only of families of orthodox priests and Lutheran pastors, but of families, whose heads occupy positions on church boards and other religious organizations.

Cruel Expulsion Decree.

The expulsion decree is carried out with incredible cruelty, according to letters received, which tell how mothers with new born babies are obliged to accompany their husbands in banishment. Several cases are reported where mothers left their infants in care of relatives because of the fear of cetrain death facing them in the long ride in unheated freight cars, without sanitary accommodations, which carry exiled families to Siberia.

One of the women, a sister of a Lutheran pastor here, writes hopelessly what she believes to be her last letter after receiving notification that her husband, herself and children must entrain the following morning.

"The population seems to be thoroughly cowed and spiritless, for the slightest indication of revolt against cheka action results in death sentences for a number of peasants," the letter says. "The number killed depends on the size of the village. In our village 18 youths were shot after a cheka provocateur had organized them into a band, planning to ambush the cheka punishing corps.

Property Is Seized.

"Their families are accompanying us, and from our homes we are only permitted to take a change of clothing, a small quantity of food and $15 cash—if we have that much. Our property will be divided among the poorer families of the village, who will be forced to join the newly organized collective farm. Our church has already been converted into a club."

All letters close with an appeal for help, and a local Lutheran pastor, the Rev. Mr. Sanders, has organized a society to collect funds to repatriate Latvian families living in Russia. Today a committee visited President Gustav Jemgals, who is also petitioning the government to appropriate funds, since the cabinet has already decided to issue visas to 60,000 Letts in Russia, who are able to obtain the soviet government's permission to leave.

Thus far the bolsheviks have granted few visas. President Jemgals promises government aid, but replied that Moscow considers the Letts are Russian citizens and there is faint hopes of them leaving Russia, as Latvia is unable to intervene.

Governments of Lithuania, Esthonia, Poland and Finland are all facing the same problem.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Harrisburg, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Emma Fox, 60, of this city, was killed instantly last night when she stepped from an interurban car in front of a Big Four passenger, near Muddy. Mrs. Fox is the eighth person to be killed in the same vicinity recently.

OVER ONE-HALF OF NATION'S FARMS NOW UNDER MOSCOW RULE

MOSCOW, March 9.—(AP)—Soviet Russia is making tremendous strides in the conversion of millions of small farms into great collective farms under state supervision, according to official statistics issued today by the commissariat of agriculture.

Up to March 1, the report says, 55 per cent of all the farms in the soviet union, representing 14,264,000 peasant households, had been combined into 110,200 collective farms covering an area of approximately 220,000,000 acres.

The average area of each collective farm is about 2,000 acres. The report adds that 48⅓ per cent of the cattle in Russia belongs to peasants, who have entered the collective farms.

WORLD'S FLYING TROPHY FOR 1929 GOES TO COSTE

PARIS, March 9.—(AP)—The International League of Aviators, whose headquarters are here, has awarded its international trophy for 1929 to Dieudonne Costé, French ace, for the finest series of aviation performances during the year.

The national trophy for the United States was given to James H. Doolittle, formerly a noted army flyer and now working for a civil aviation company.

Costé, in addition to holding the world's record for long distance flights in a straight line, set up several new records for closed circuit flights.

DIES FROM STAB WOUNDS.

J. D. McElroy, colored, 4245 Wabash avenue, died yesterday at the Bridewell hospital of wounds received in a fight with Leo McLain, colored, three weeks ago. McLain is in the Bridewell hospital also suffering from knife wounds.

DR. COOK OUT OF PRISON AND CHICAGO BOUND

Says North Pole Flights Prove His Story.

Leavenworth, Kas., March 9.—(AP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, physician-explorer, today was freed from the federal penitentiary here on parole. He motored to Kansas City and took a train there for Chicago.

Erect of figure, appearing ten years less than his 65 years, Dr. Cook said he would dedicate his immediate future to a study of a cure for narcotic degeneration. As night interne in charge of the medical services at the prison, he already has made some progress in his research.

Thinks Amundsen May Be Alive.

Dr. Cook expressed the belief that aerial polar expeditions executed since he entered prison nearly five years ago, had substantiated his claims to discovery of the north pole in 1908.

He said that he does not believe that Capt Roald Amundsen, lost together with the other members of an aerial expedition flying to the rescue of the crew of the ill-fated Italian dirigible Norge, was killed in the crash of the plane.

Dr. Cook, a former exploring companion of Capt. Amundsen, said the latter was well enough educated in the ways of the north to live for two years on seals and other northern game and finally work his way across the ice to civilization.

Paroled to a Chicagoan.

Although admitting the urge for polar exploration still holds a lure, Dr. Cook said he feels he is too old to undertake such efforts again. His immediate destination is Chicago, where he has been, paroled to Dr. P. F. Thompson, a lifelong friend and fellow explorer.

After spending some time in Chicago, the physician may return to Texas to make his home. He came to the Leavenworth prison under sentence of 14 years and 9 months for using the mails to defraud in connection with an oil promotion scheme in Fort Worth.

DIES SUDDENLY IN HOME.

Mrs. Katherine Bolenbaugh, 60 year old widow, was found dead yesterday in a bedroom in the basement of the rooming house she operated at 1326 West Jackson boulevard, by neighbors. She was a sufferer from heart disease.

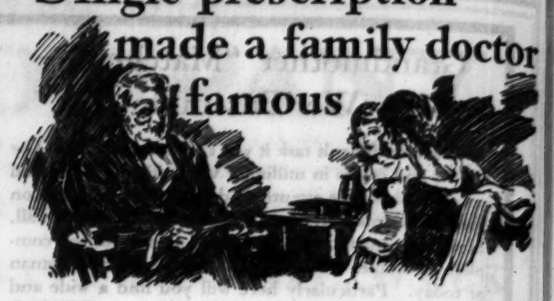
SAFE FOR ALL THE FAMILY

Single prescription made a family doctor famous



SELDOM has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than the one which Dr. Caldwell performed back in 1885 when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote this prescription as he found men, women, and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, poor appetite, or lack of energy, etc. And it invariably relieved these symptoms so much more pleasantly, so much quicker than other things, that his patients simply had to tell other people about it.

The demand for this prescription grew so fast that by 188 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use and supply drug stores with it. Today you can get the generous bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, at all drug stores.

When you or your children suffer from any of the symptoms of constipation, it will pay you to remember this safe, pleasant-tasting, effective laxative; made only from herbs and other pure ingredients; a real corrective for constipation. A doctor's 47-year experience behind this formula.

New features of the FORD TRUCK

NEW SPIRAL BEVEL GEAR REAR AXLE—Strength, reliability and long life

THE Ford 1½-ton truck is a haulage unit carefully designed to provide unusual performance under a wide variety of conditions, and long, reliable service at minimum cost. With 4-speed transmission and 40-horse-power engine, the Ford truck has a remarkably flexible range of speed and power.

Rugged strength is a feature of the Ford truck. An important example is the new rear axle. It has a special spiral bevel gear, with straddle-mounted pinion. The axle shafts are heavier than formerly, and because of the three-quarter floating type of axle construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of truck or load.

The new front axle and spring are stronger and heavier, as are front radius-rod, king-pins, wheel bearings and thrust bearings. Brakes on the front wheels have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear wheels, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety. Brakes are of the mechanical type, internal expanding, and all are fully enclosed. Controls have been redesigned, and operate with minimum effort.

Dual rear wheels are available at small additional cost. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout with the dual equipment. All six steel disc wheels and tires are interchangeable. Only one spare wheel and tire need be carried.

DAY'S RUN TAKES TRIBUNE CAR TO LAND OF SPRING

Good Highways Lead to Kentucky's Jonquils.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., March 9.—[Special.]—Four hundred and ten miles of pavement that can be driven in twelve or fourteen hours connects Chicago with this romantic old town. And here can be found spring, weeks before the season settles upon the shores of Lake Michigan.

Jonquils are blooming, the lilac buds are bursting, and robins, cardinals, martins and wrens are nesting in Lexington cemetery, where rest the bodies of Daniel Boone and Henry Clay. Kentucky's famous blue grass is now green on the horse farms hereabouts where such turf heroes as Man O' War graze.

Lexington, founded as a fort against Indian attacks during the revolutionary war and incorporated in 1782, half a century before Chicago received its charter, is the western gate to the scenic and historic sections of Kentucky and Tennessee that will attract many Chicago motorists between now and June. THE TRIBUNE'S road car was sent here to survey pavement conditions.

Start Down Illinois.

The present route out of Chicago is over Illinois 1, the Dixie highway, U. S. 41, south from Hammond, Ind., is preferred under ordinary conditions but there is now a three mile stretch of soft gravel near Morocco, Ind., which Indiana plans to pave early this season. A detour leads to Watseka, Ill., then east on U. S. 24 to U. S. 41 at Kentland, Ind., south on 41 nine miles and then over U. S. 52 to Indianapolis. U. S. 52 is the shortest route from Indianapolis to Cincinnati but there is a detour during spring thaws around twenty miles of gravel that will be concreted this year. The preferred route out of Indianapolis at present is on U. S. 20 to Richmond, Ind., and U. S. 27 to Cincinnati. U. S. 25 connects Cincinnati with Lexington.

The eighty-five miles from Chicago to Watseka furnishes a convenient exit from the metropolitan area, over Western avenue, and is a fair concrete road except for several sharp curves. U. S. 40, going east from Indianapolis, is the old National trail. It has a good cement surface, but is lined with quaint villages, some of which were founded as stations for stage coaches.

Six Lane Roads Provided.

Cincinnati, community of a million people, has thrived on a river commerce, such as Chicago will enjoy with the completion of the Illinois waterway. This metropolis of the Ohio river, founded in 1788 is entered on a modern boulevard that extends for miles into the hills above the city. Where the traffic becomes heavy the roadway is divided by iron button markers into six traffic lanes. By keeping autos in lanes, pavement serves traffic out of proportion to its width.

In the business district that congestion is as great as it is in the loop. Cincinnati has various restrictions, almost every fifty feet of downtown curb bearing notice of a regulation. Parking rules are enforced—a distinction from Chicago.

South of Cincinnati, on U. S. 25, is a new concrete road winding through the scenic hills in curves.

The traffic on the narrow streets of Lexington, city of 61,900, sometimes reflects the gracious courtesy of which Dixie is so proud. THE TRIBUNE car came face to face with a street car on a street where parked machines left only one free lane. The motorman stopped the street car and with polite gestures guided the automobile while it was backed into a space at the curb so the electric could pass.

From here, THE TRIBUNE trail recommended by the Chicago Motor club for spring tours, heads farther south.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—A new congressional move to remedy the open bridge evil at Chicago has been initiated by Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the Illinois delegation in the house.

On the invitation of the Chicago representative, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley had agreed to coöperate with the Illinois delegation in conducting a thorough investigation of the bridge situation at Chicago with a view to effecting relief for pedestrian traffic.

Mr. Britten's plan, which is acceptable to Secretary Hurley, is to have the war department head sit with the Illinois delegation in congress at a hearing where both the navigation interests and representatives of Chicago's pedestrian traffic would be heard. War department engineers responsible for the recent decision refusing Chicago's application for longer open bridge hours and less interruption while the bridges were supposed to be closed would be present at the hearing.

Mr. Britten plans to have the war department officials explain their views and answer such inquiries as Chicago interests wish to ask them. By bringing navigation interests, city representatives and war department officials together for a common discussion of the problem, Mr. Britten believes that a solution can be found which will give the city relief from conditions which impose a hardship on pedestrian traffic.

Following his call at the war department this morning, Mr. Britten said: "Secretary Hurley said he would be glad to sit with the Chicago representatives in congress or the entire Illinois delegation working out a solution of the bridge problem. I believe that he will give both sides a sympathetic hearing and I am hopeful that an arrangement can be worked out that will be satisfactory to all interests.

Both Parties Agree to Meet.

"I asked Mr. Hurley if he would sit with the committee and if he would have engineering officers present who could explain the war department viewpoint. He said he would be glad to coöperate with us whenever a date could be arranged.

"I have discussed the matter with other members of the Illinois delegation and they are all ready to meet in the naval committee room when the time is ripe. Invitations have been sent to Chicago officials and to the navigation interests there asking their coöperation. I believe that if the pedestrians and navigation interests agree to appear before the Illinois delegation that a solution can be found."

"The secret of all true greatness is simplicity"
—SENECA

CERTAINLY the secret back of the greatness of Hydrox, the institution, is directly traceable to the simplicity of Hydrox, the food.

We venture to say that in Seneca's own day the simplest—and by the same token the greatest—of all foods was none other than the simple, wholesome goodness of pure cream and milk and fresh fruits. This, the simplicity of Hydrox, is the secret of its deliciousness.

Incidentally, the fact that Hydrox now serves nearly a gallon of ice cream to every man, woman, and child in the Chicago territory is evidence of the greatness to which this wholesome simplicity is leading.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—Despite his infirmities, Rogers Hornsby performed sensationally with his bat against Los Angeles today. Wilson and Stephenson also did things worthy of mention. Beyond this, however, the exhibition against the Angels was more or less of a side splitting farce, with the major leaguers beating their little brothers, 17 to 12.

Hornsby's attacking contributions began in the first round and were not concluded until the ninth. In the opening inning he hit a double. In his next three appearances he kept the 6,000 spectators interested with two singles and a long fly. Then he went in for amusement on a bigger and better scale. He hoisted a homer to left in the seventh, and in the ninth aimed an equally long blow over the barrier on the opposite side of the field. Altogether he accounted for four runs.

Wilson Hits Over Fence.

The efforts of the other two clouting members of the Chicago trio were of various kinds. Wilson cut loose a homer with two on in the third, an inning that produced five runs. Stephenson assisted in this jamboree with a single. He also singled on two other occasions, one in the second, helping a runner around, and one in the fifth, driving two men home.

Boss McCarthy employed three of his young hurlers, and what he saw didn't make him chuckle. Louis Warneke labored through the first three rounds and would have been a success if five Angel runs hadn't overtaken him in the third. Then it was Malcolm Moss' turn. He was lucky to escape with no more than two runs against his record. Next came Lynn Nelson, reputed the class of the rookies, but the fashion in which his fast ball was knocked around the premises indicated he was far from being worth the $30,000 paid for him.

The Cubs' first round didn't produce any runs, but it at least showed that Hornsby had recovered his batting eye, which had failed to function the day previous. In his first appearance the Rajah bumped a drive against the top of the screen in right field. He made two bases on it, which was all that could be expected of a one legged runner. The hit didn't help, because it came after a double play had eliminated the one runner on base.

Cuyler Scores on Sacrifice.

The second inning brought a lone Cub tally, which was their way of working up to the explosion due in the next chapter. This run was started by Cuyler, who survived on a fumble by Jacobs at first. Stephenson hit to right and Cuyler moved to third. L. Bell lost no time hoisting a fly to Statz in center, Cuyler scoring after the catch.

The accumulation of five big league tallies in the third began when Grimm walked with one out. Hornsby slammed a single into right, putting Grimm on third. This was where Wilson hung up three runs on one smack. He sailed his homer far into the right field bleacher. Then Cuyler and Stephenson singled, and L. Bell drove them across with a double to right center.

The Angels' third had a peculiar resemblance to the period the Cubs had just staged. Moore started it by lining one of Warneke's offerings into the bleacher in right. The next inning was a pass to Sigafoos. Harper followed with a single that Wilson fielded around a bit before picking up, this permitted Sigafoos to score and Harper to reach second. The matter was complicated by a pass to Jacobs. Antista supplanted Statz and obliged by fanning. Dittmar punched a double against the left field bricks, scoring Harper and putting Jacobs on third. Two more runs scored when Parker looped a single into right. This

SPORT SALARIES NO LONGER INCITE RIOTS; TOO BIG

Babe's $160,000 Contract Just Business.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Throughout the negotiations leading up to the happy consummation of the treaty of St. Petersburg, I noticed a complete lack of that bias with which, in years past, the baseball correspondents discussed the business disagreements between the ball players and their employers.

This indicates to me that we chaps who thump the drum for the big shows in sport are not as sensitive over matters of right and wrong as we used to be, because in this instance either Babe Ruth or Colonel Jake Ruppert was in the wrong to the extent of $115,000, and I can remember when a dispute over a difference of $500 between the prices bid and asked for a ball player's services evoked the most scornful essays.

In those pieces written by reporters with a capitalistic sympathy, the player was always a "holdout," a "recalcitrant" and a "bolshevik" and the writers with left-wing tendencies, in their zeal for the labor movement in sport, denounced the magnate as a "tightwad" a "money lover" and a "nickel nurser."

What's in It for Them?

But in the recent dispute over values between the Babe and the Colonel, involving at the outset the difference between $255,000 for three years and $140,000 for two years, the articles from the south, although vibrant with the huge importance of the issue, were as impartial as an A. P. report of an unidentified man found dead off Staten Island and presumed to have fallen off a scow.

Perhaps the reason for this is that the correspondents have come to realize that so far as they personally are concerned the rights and wrongs of such disputes are matters of the utmost inconsequence. Experience has showed that if, thanks to daily partisan dispatches in the papers, a magnate shall carry his point and save some money or a player, by the same aid, shall enforce his terms and acquire some money, the status of the reporter remains just what it was before, except that he has incurred the enmity of the interest which he in his conscientious enthusiasm was bold enough to oppose.

The political reporter, local, state or nation, who promotes a cause eventually resigns to become secretary to the commissioner of parks, associate member of the state lunacy commission, or something harmless in the U. S. bureau of standards, but the sport writer who gives his support to one side or the other seldom wins to any corresponding position of nominal work on full pay.

Think of Christmas Time.

The zeal of the left wing permitted of even less suspicion than that of the capitalistic crowd because it is customary for major league firms to remember their friends with orders for bathrobes and hats at Christmas time, which might be regarded as subtle bribery, but I have yet to hear of any ball player giving anybody anything gratuitous.

Moreover, the proceeds of the sport industry have risen to such stupendous totals in the era since the war that men whose own ambitions are gauged to the modest rewards of journalism naturally think of them with no more personal interest than a bank clerk feels in scanning a clearing house report.

In the days when Jack Dempsey was going through his training pranks at his various camps, preparing to fight for money measured in units of a quarter million, a half million or a million, I never experienced the faintest twinge of envy, not because of any Jesuitical renunciation, but merely because I felt that such moneys were not for me and never would be. The mere difference between the

The Boilermakers have carried on from a football championship to a basketball championship—two undefeated teams in a season.

While the football title was a bit of a novelty, the basketball crown is nothing unusual, for the Boilermakers have won or shared the title five times in the last ten years. In those other five years Purdue was runner-up twice and never has fallen below fourth. This year they topped off that record with the first undefeated team in the Big Ten since Minnesota won ten and lost none in the season of 1918-1919.

Three Stars Exit.

The final game saw the exit of three of the "Big Four" from Big Ten basketball. The three seniors—Charles Murphy, Glen Harmeson, and Herman Boots—have carried on together for three years. This year they were reënforced by John Wooden, the "Indian rubber man" of Martinsville, and at the start of the second semester Harry Kellar. Those five swept opposition aside, only one conference game being close. After defeating Ohio State, 60 to 14, the Boilermakers were forced into overtime the next week to defeat the Buckeyes, 27 to 25.

Outstanding in college basketball for three years, so much so that he has been signed by the Chicago Bruins to play professional basketball, is Stretch Murphy, probably the greatest center in Big Ten history. Murphy, most famed for his six feet six inches of length and great scoring ability, was a star as a prep, but he more than lived up to that reputation in college.

As a sophomore he was runnerup in Big Ten individual scoring. Last year he broke the modern scoring record with 143 points in twelve games and this year he scored 137 points in ten games. Had Purdue played the normal conference schedule of twelve games, there is little doubt Murphy would have set another record, as this year he averaged nearly 14 points a game, against barely 12 last year. He will be outscored this year by Branch McCracken of Indiana, but the Hoosiers' center plays 12 games, and in the first eleven had averaged 12.5 points a game.

Sets Individual Record.

In individual games Murphy also set a modern record when he scored 13 baskets and two free throws against Ohio. Only three times in more than twenty years has a Big Ten player scored 13 baskets in a game, in 1912 when Otto Stangl of Wisconsin performed the feat, and in 1906 or 1907 when John Schommer of Chicago is credited with the same mark, though the record books fail to show it.

Murphy's record was the more remarkable, as usually two men were set to guard him. It was not only in scoring, however, that he was a "coach's dream," but his great defensive ability, particularly under the basket and his coolness under fire.

Co-captain with Murphy this year was Glen Harmeson, Purdue's third,

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—The New York Americans returned home tonight and scored a 5 to 2 triumph over the Chicago Blackhawks in a National Hockey league game at Madison Square Garden. Despite the loss the Hawks retained their hold on second place.

Taking the offensive soon after the start, New York was first to score and never was headed, although it was tied for a short time in the opening period.

Norm Chimes gave New York its first score when he counted on a pass from Bullet Joe Simpson in 3:01.

Score Two in Second Period.

The Americans were successful in checking Chicago efforts to score until 14 minutes and nine seconds of the first stanza elapsed. Then Tommy Cook found the net after taking a pass from Earl Miller. The deadlock did not last long, for Rabbit McVeigh came through in 17:53 to put the Americans ahead once more. He tallied on a relay from George Patterson.

The Americans showed their hand in the middle period when they added two more goals. McVeigh again tallied on a pass from Patterson in 1:46. Following this the Americans played a strictly defensive game until George Massecar counted the fourth New York goal on a pass from Holmes in 11:50.

Holmes then gave the star spangled outfit its final marker when the final period was well under way. He took a pass from Billy Boyd who evaded the Blackhawks defense men in a dash from mid ice and flipped the rubber past Gardiner. Nearly six minutes later Miller, on a pass from Cook, scored the Hawks final goal.

WHEN FIGHTING IS FORGOTTEN

Paul Leberto and his little niece, Frances. Paul is the champion bantamweight on the Golden Gloves team. He has a record of 48 knockouts since he entered the ring. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Golden Glove Biography; How Leberto Found Punch

BY HOWARD BARRY.

If you walk down South Paulina street you'll come to a block in which there are rows of red brick houses interspersed with gray stone fronts and an occasional store. If it's a sunny afternoon, as yesterday was, the street will be alive with little Italian boys and girls lured out of doors by the soft, springlike air.

Before one of the red brick buildings there probably will be a wiry lad of about eighteen, rough housing with a tiny tot of two or three. Look up at the number. If it's 829, then Paul Leberto is the boy you see, and that's little Frances he's swinging and teasing and tickling.

Paul's dark Italian eyes light up amazingly as he chucks her under the chin and gets an ecstatic gurgle in return. And when he starts to tell about his other niece and his little nephew his voice takes on the soft southern drawl he acquired during his early days in Louisiana.

No Tougher in Ring.

That's one side of the boy. You see the other in a far different setting—white lights beating down on a roped arena, thousands of faces showing dimly through the shadows beyond, and a leather lunged announcer booming, "In this corner, Paul Leberto."

The brown eyes are not laughing now; they are keen and cold. No soft southern drawl is dropping from his lips. They are pressed together in a hard red line. The hands which tossed his little niece in the air lash out now with the power and punch which won him a place on THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves team as bantamweight champion.

That's the setting in which fight fans will see him March 19, when he steps into the Chicago Stadium ring to battle his New York opponent in the intercity bouts.

Making Wallops Pay.

Ever since those days when he and his brother Frank used to battle on the street corners of Bogalusa, La., Paul has thrown himself whole heartedly into the game.

This is how it began. When Paul was about nine or ten years old he and Frank got a great deal of honest pleasure out of walloping one another. Bogalusa was rather a drowsy place along toward midafternoon of a sultry summer day, with little for the villagers to do in the way of diversion and even less in the way of business.

So Paul and Frank decided to make their business the diversion of the townsfolk. Another brother, Joe, was enlisted as timekeeper and the trio became a wandering troupe with the streets of Bogalusa for its circuit.

Paul and Frank would battle three minutes at the corner of Main street and Cranberry avenue, collect a nominal contribution from well disposed onlookers and move on to the unexplored territory which lay in the neighborhood of 5th avenue and Cucumber lane.

Life Was Enjoyable.

Of course there were other fights—rollicking, knock down and drag out battles which were inevitable when the rival gang invaded the swimming hole. All in all, life was rather enjoyable around Bogalusa, roaming the swamps in search of ducks, fishing the bayous, and watching for the first wild geese in the autumn.

Yes, it was pleasant living there with his five boisterous brothers, his mother and his step-father. The boy had lost his father when very young. His parents had come over from Italy when his two eldest brothers were babies and had settled at Bogalusa.

When Paul was 12 years old the family decided to move up to Chicago. Work was scarce in Bogalusa and Paul's brothers were eager to make a start in a large city. So everybody piled into two Ford cars and headed northward. Five days and five nights they drove, through Mississippi mud, over Tennessee hills, across Illinois prairie, and at last pulled up on Chicago's west side with no more serious mishap than a flat tire.

Paul had gone as far as fifth grade in the south and now his education continued at the Schiller school, over on the corner of Federal and Penn. Later he changed to Jefferson and there finished eighth grade.

Then he went out looking for a job. It wasn't easy to find a good one and the best Paul could do was to go to work as an errand boy for a typesetting concern. It was pretty tough for

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., March 9.—Our White Sox gave the New York Giants another merciless blistering this afternoon, the score being 12 to 5. Other statistics continued even more discouraging to Mr. John J. McGraw.

Jim Moore led the carnival with homers in the seventh and eighth innings and a single in the fourth. Carl Reynolds and Irv Jeffries were runnersup, Carl with a homer, a double, and a single, and Jeff with successive singles the first four times he went to the plate.

After yesterday's game, Boss Donie told his hired men that he wanted to see more base running.

The boys carried out instructions and had the sluggish National leaguers looking like they were operating in deep sea divers' uniforms, especially in regard to the leaden moccasins.

Leslie, Jackson Score.

One of Moore's homers was inside the park, while Watwood's and Clancy's triples also called for some delightful sprinting.

The Giants' scoring enterprise was launched in the fourth. Reese walked and was forced by Leslie. Jackson doubled to left, scoring Leslie. Marshall banged a single off Cissell's glove, Jackson stopping at third. Jackson scored while Weiland was throwing out Farrell. Hogan ended it by flying to Moore.

The Sox hopped right into the spirit of things in the fifth and acquired a 3 to 2 lead. Cissell beat out a single to deep short. Clancy lined to Reese, but Riddle singled to left center. Jackson cut off the throw to third, and in attempting to get Riddle going to second threw the ball into right field. Cissell and Riddle scoring. Weiland struck out, but Jeffries came up with his third single and stole second, whence he scored on Hunnefield's single to right. Reynolds singled to right, Hunnefield stopping at second, but the foray was over when Jackson made a nice stop of Moore's grounder an' threw him out.

Weiland couldn't stand prosperity and blew his lead as follows: Meusel, batting for Walker, walked. Fullis also walked. Then Crawford doubled to right, scoring Meusel and Fullis. Cissell threw out Reese and caught Leslie's liner, but Jackson crashed a single off Weiland's glove, scoring Crawford. The inning ended when Jackson made a pitiable effort to steal on our young Mr. Riddle. The score was 5 to 3 in favor of the Giants.

Jack Scott went in to pitch at the start of the sixth and was welcomed with a triple by Watwood. He scored while Jackson was throwing out Cissell. Clancy tripled off the fence in left center, but died because Riddle fouled to Hogan, and Harris, batting for Weiland, fanned.

Lyons Holds Giants.

Lyons pitched for the Sox from the start of the sixth, which makes it unnecessary to speak of the Giant offensive from then on. Ted held them helpless except for a harmless single in each of the four innings.

The Sox, however, had just begun to fight. Jeffries pushed off the seventh with his fourth hit and stopped at second on Hunnefield's single. Reynolds forced Jeff at third. Moore then caromed the ball off the center field fence for his first homer, scoring Hunnefield and Reynolds ahead. Watwood got on because of Marshall's error, and after Cissell had flied out scored from first on Clancy's single.

Hunnefield walked after two were out in the eighth and scored when Reynolds knocked the ball over the faraway scoreboard in left field. Moore came up and duplicated Carl's blow.

Cissell carried out the fast running orders some more in the ninth. He singled, stole second, paused for two outs, and scored while Farrell was muffing Lyons' fly in front of the plate.

GOLDEN GLOVES FIGHTERS BEGIN TRAINING TODAY

Coaches Call Champions to C. A. A.

Tickets Sale Continues

There are 5,000 tickets for the Intercity Golden Glove bouts, March 19, on sale at The Tribune's Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. Reports that no more tickets are available are not true.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Members of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves boxing team which will meet New York in an intercity series of bouts at the Chicago Stadium on March 19, will settle down to an intensive campaign of training today.

Nothing has been overlooked to place this team in the best of physical condition. It will be trained the same as a football team for a championship battle. Competent instructors have been engaged to correct the boys' faults, and others will be on hand to supervise their road work.

C. A. A. Is Headquarters.

The Chicago team of sixteen fighters and alternates will be quartered at the Chicago Athletic association. They will do their road work in Grant park or at the Chicago Stadium. In the afternoons they will report in the Cherry Circle gymnasium to box with competent sparring partners.

The road work and general condition of the boxers will be looked after by Johnny Behr, physical instructor of the Illinois Athletic club, and S. H. Darwent, assistant athletic director at the C. A. A.; Jabber Young, who has been identified with amateur boxing for twenty years, and Benny Yanger, boxing instructor at the C. A. A., will coach the boys every day. E. C. Delaporte, physical director of the Cherry Circle club, also will aid in the squad's development.

When the team reports today it will be placed upon a training table diet. Lights in all rooms will be turned out at 10 o'clock and a close tab kept on the condition and weight of the fighters. If any of the boxers violate the training rules they will be dropped from the squad and alternates substituted.

Fortney Typifies Spirit.

The spirit of the fighters may be gathered from a conversation with Grant Fortney, THE TRIBUNE'S heavyweight champion. Grant is the sole support of his mother and sister. He drives a cab. Yesterday he dropped in at THE TRIBUNE office and asked permission to drive his cab in the mornings, train at the C. A. A. in the afternoons, and be with his mother in the evenings. This permission was granted. He is already in shape. If he wins his bout in the intercity series he may turn professional.

Johnny Behr, who has coached I. A. C. track and field teams to national and sectional A. A. U. championships, is enthusiastic over the prospects of the Chicago team.

Team Reports Today.

Members of the team are requested to report at the C. A. A. today between 1 and 3 o'clock. Quarters will be assigned to those who intend to stay at the club, while those who prefer to live at home will be given instructions regarding their general training. All, however, must report at the Cherry Circle club each afternoon to box, skip the rope, and go through whatever form of exercise is prescribed by those in charge of the team.

OFFICIALS PICKED FOR LOYOLA U. CAGE TOURNEY

John Schommer and Nick Kearns, two of the best known Western conference cage officials, have been appointed chief officials for the national Catholic interscholastic basketball tournament at Loyola university March 18 to 23. A staff of assistants will be picked this week from the ranks of college and high school officials.

Paul Leberto Packs Famous Knockout Blow

the little fellow, chasing all over the city on bitter cold winter days carrying type which sometimes weighed sixty pounds. But he stuck to it.

Then there came a night when Tony Canzoneri was fighting Ignacio Fernandez. Paul was sitting beside his radio in the little parlor of his home on Paulina street. He could hear the clamor of the crowd and listened with a catch in his breath while the announcer reeled off the story blow by blow. It was then Paul knew that some day he would be a fighter.

Paul Has 48 Knockout Victories.

A few days later he was walking down a street near his home when he encountered one of his particular enemies. The enemy was the son of the local barber and at the time was lounging before his father's shop. Well, one thing led to another and before long the boys were walloping one another with much gusto. The barber's son suddenly hit upon a strategic move, whirled around and disappeared into the inner regions of the shop. A minute later he was back with his father.

"I hated to hit him," Paul said afterwards, "because he was rather an old man. But what could I do. He grabbed me by the collar, punched me under the eye and then I didn't have any choice. I just let fly. Sock! Then I beat it."

That was only last spring, and immediately afterward, Paul decided to go in for fighting in a big way. He quit his errand boy job and began training at Barry's gym. In the last ten months he's had sixty fights, has won forty-eight by knockouts and has lost only four. No opponent has ever had him on the floor.

Paul will step into the ring March 19 against his New York bantamweight opponent, hoping that before the final gong is struck he will have 49 knockouts to his credit instead of 48.

CHASTAIN AND DE VOS VIE FOR WALKER BOUT

Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, yesterday agreed to accept the winner of the Clyde Chastain-Rene De Vos bout at the Chicago Stadium Friday night as the foe for Walker in the title holder's next defense of his crown, providing the victor makes a favorable enough impression to warrant a championship chance.

Kearns arrived in town late Friday from New York, where arrangements for a title bout between De Vos and Walker fell through, following failure to agree on terms. The New York Athletic commission had named De Vos as the man Walker must meet or face suspension.

Chastain recently reached the heights in the middleweight division when he arose from the floor to beat Harry Ebbetts. He is one of the four fighters on Friday night's card who has reached professional acclaim in Chicago. Harry Dublinsky, Harry Fierro and Paul Pantaleo are the other three.

Hornsby Finds Batting Eye as Cubs Win

One Hit, but Five Runs.

When the Cubs added five more in the fourth they adopted methods that were slightly unethical. They did all this scoring on one hit. Walsh, an ex-Cub, started to pitch and retired Hornsby, the first man to face him. Then Wilson walked and stole second. Cuyler fouled out, but Stephenson reached base on a bad throw and Wilson scored. L. Bell and Z. Taylor drew passes to fill the sacks. McCarthy decided this was a good spot to let Tolson appear before his former admirers. Old Slow Motion responded to the round of applause by slapping the ball into the right field bleacher, thus cleaning up the bases.

Hornsby, Wilson, and Stephenson resumed operations in the fifth, and two more tallies resulted. The Rajah singled to deep short, and Wilson looped a single into short right. Both advanced on Cuyler's infield out and were driven home when Stephenson singled down the first base line. The next tally entered in the Cubs' ledger was Hornsby's first homer, which disappeared over the left field fence in the seventh.

The Angels kept themselves in the laughable engagement by picking up a couple of runs in the fifth with three hits and two passes off Moss. Then they jumped on Nelson in the seventh. Before the Kansas City rookie could pitch a third out in this inning four Angels had scored on two singles, two doubles, a homer, and two passes. Nelson was slapped some more in the eighth.

Hornsby's second homer, which appeared in the ninth, was good for two runs. The Rajah pounded the ball over the screen in the right field corner after Grimm had singled. Grimm's hit scored Beck, who had doubled.

bid and asked prices in this case was considerably more than the rewards of the average lifetime in the press coop and the whole controversy therefore was just so big that description, not criticism, was all the boys could write.

In the negotiations between Babe Ruth and the colonel I did feel a mild sympathy for the Babe because I cut my cultural teeth on the covers of the Alger books in which the poor young man got rich and my social tendencies were turned in a certain direction by the muck-rakers at a very impressionable age.

I still retain the ignoble notion that money in large amounts is the principal goal of the largest number. But I have backslid somewhat from the teachings of the Tarbells and the Lewises since I had to deal with union electricians, carpenters and the like who would drop their tools and go into executive session, on my time, at $1.25 an hour, over the delicate jurisdictional problem of whether the electricians, the carpenters or just who should rip out some flooring in my modest bower to permit the electricians to install some wires which they had forgotten, on my time, at $1.25 an hour, in the first place.

I would have been pleased if the Babe had enforced his own terms, but now that he hasn't I feel a nice contentment, anyway, and I am afraid that my solicitude for the employé class, which once amounted almost to a fury against the oppressors, has yielded to self-interest. The masses who toil under the sign of the arm and hammer, including ball players and prize fighters as well as electricians and carpenters, seem to be doing quite well and, in my business, anyway, I see the need of a protective tariff to shield the baseball writers from the encroachment of predatory labor.

This Ultra-Violet Ray Treatment, however, is only a part of our Complete Scientific Treatment. For cases of "oily hair" it is sometimes used by itself.

For dry, tight scalps, brittle falling hair, itching or baldness, the Ultra-Violet Ray treatment is followed by vibratory and hand massage to loosen the scalp and increase circulation; by the gentle application of high-frequency current to electrify and tone the muscles and tissues, and whatever is required of ointments, or stimulating and nourishing medicants. These are applied to the scalp (not the hair) and gently warmed into it by the rays from the Infra Red Lamp.

Inside! Outside! Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The law says "No" to the spitter! But we all know there still exist hundreds of dirty places where the cigar-maker rolls the leaves with filthy fingers . . . and seals the ends with spit! In fact, more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Introducing the Boys Who Brought Purdue 2d Title

four letter man. The grinning "Harmy" was the only lad who was a member of both the championship football and basketball teams. Following the football season, in which he was the leading ground gainer of the eleven, Harmeson turned to basketball. A forward, but not an outstanding scorer, Harmeson is one of the finest floor men in the Big Ten. His outstanding defensive game was the one in which Purdue snapped Loyola's winning streak of 34 consecutive games. Harmeson held Waesco, one of Loyola's best forwards, to a single shot and no points in that game, as well as usually taking the tipoff.

Track and Baseball Next.

Seemingly tireless, Harmeson is as famed for his grace as for his speed, and he is without a peer in taking Murphy's tip. With the end of the basketball season Harmeson turns to baseball and track to follow the footsteps of his brother Hal and Elmer Oliphant, the only four letter men in Purdue's history.

Herman Boots, the back guard, leaves a hole that will be hard to fill, for, though Boots received far less mention than his teammates, he was a powerful factor in Purdue's record.

Half an inch over six feet and weighing 190 pounds, Boots was a rock who soared to grab rebounds, and his pivot was so fast and powerful it took a husky even to try to stop him. In addition he was the best long shot on the team, and it was he who put Purdue back in the running against Loyola with two long shots after the Chicagoans had got off to a six point lead.

With those three Purdue "had a tall club" for this season all set, but up came a sophomore who made it practically unbeatable in college ranks. He was Johnny Wooden, floor guard. Wooden, like Murphy, is a basketball genius. He had made a statewide reputation as a prep at Martinsville, Ind., and he more than lived up to it, so much so he's almost certain of being named for all-conference on most teams picked.

Wooden Lightning Dribbler.

Five feet nine inches tall, weighing 171 pounds, Wooden is a lightning low dribbler, snaking down the floor to under the basket shots in a manner to leave guards agape. Due to the need of watching him, Murphy got a flock of shots he might not otherwise have had this year. Coach Nels Norgrenn of Chicago phrased the situation confronting a rival coach, while watching Purdue win one of its games this year by saying, "You need to put two men on Murphy, and two men on Wooden. That doesn't leave many to score points." It put the team's power in two short sentences.

Those four were the big guns of Purdue's basketball this year. In fact, one couldn't go far wrong in picking an all-conference team by putting another good scoring man such as McCracken of Indiana or Foster of Wisconsin at forward and call it an all-conference team.

Yet Purdue needed a fifth man and after much experimenting Harry Kellar got the post when he became eligible at the beginning of the second semester. Kellar, one of the few non-Hoosiers ever to win a place on a Purdue basketball team, comes from Chicago, and in his prep days played under Ralph Jones at Lake Forest academy. The midget of the squad, standing five feet nine and weighing 165, Kellar is an excellent floor worker and dribbler with a deadly one-handed "hook" shot.

Claim of Track Foul May Tie Illini, Badgers

Charles A. Rawson, former United States senator from Iowa, who was referee of the twentieth annual indoor track and field championships of the Western conference held in the University of Minnesota field house Saturday night, may be called upon to rule whether Wisconsin won the meet or whether it tied with Illinois. The Badgers were credited with 21 points and the Illini with 18.

Victory hinged upon the relay race, which was run in two sections. Winners were determined by time. Wisconsin won the second section, but the time made by Indiana and Michigan, which finished first and second in the other heat, was faster than that of Wisconsin. Illinois was a close second to the Badgers.

After Wisconsin had won its heat and was assured of third place, all officials left the field house. An inspector on one of the turns claimed that Henke, the third runner for Wisconsin, had committed a foul. He was late in reporting, and Referee Rawson was on his way to Des Moines. The inspector insisted the foul was deliberate and has mailed a detailed account of the incident to the referee.

If Referee Rawson decides that Henke committed a foul, Wisconsin will be ruled out of the relay. In this event, two points would be taken away from Wisconsin, which would leave the Badgers 19. Illinois, instead of receiving one point for fourth place in the relay, would get two for third place and have a total of 19 points. Thus the two teams would be tied for the title.

There was another incident which developed considerable comment. Sherman Finger, coach of the University of Minnesota team, claimed that John Hass was entitled to third place in the 60 yard dash. One of the judges, it is said, overlooked the Gopher sprinter, while others at the tape contended that Hass beat Eddie Tolan of Michigan for second place. The event was won by George Simpson of Ohio State in :06 1-5, which tied the world's record.

DETROIT BEATS BRICKLAYERS IN SEMI-FINAL, 2-1

The Holley Carburetors of Detroit yesterday defeated the Bricklayers, 2 to 1, in the western semi-final match of the national soccer challenge cup competition at Sparta field, before a crowd of more than 3,500.

Alec Smith, the Brickies' new center forward, who formerly played with the Third Lanarks of Scotland, celebrated his first game in America by scoring in the first minute of play. Immediately after the opening whistle was sounded Smith passed to Cuthbert, who booted to McLean. The latter crossed the ball to Smith in front of the goal and Alec scored with a shot that gave Edwards no chance.

"DONT SHOOT!" cried the willowy Winona

"And why not, my gal?" demanded Wellington Threeves, thrusting his classic chin against her heaving bosom.

"Because," replied Winona, "you will not be annoyed at bridge by his huskiness any longer. He has promised that, if spared, he will change to OLD GOLDS, made from queen-leaf tobacco. Not a throat scratch in a trillion."

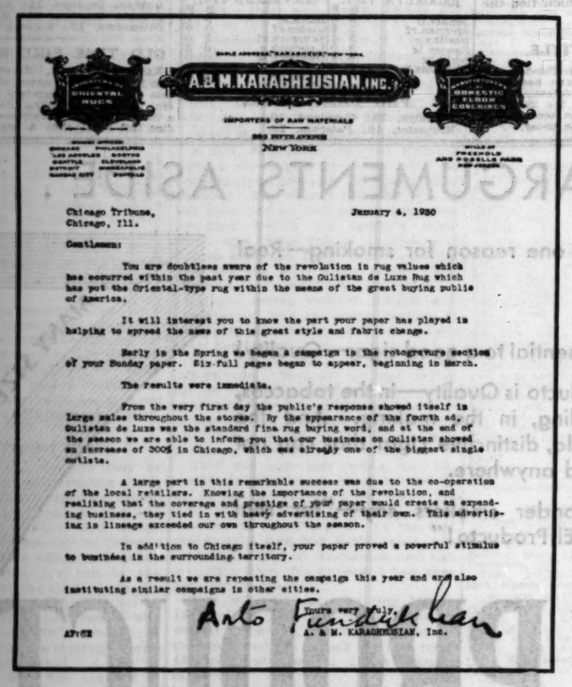
Tribune Rotogravure gets quick action and 300% increase in sales for

GULISTAN RUGS



A. & M. KARAGHEUSIAN, INC.
IMPORTERS OF RAW MATERIALS
New York

Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Ill.

January 4, 1930

Gentlemen:

You are doubtless aware of the revolution in rug values which has occurred within the past year due to the Gulistan de Luxe Rug which has put the Oriental-type rug within the means of the great buying public of America.

It will interest you to know the part your paper has played in helping to spread the news of this great style and fabric change.

Early in the Spring we began a campaign in the rotogravure section of your Sunday paper. Six full pages began to appear, beginning in March.

The results were immediate.

From the very first day the public's response showed itself in large sales throughout the stores. By the appearance of the fourth ad, Gulistan de Luxe was the standard fine rug buying word, and at the end of the season we are able to inform you that our business on Gulistan showed an increase of 300% in Chicago, which was already one of the biggest single outlets.

A large part in this remarkable success was due to the co-operation of the local retailers. Knowing the importance of the revolution, and realizing that the coverage and prestige of your paper would create an expanding business, they tied in with heavy advertising of their own. This advertising in lineage exceeded our own throughout the season.

In addition to Chicago itself, your paper proved a powerful stimulus to business in the surrounding territory.

As a result we are repeating the campaign this year and are also instituting similar campaigns in other cities.

Yours very truly,
A. & M. KARAGHEUSIAN, Inc.
Arto Funduklian

This experience of one of the world's largest rug manufacturers merits the attention of every manufacturer of nationally advertised goods who seeks volume sales.

ONE of the world's largest producers of Oriental rugs reveals the amazing record of the Sunday Tribune's selling power as applied to fine rugs

A. & M. Karagheusian, Inc., international organization long famous for Oriental rugs, began to make in America the Gulistan rug which reproduces the sheen and beauty of expensive Orientals at attractively low prices.

When introduced, dealers and public instantly recognized that a revolution in rug values had taken place. Demand increased rapidly as the news was verified.

The Chicago market became the greatest single outlet without a line of advertising appearing in any Chicago newspaper.

Then on Sunday, March 3, a full page in Chicago Tribune rotogravure smashed across the Gulistan story to nearly a million and a quarter Tribune families.

"The results were immediate," wrote Mr. Arto Funduklian, Sales Promotion Director of A. & M. Karagheusian, Inc. "From the very first day the public's response registered itself in greatly increased sales throughout the stores which handled these rugs.

"Dealers began to re-order immediately. And by April 7, after four full pages in rotogravure had appeared, practically every single dealer in Chicago had re-ordered.

"By the time our campaign of six pages had appeared, our books showed that many of these outlets had re-ordered several times.

"At the end of the season, we are able to inform you that our Gulistan business shows an increase of 300% in Chicago."

"The results from our rotogravure campaign in the Sunday Tribune were immediate . . . our business showed an increase of 300%."

Arto Funduklian
Director of Sales Promotion

Here is a three-ply testimonial that drives home three unmistakable facts about selling in the great Chicago market.

The Tribune can do the job alone—the House of Karagheusian, using the Tribune exclusively, rolled up a 300% sales increase.

To get action, use rotogravure—the House of Karagheusian, using rotogravure, got action immediately.

People have lots of time to read on Sunday—they read and discussed Gulistan Sunday Tribune sales messages. And went out and bought Gulistan rugs.

Chicago dealers, familiar with the local situation, knew the power of a campaign in the rotogravure section of the Sunday Tribune. And they backed their judgment with their own advertising dollars.

"No small part of the success of this campaign," continued Mr. Funduklian, "is due to the excellent co-operation of local retailers.

"Knowing the interest which our rotogravure advertising was creating, they tied in with strong advertising of their own."

And "tying in" in this case, meant the buying of more than 40 separate advertisements by dealers featuring Gulistan rugs, over the dealer's own name. Some of them were actually full-page rotogravure ads.

A. & M. Karagheusian, Inc., ran 13 full pages in Tribune rotogravure in 1929. Success was such that this concern is continuing its drive for business with full pages in the Tribune in 1930.

This experience of one of the world's largest rug manufacturers merits the attention of every manufacturer of nationally advertised goods who seeks volume sales. Gulistan rugs had an impressive sale in Chicago without any advertising. But with a strong campaign in the Sunday Tribune, sales were tripled in a few short months.

STUDY BILLION DOLLAR STEEL MERGER PLAN

Revive Youngstown, Bethlehem Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—Negotiations to merge the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company have reached such a stage that the plan to form this $1,000,000,000 company is ready for submission to the directors of the Youngstown company, it was learned today. The preliminary negotiations have been carried on for several weeks between Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem company and H. G. Dalton, a director of the Youngstown company and also a director of the Bethlehem concern.

J. A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown company, is understood to have remained neutral during the merger discussions although he opposed such a step two years ago and succeeded in blocking it. At present, it is said, he has assured the Dalton interests that if they can get a representative number of stockholders to favor the plan he will not personally oppose it.

Call Directors' Meeting.

That the discussions had reached a point where they are about to assume official character, was also learned. A meeting of the directors of the Youngstown company was to have been held tomorrow at which the plan would be formally presented, but it is understood that this meeting has been postponed.

The move on the part of Bethlehem Steel corporation to acquire the Youngstown plant is said to be complicated by the efforts of the Eaton-Macher-Otis interests to include the Youngstown company in the recently formed Republic Steel corporation. The Republic corporation was formed recently through the merging of the Republic Iron and Steel company, the Central Alloy Steel corporation, Donner Steel, Inc., and the Bourne-Fuller company, and with plans for the acquisition of the Youngstown company and the Gulf States Steel company, it was challenging the position of Bethlehem as the second largest steel corporation.

Without including the California companies which were recently added to the Bethlehem company, the corporation had assets of $643,356,206 on Dec. 31, 1926. The Youngstown Steel and Tube company listed assets of $221,748,294 on that date, and the increase in assets on the part of both companies during 1929, would carry the assets of the two over $1,000,000,000 mark.

The acquisition of the Youngstown company would carry the activities of Bethlehem into the middle west and west. It has been generally understood in financial circles that a tacit agreement has existed with the United States Steel corporation that Bethlehem would stay out of this territory.

The Youngstown company operations were carried into the Chicago district in 1924 by the purchase of the Steel and Tube Company of America, whose plants are located on Lake Michigan, with excellent water frontages and railroad connections.

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Gains in industrial activity to augment the natural recovery from the slump of last year are in evidence, but improvement is proceeding slowly, says the American Bankers' Association Journal. It adds: "And the pace is still below that of a year ago as measured by the usual statistical barometers."

Hard Rules Not Always Safe Even in Economics

BY SCRUTATOR.

If there is one solemn warning that could be given first place among warnings, it probably is this one: the trend we see today is not the one that will prevail in the future.

Because men in the past have believed implicitly that the economic setup was something fixed, we have had or have now serious distress in some essential occupations.

To be cited in support of this statement is the old theory that men could always multiply so fast that population would constantly be within a hairline of subsistence possibilities. In other words, starvation would be but a step away. Up to and even after the world war there was an insistence by government and private thinkers that the world needed an increase in food production as fast as this could be accomplished. Land policies all but forced men on to the soil.

That theory, on the groundwork of evidence that existed when it was advanced, was close to the truth. The human race had always been near to starvation. The theory is still true in India and China. Any gains that have been made in wealth in the former country have been absorbed by increased population. An unconscious choice has given India more people instead of higher living standards.

Food Surplus.

But in western Europe and the United States population has not been allowed to increase as fast as the means to satisfy wants, and there is an overplus of food. The producers are consequently being urged to stop working so hard and quit thrusting too much on their consumers.

Just as spectacular a mistake was made in the latter part of the nineteenth century about the coal supply. Statistics showed that each year coal production went up. The statisticians allowed that because there was a compounding of the increase each year in consumption it was a moral certainty that within a few hundred years at most men were going to be cold, with no fuel either to warm them or to drive their power machines.

Had their figures been correct for the future as they were for the past, the coal consumed now would be fantastic in quantity. But instead the rate of increase reached its maximum long ago and the present world output of coal is only 5 per cent larger than it was in 1913. In recent years the consumption has been just about stationary.

The national industrial conference board finds four reasons to explain why the coal mining industry in the older areas, particularly Britain and the Pennsylvania fields, is depressed. They are: the increased energy extracted from each ton mined; increased production in new mining areas; substitution of oil and natural gas for coal, and growing development of hydro power.

British Coal Problem.

The British mines have been troubled because sixty million more tons are produced in continental Europe than in 1913 and because a larger percentage of ships are oil burners of one type or another. A comparatively small number of states in the United States consume 100 million barrels of fuel oil annually. In fifteen years begininng with 1913 hydro electric horsepower in the world grew from fourteen million to thirty-eight million horsepower.

Those figures of the past were under rather than over on their estimates of today's energy requirements. Their mistake was in assuming that it would nearly all be derived from coal. The danger lies now in assumptions that today's consumption of any product compared to the consumption of the same thing five or ten or twenty years ago will furnish an accurate means of forecasting what the consumption will be a decade or two in the future.

ALLEGHANY FINANCING REVEALS HOLDINGS IN MISSOURI PACIFIC R. R.

New York, March 9.—(AP)—A $37,500,000 financing program to reimburse the Alleghany corporation, holding company for the Van Sweringen interests, for an investment in the Missouri Pacific railroad was announced tonight by J. P. Morgan & Co. It was the first official confirmation of reports that Alleghany had been acquiring an interest in Missouri Pacific.

The financing includes a $25,000,000 issue of 20 year 5 per cent convertible collateral trust bonds of Alleghany corporation, to be offered tomorrow at 97. Early next week a $12,500,000 issue of 5½ per cent preferred stock, with warrants, is to be sold.

Common stock of the Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette, controlled by the Van Sweringens, is also to be pledged. The total security is to be maintained at 150 per cent of the par value of the bond issue.

The financing will bring the assets of Alleghany corporation to $290,000,000 and its indebtedness to $96,000,000. The company already has outstanding two issues of 5 per cent convertible bonds.

MARCH TRADE NOT ALL THAT WAS HOPED FOR Spring Revival Seen by Iron Age.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9. — The disappointing course of trade and industry thus far in the present month does not necessarily indicate that the trade reaction which followed last autumn's Wall street crash was actually more severe and farreaching that had been supposed.

It has, however, caused doubts as to whether the period of reaction may not be more prolonged than hopeful spirits had predicted. Belief was very general, even during the extreme inactivity of trade during December, that there would not be only substantial recovery early in the new year, but that, by spring time, activities would be pursued on a normal basis.

The first prediction was fulfilled, though not by any means in all branches of trade. The second may yet turn out to have been a correct view of the outlook, but the two last weeks have not added force to the ex-

BUSINESS AND TERRITORY

United American Utilities, Incorporated, was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware for the purpose, among others, of acquiring majority or substantial minority interests in public utility corporations, both foreign and domestic, possessing attractive possibilities of development. In line with this policy, United American Utilities, Incorporated, has acquired a substantial interest in Eastern States Public Service Corporation, which corporation, through its subsidiaries, furnishes electric power and light and/or water or miscellaneous service to over 300 communities in 16 States along the Atlantic Seaboard and in the East and Middle West. The territory served by the above companies embraces some of the richest agricultural sections of each State in which they operate, as well as many intensely developed industrial centers, thus providing a diversification of demand which makes for stability of earnings. Requirement for the services rendered is rapidly increasing throughout the entire territory.

United American Utilities, Incorporated, will also own all the outstanding stock of Pacific Freight Lines, Inc., which through its subsidiaries will serve a population of 1,400,000 throughout Southern California, and which, with terminals in Los Angeles, provides daily "express service at freight rates" between Los Angeles and 84 cities, towns and communities within a radius of 240 miles. CHICAGO AREA RETAIL TRADE MAKES GAINS

Report Heavy Cotton Sales After Break.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Activity quickened city sales last week in the wholesale market district when the payment of back salaries was made to many thousands of city employés. Spokesmen of the wholesale district had partly blamed this situation for the depressed sales in the metropolitan area. The effect was largely psychological on retail merchants, who had maintained a cautious watch and wait buying policy during the protracted period of suspended pay checks.

With sales comparing favorably with the corresponding period of last year, most stores now anticipate better business as the pre-Easter season opens, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Heavy sales in cotton goods were reported during the week, following a sharp break in the cotton market.

Many salesmen for Chicago wholesale firms report that merchants throughout the country are withholding orders, pending the disposition of the tariff bill by congress, the association states.

Whether or not Chicago manufacturers of coats and dresses will decide to invade the New York summer market with displays of Chicago made garments will be decided Thursday afternoon at a meeting to be held at 304 West Jackson boulevard.

Another meeting on a proposal to hold a joint exhibit here next summer of lingerie, house dresses, corsets, and neckwear will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel La Salle.

FARM BOARD IS NOT BLUFFING, TRADERS LEARN

U. S. Gradually Getting Control of Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Control of the wheat market is gradually being secured by the farm board operating through the grain stabilization corporation and the Farmers' National Grain Coöperative association, the former being the most active.

That the farm board means business is seen in the announcement made last Saturday. It came in the request sent to congress by President Hoover that the farm board be given $100,000,000 out of the revolving fund of $500,000,000 provided for by congress.

Earlier in the week an announcement from the farm board said that they had expended $75,000,000 out of the $150,000,000 originally given them, and had $75,000,000 left. Putting these figures together it would give the farm board $175,000,000, or enough to buy the entire visible supply of 153,000,000 bu, the largest known at this season.

Possible Action.

The farm board might take the bulk of this supply, ship it out of the country, and relieve the situation here, but at the same time depress foreign markets and make an uncomfortable situation for Argentine, Australian, and Canadian shippers. It would upset all foreign markets and create an unprecedented condition in the world's markets.

Reports from the gulf at the end of the week intimated that wheat held by the government was to be moved out by a house with foreign agents, the assumption being that it had not been sold. The trade conceived the idea that were this wheat disposed of in foreign markets at low prices it might upset the market for all other exporting countries and bring fresh complications.

Farm Board Buys May.

Large purchases of March and May wheat, particularly May, were made in Chicago during the week, trade estimates being for around 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bu a day. It has given the government control of the March and May, and it is said that futures are being exchanged for the cash grain in elevators. It is also intimated that this policy is to be continued, which will eventually give the government control of all the cash wheat in Chicago.

There were 22,251,000 bu of cash wheat in Chicago elevators a week ago, compared with 12,709,000 bu last year. Elevator space is scarce and Board of Trade directors have made car lot deliveries regular during this month.

The big problem confronting the wheat trade and the farm board is the storage question, which is worse than a year ago, and unless 100,000,000 bu or more wheat is moved out of the country between now and July there will be another carryover at that period, although it may not reach the same proportions as that of 145,000,000 bu a year ago.

The market is in a highly sensitive position and sharp fluctuations are to be expected at any time on moderate purchases or sales by the large operators. Government support, however, is considered as a foregone conclusion by traders who consider the short side of May as dangerous.

Prices did not decline to the low level of the previous week, yet net losses compared with a week ago were 4⅝@5¼c, with March at $1.07, May $1.12⅛@1.12¾, July $1.09½@1.09⅝, and September $1.10⅞@1.10¾. Prices follow:

FARM STOCK FIGURES DUE TODAY

The government report on farm stocks of grain March 1 is due in Chicago at 2 o'clock today. Expectations are that they will be lighter of all grains. Private reports on wheat range from 101,000,000 to 119,000,000 bu, with an average of 112,000,000 bu, against 151,000,000 bu last year, while corn ranges from 951,000,000 to 1,107,000,000 bu, an average of 973,000,000 bu, against 1,022,000,000 bu last year. Oats average 385,000,000 bu, against 497,000,000 bu a year ago.

Liberal Break in Corn.

Stabilizing influences in wheat have failed to affect corn, and operators who bought futures when wheat advanced in most instances unloaded later at lower prices. Outside speculation is light. The cash demand is fair and stocks are not heavy, but apparently are ample for all industrial requirements. Movement from the country compares fairly with other years, and at the close the cash basis was lowered.

At the close prices were 4¼@5¾c lower, with sentiment rather bearish, and the open interest about 1,000,000 bu or more than a week ago.

CONTINENTAL BAKING CORPORATION

The Board of Directors has this day declared a quarterly dividend of

$2.00 per share on the outstanding PREFERRED STOCK payable on April 1, 1930, to stockholders of record on March 17, 1930. The stock transfer books will not be closed.

Chicago Curb Weekly Stocks

Bullish activity in the securities of the Chicago Rapid Transit company featured last week's trading on the Chicago curb. Announcement made late in the week that local banks had approved of the car merger brought a 7 point jump in the debentures and a 4 point spurt in the common stock.

The Ace of Spades
By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Jim Rutledge, accompanied by Sim Hart, is sent out with a herd of cattle to fulfill a contract made by his father, Chandler Rutledge. On the trail they are overtaken by some riders of the Moss outfit, enemies of Rutledge. The Moss men start a stampede and drive off some of the Rutledge cattle. Jim recovers them, but in doing so shoots and injures one of the Moss raiders. The men of the Moss outfit swear to be revenged for the injury done him. Jim takes refuge in a ranch house where he finds Ellen Lawson alone in the house. She hides him when the Moss gang comes to the house inquiring for him and sends them off on another trail, even though she learns that he has injured her father. Jim rides on into the town, after saving Ellen from the unwelcome attentions of Joe Shear, the town marshal, threatens to arrest him for the attack on Steve Moss, but Harrison Pendleton, an old trail driver, arrives on the scene in time to prevent his arrest. Shortly afterwards Shear kills Doc Brown, who, he claimed, had threatened his life. This causes a great deal of excitement in the little cattle town. Jim goes into the local gambling den and is astonished to find Ellen Lawson there. She tells him she has come to speak to her brother, Steve. Jim guides her to where Steve is sitting in a poker game with Shear, Buck Roe and others. As they reach the table the lights go out and when the room is again lighted Shear is found crumpled in his chair with Jim's knife in him. Ellen's right hand is covered with blood. She had become separated from Jim in the dark and some one had jostled her. In putting out her hand to prevent she had touched the crumpled figure. Jim and Ellen are questioned by the other members, and Jim is arrested, but is later released. Jim is determined to find the murderer to clear himself. Ellen arranges a meeting to warn him against Dave Moss and learns that Moss is trying to force her to marry his son, Pete. He suggests that she save him. They are quietly married and Jim goes on with his investigation.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII
A COOL CUSTOMER.

That Joe Shear, the most notorious killer in the west, had been used as a catspaw to point the moral would make it particularly impressive.

On the other hand, the ace of spades might have been used solely to divert suspicion from the real murderer to the Moss outfit. Jim had once before, for a week with a band of Texas rangers following some horse thieves and waiting for the Cherokee strip. On three separate occasions the outlaws had obliterated their trails to deceive the pursuers. Was the ace of spades a red herring drawn across the track? Or was it a true clew left defiantly by the killer for a private reason of his own?

"What do you mean about the show at the Elkhorn being interesting? What's that got to do with what occurred at the Longhorn, Manders?" asked Pendleton.

The sheriff's answer gave no information. "A ticket to the show costs a dollar bits," he said.

A light footstep sounded outside. The door of the office opened and a man entered. He was slender of build and he moved gracefully. His brown eyes were restless. They had a way of stabbing with keen thrusts at first one and then another of those present.

"Take a chair, Mart," the sheriff said. "Know all these gentlemen?"

Brown nodded a casual greeting to the four older men. When his gaze turned to Jim it remained with him.

"I think I haven't met this gentleman," he said.

"Meet Mr. James Rutledge. He's a great detective. When he's around here don't have to do a thing but loaf," Manders said.

"I've met Mr. Brown before," Jim said pleasantly.

...m. A gun is at my head, but I'm to please myself. Shoot your questions, Mr. Pendleton.

"I don't Don't remember when," the gambler returned carelessly. "You asked for me, Al?"

"Yes. These gentlemen want I should hang you."

"Now?"

Brown was a cool customer. His manner lost none of its jaunty insouciance. He laughed, hardily.

"Interesting," he said. "A new experience. I've been shot and gouged and more or less drowned, but I've never been hanged yet. By the way, any particular reason? Or just on general principles?"

"For killing Joe Shear."

"O, did I kill him? I should think they'd want to vote me a gold medal for it—if I did. No accounting for tastes, as old man Pruitt said when his brother, Coe, took a skunk for a pet." Brown selected a cigar from several he had in a case and offered the others to any one who might like to smoke. He bit off the end and lit up. "All point of view, I reckon. If I'd killed Shear I would have been proud of it, for he was the most cold blooded gunman I ever knew. He had it coming, if ever a man did."

Pendleton's big voice boomed. "We'd like you to explain one or two things, Mr. Brown."

The keeper of the dance hall smiled at the cattleman with raffish insolence. "Been elected county attorney recently, I take it, Mr. Pendleton?" he asked.

The color deepened beneath the bronzed tan in the face of the Texas ranger. "Suit yoreself," he said curtly. "You don't have to tell us a thing."

"But if I don't," Brown suggested lightly.

"And just what do you know?" the gambler asked, blowing fat smoke rings into the air.

The big cowman told him. "We're not askin' you to say anything that will incriminate yoreself," he added. "But if you claim you're innocent we're ready to listen to anything you want to say. It's up to you entirely."

"I see. A gun at my head, but I'm to please myself. Shoot your questions, Mr. Pendleton. Maybe I'll answer them."

"Do you deny you were at the Longhorn dressed as a pirate the night Joe Shear was killed?"

"Do I deny it? Let me see." Brown turned to Jim, as though confidentially. "What do you advise? Shall I say yes or no?"

"I haven't any advice to offer, Mr. Brown, unless it is to say I'd treat it seriously. We know you were there."

"How do you know it?"

"Mr. Pendleton omitted one point." Jim nodded his head toward the ace on the table. "You own those, don't you?"

"I thought I did. I paid for them, but you, gentlemen, make so free with my property that I'm beginning to have doubts."

Jim fitted the sole of the boot to the plaster cast labeled Exhibit 3. "The track was left outside the window of the card room at the Longhorn," he explained. "Blackbeard was in the room when the light was shot out. He wasn't there when the bartender brought candles. This is the footprint he left when he went out of the window."

The proprietor of the dance hall was nonplused, though he covered it with a laugh. "Blood and thunder, fellow, if I were Blackbeard I'd certainly make you walk the plank," he said easily.

Jim admired the cool audacity of the man. He was not denying, except possibly perhaps for purposes of legal defense, that he was Blackbeard. Certainly the interpretation of the words he had used to Rutledge the night of the murder was a defiant admission of the fact.

"Shiver my timbers, Teach, I'd sink you forty fathoms deep first," he said with a laugh.

"Got nothing to tell us then, Mr. Brown?" Pendleton demanded impatiently.

"I'm particular about my neck," the gambler laughed. "I wouldn't care to be hanged. So I'm going a little slow, if you don't mind. Say, for argument's sake, that I was in the cardroom when the lights in the Longhorn were put out. It doesn't follow that I killed Shear because I left in a hurry."

"Then why did you leave?" Pendleton asked bluntly.

"Speaking always in a hypothetical way, if you'll excuse the long words, Sheriff, I might have left because I discovered Shear had been killed and knew who would get the blame for it."

"How did you know he had been killed? How could you know it? Nobody did—except the murderer."

"I might have been standing beside the man who did it—so close that I got a crimson brushing up against him."

"Could you describe the man?" Jim asked, his eyes shining. "I reckon a hypothetical man could be described."

Brown looked coldly at him. "I could not. It would be impossible for me to describe any man who had killed Shear and did not want it known he had done it."

"Did you know he was going to kill the marshal?"

The man looked at Jim with eyes as expressionless as a stone wall. "No. Was the killer wasn't this young fellow here?" Manders asked sourly.

"Could you describe the man?" Jim asked, his eyes shining. "I reckon a hypothetical man could be described."

Brown looked coldly at him. "I could not. It would be impossible for me to describe any man who had killed Shear and did not want it known he had done it."

"Did you know he was going to kill the marshal?"

"No. Might have been. I don't want swear it was, though. If he killed him, he stands ace high with me. Saved me the trouble of doing it."

"Didn't you go to the Longhorn that night to kill him?"

"I don't seem able to remember whether I was at the Longhorn that night or not." Brown replied with a thin ironical smile. "But if I had been there and had found a chance to kill Shear, you can bet your last cow I wouldn't have overlooked the opportunity."

"I think you killed him," the big Texan said flatly.

"That's your privilege. It's a free country. If it wasn't that I hate to disappoint I'd come out and claim the honor whether I did or not."

"You can't talk away the evidence against you." Pendleton swung around to the sheriff. "I demand you arrest this man."

YOU KNOW, WALT, I CAN'T HELP THINKING THIS LATER WILL FOUND IN A SAFETY DEPOSIT BOX. LOOKS AWFULLY QUEER. IT IS DATED DURING THE TIME COL. CODA WAS OVER IN THIS COUNTRY NOT SO LONG BEFORE HIS DEATH.
IT SOUNDS QUEER TO ME TOO BUT I DON'T THINK MIME. OCTAVE WOULD GO SO FAR AS TO FAKE ONE.
I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT EITHER BUT AT THAT PARTICULAR TIME OCTAVE AND CODA WERE AT OUTS AND IT DOESN'T SEEM LOGICAL THAT HE WOULD WILL EVERYTHING TO HER. THAT WAS JUST THE TIME HE WAS SO FOND OF SKEEZIX.
I'VE HAD MY DOUBTS RIGHT ALONG BUT WHO WOULD BE INTERESTED BESIDES OCTAVE?
IT DOESN'T SEEM AS IF ANYBODY WOULD UNLESS HE HAD AN UNDERSTANDING WITH HER THAT HE WAS GOING TO SHARE IN THE PROFITS. ANYWAY WE CAN'T PROVE ANYTHING — AT LEAST YET.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Well, I thought "Paris" a lot of fun.

Irene Bordoni, the dark charmer, who appeared in the stage production of which the film is an adaptation, gives a captivating performance. She sings her naughty, naughty songs provocatively, is not at all microphone conscious, and acts naturally and with snap. She is plump but alluring to the eye.

In Jack Buchanan, the nonchalant young Englishman, she has an eminently satisfactory talking, acting, singing and dancing partner. So far so good. Farther—better—for now we come to mention of Louise Closser Hale. She's immense!

She makes her first grimace as president of a Massachusetts women's uplift club. She arrives in Paris, in the last stages of indignation and mal de mer, for the purpose of preventing her beloved son, who is there studying art, from marrying a French actress. Mr. Buchanan [Guy Pennell] is at hand with first aid for her physical discomfort. You've guessed it—brandy. Mr. Pennell is on her side for HE wants to wed this fair Vivienne who is affianced to the New England lady's son.

From then on the action is mad, merry and maudlin.

"Paris," excellently cast and directed throughout, hands you a good time that would be better if much of the technicolor stage stuff had been eliminated. I tell you we're fed up on this revue business — for awhile anyway—and the smart producer will be the one who first awakens to this fact. Tip goes for gangster, backstage and Mississippi river gambler pieces, too.

This piece has some catchy songs, some clever dialogue, and, though pretty long, is never boresome.

Good Morning!

The action in this picture skips from jest to earnest and back again with a celerity that makes you bat your eyes. An attempt to take it seriously makes you feel slightly insane, but immediately you awake to the fact that the piece is, really, only a grown-up Keystone comedy, you find yourself being vastly entertained.

Mack Sennett didn't direct "The Girl Said No," which isn't, of course, a K. C., but Sam Wood has done a good job of following in the steps of the master in whose productions anything could happen and everything did. He has turned his gang of adept players loose with the preposterous Bill Haines as ringleader, and the result is Large Time.

Mr. Haines, a pet of mine before he made "Navy Blues," in which he was terrible, comes back with a howl in this extravaganza. His foolery is irresistible and he is surprisingly at ease in two or three unexpected serious moments that serve effectively as shading for the ridiculous whole.

The plot? Well, the girl says "No" and Mr. Haines wants her to say "Yes." If you don't know that what Mr. Haines wants Mr. Haines gets, see pix, for info.

See you tomorrow.

Plans Theater Chain for Better Hearing of Talkies

New York, March 9.—(AP)—B. S. Moss, former theater chain owner, today announced plans for 40 to 50 theaters specially designed for talking pictures. The site for the first acoustically designed house is to be in the Chelsea district of New York and construction will commence as soon as possible, Moss said. He estimated the new structure would cost $2,000,000. The interior will be shaped like a large bell cut in half. The seats will be arranged in the form of an extended fan.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Would you like to be a Chicago policeman?

The Answers.

R. P. Rosen, 4706 North Drake avenue, clerk—I wouldn't care to be one. I have the impression that it would be difficult to get anywhere without a pull. It is not so much a matter of ability and efficiency as it is friends who will boost.

Morton S. Berkenfield, 4940 East End avenue, real estate—I hardly know. It is wonderful work, but it has its limitations. I consider that the average mercantile business affords more opportunities for making money and more luxuries for the family.

William Kadans, 2732 Potomac avenue, dental student—Certainly. If I were a policeman I would see to it that the laws were obeyed with equal attention to the prohibition law. The enforcement of the Volstead act would improve the people, city and nation.

E. Peter, 4540 Sheridan road, clerk—I can't say whether I would. If I were a Chicago policeman I would do everything possible to deal justly, regardless of the station of life of those involved. If all policemen did this it would promote their own interests.

A. A. Schultz, 1811 West 58th street, internal revenue collector—We need policemen and we appreciate them, but I wouldn't care to be one. I feel that the average policeman is honest and tries to perform his duties, but the pressure sometimes brought to bear on him limits his good actions.

Predicts Hollywood's Day as Center of U. S. Theater

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—Hollywood gradually is supplanting New York's Broadway as the stage producing center of this country, according to Marco Wolf, who arrived here today from the Pacific coast. He said the talkies were drawing to Hollywood all the competent personnel, acting, writing, and producing which goes to make up the natural center of the theatrical producing industry.

Veterans' Bill, Long Talked Of, Nears Decision

Johnson Measure May Pass This Session.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Out of a deluge of 200 bills, six weeks of committee hearings, and scores of speeches, the last few days has brought to the front in congress a war veteran's relief measure believed to stand a good chance for enactment at this session.

The proposed measure is house Resolution 10381, the so-called "omnibus bill," sponsored by the Rev. Royal C. Johnson [Rep., S. D.], chairman of the house world war veterans' committee.

If passed a law the Johnson resolution would increase government expenditures for the disabled by approximately $100,000,000 a year and bring aid, or additional relief, to at least 100,000 world war veterans and their dependents.

Incorporating features of a half dozen or more other resolutions, it has passed through all the stages of committee consideration and has been favorably reported to the house, where it will be brought up probably on March 22, under suspension of the rules.

Most important of the twenty-four sections of the Johnson resolution is that which broadens the presumptive provisions of section 200 of the veterans' act so that any veteran who has had prior to Jan. 1, 1925, a disability developing at a ten per cent degree or more, shall be presumed to have acquired his disability in the service, or to have suffered a preëxisting disability. In addition, the presumption would be conclusive in cases of tuberculosis, paralysis, paresis, blindness, or of those permanently helpless or bedridden.

It is estimated by the veterans' bureau that this section alone will affect 84,000 cases, at an annual cost of $76,000,000.

The bill also denies the comptroller general the power to revise a decision of the director of the veterans' bureau and provides that proper consideration be given to lay evidence, and other evidence not of a medical nature, in adjudicating veterans' claims. It also extends the time when suits may be brought on insurance to one year after approval of the bill.

Other provisions would safeguard the interest of mentally incompetent veterans, increasing recreational facilities for veterans and hospital attendants, and liberalizes the insurance laws with respect to permanent and total disability.

Virtually all of the organizations of ex-service men are lined up behind the Johnson resolution under the leadership of the American Legion. The measure, in fact, carries out in large part the recommendations made by the Legion at its Louisville convention last year and is based chiefly upon Legion testimony.

O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the legion, in a statement today characterized the resolution as "the best measure in the interests of the disabled that has been devised," adding that it "should be enacted and all delay avoided."

Three viewpoints toward the resolution are expected to develop when it reaches the debating stage. The first will be that of opponents to such a comprehensive proposal committing the government to tremendous expense in caring for veterans whose ailments are not direct outgrowths of war service. On the other side will be the Rankin followers, who hope to broaden the benefits even more. The latter, preponents of the measure believe, can be counted on to swing in behind it if their amendments fail.

Still another group favors the substitution of a pension system for the entire veterans' relief program, but this movement has comparatively few followers.

So far this session of congress two important veterans' acts have been passed by the house. The first was the $16,000,000 hospitalization bill, which went through the senate and was signed by President Hoover, and the second was a bill to extend for five years the time for filing applications for adjusted compensation which expired in January. The latter is now pending in the senate.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

RHAPSODIES over Queenie Smith are now in order—or would be if any geyser of ecstatic adjectives could give a vivid impression of her odd and tranquil charm. She is the Muse of Entertainment in statuette form, gifted with some special magic that has been denied every other funny little girl with an Old Dutch face and a dancing heart.

To whatever formula of stage hokum she is added, she imparts an essence of eternal quaintness that flavors the whole show with chuckling delight. She is—but why try to describe her?—she's just Queenie, once a ballet dancer, now a comedienne with stars marked against her name, and still wondering, apparently, how it happened.

In "The Street Singer," which opened at the Apollo last night, they have made Queenie a tough girl who sells flowers to the night life crowd in Paris and talks like an American fable in slang. Her argot is so close to the gutter that the fashion plate leading man who finds her in a café is not supposed to understand what she is saying half of the time—perhaps because the librettists have written her rôle in the dialect of newsboys in the magazine stories of 1915. But Queenie, of course, is never really tough: she is merely a new Cinderella waiting for her version of the fairy prince.

The rest of the story is borrowed from Shaw's "Pygmalion": the lyric swell who buys Queenie's flowers undertakes, on a bet, to transform her into a "lady" within three months. Lessons in deportment, elegant speech, and the correct method of eating oysters on the half shell follow—and in these scenes the quiet, elfin drollery of this always winsome little entertainer has full play. No vehement romp, no emphatic hoyden could get half as much fun out of these episodes as this sly and twinkling child of muted mirth.

According to the "book," Queenie gets rough in the first act finale, when she feels the sneers of a patrician blonde who is engaged to her tutor. She exits upon an angry threat to become transformed into "the [insert marine corps oath] lady" that Paris has ever seen. But, as voiced by Queenie, this great big G. D. is the most innocent and appealing swear word of the theatrical season.

The rest of "The Street Singer," aside from its star, is musical comedy in a brisk and jaunty mood. The show bubbles along happily; the principals are active in their tricks of song and dance; the dancing girls are well drilled young athletes, and the whole affair has the air of a success. Among the mentionables are John Price Jones, who serves well enough as Queenie's Pygmalion; Nick Long Jr. and Peggy Cornell, who give the dancing numbers a special individuality; Frank Lalor, a mellow old time droll; Harry K. Morton and Nell Kelly, for skittering antics of acrobatic comedy; Betty Hannan, who pianologues adroitly, and Audrey Maple. It's a long cast without a dull spot in the list.

There is some nice singing by Queenie et al., but the entertainment reaches its most popular point when the chorus goes dancing wild in "You May Be Wrong." Then you understand why this song has been a mania of the younger generation since last fall. Before "You May Be Wrong" has been danced to its last gasp, even the chorus boys have let down their hair.

"Your Uncle Dudley" refuses to leave Chicago, although its engagement at the Cort theater has ended. It will move to the Playhouse with the same cast, opening next Wednesday night.

Pastors Cite Taft as Type for Officials

Call His Services to U. S. Unselfish.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago churchmen of varied faiths yesterday gave public praise to the ideals, citizenship and lifelong usefulness of William Howard Taft. Preachers in many pulpits declared the life of the late ex-President and chief justice of the Supreme court will stand as an example of cleanness and honesty of purpose in offices of public trust.

Speaking last night in St. Paul's Church-by-the-Lake, Rogers Park, the Rev. Stephen E. Keeler, rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, stated that William Howard Taft's greatest gift to American political life was an honor which could not be bent toward personal gain.

"Regardless of what may be said for William Howard Taft's success as the 27th President of the United States," said Dr. Keeler, "this much I think will be admitted by every one. Never at any time did he use a political office or a position of national trust for selfish gain or mere personal advantage."

The north side rector pointed out that yesterday was set aside by the Chicago Church federation as a day of prayer for restoration of Chicago's political reputation. He stated that Mr. Taft's honesty and earnest desire for unselfish usefulness is an excellent example to set before the voters in the coming elections in Chicago.

"Chicago will get exactly the kind and quality of politics it wants," Dr. Keeler said. "Chicago can have what it wishes. If Chicago wants political leadership which grows out of such qualities as William Howard Taft displayed—honesty, cleanness, optimism and helpfulness—Chicago can have it if the real Chicago speaks."

Dean Shailer Mathews declared the late chief justice was one of America's best examples of good citizenship in public office.

"William Howard Taft was an active churchman," said Dean Mathews. "I believe that he was one of the original group of men who inspired the founding of the Federal Council of Churches in Christ in America. He brought into every office the ideals of the best type of living and thinking."

Dean Mathews stated that Mr. Taft's name could be connected in a fortunate way with the Chicago Church federation's day of prayer for Chicago's government. In nearly 1,000 churches special prayers were offered that Chicago's citizenship register and vote at the coming elections.

The prayers included petitions that candidates dedicate themselves to unselfish devotion to the enrichment and betterment of civic life and that those holding office heed the demands of honor and efficiency. The final petition asked that Chicago's reputation may not be determined by underworld characters, but by Chicago's art, culture, business, happy homes, schools and churches.

Almost life long admiration for the late Chief Justice Taft was expressed last night by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, New York, president of the federal council of churches, in his sermon before the Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall.

"I knew Taft for a time early in his law career, and from that time on I never lost my admiration for him," Bishop McConnell said. "He was a useful man and a great citizen; untiring in any cause which he conceived to be right; a prodigious worker. He gave himself to the utmost."

Chicago Notables Attend Feast Honoring Masaryk

The eightieth birthday of Thomas C. Masaryk, president of the Czecho-Slovak republic, was celebrated at a banquet attended by 400 last night in the Congress hotel. Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, delivered the principal address, quoting a biographer who listed Masaryk among the world's chief statesmen. Other guests were Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley, Col. W. E. Stokes, Anton J. Cermak, Charles S. Peterson, and John A. Cervenka.

Mrs. A. T. Aldis Writes Play for Contest

BY THALIA

There are quite several exciting things popping in the world of fashionable amateur theatricals. Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis has a play, "Flying Blind," to be entered in a three act play tournament in New York City in early May. She is to take a cast selected from the Playwright theater and the Lake Forest Players east to present that play. She gave a supper party last night for the various members of the cast and the managerial staff. They read and discussed the play and their plans.

There have been one act play tournaments in New York for some years, and the Drama league began its annual tournament four years ago, but the contest in which "Flying Blind" is entered is the first of the competitions for longer plays.

There are only five such plays to be presented, and it is thereby a great distinction for Chicago's playwright and group of actors. They include players who have appeared in performances at Mrs. Aldis' Playhouse in Lake Forest, and some of the Playwrights' theater stars, Melvin Wamboldt of the former group, is to direct the production, and Miss Alice Gerstenberg, president of the Playwrights, is to be assistant manager and will play one of the rôles. Mrs. Wamboldt, Janet von Ammon, and Mrs. Aldis' niece and nephew, Mrs. A. L. Dickinson's youngsters, are to represent the Lake Foresters. Miss Gerstenberg, Mrs. Helen Walton, Gerald Frank, Edward Pasmore and Donald Briggs will represent the Playwrights. The winner of the contest receives a prize of $1,000, and the play is given a production on Broadway.

Miss Gerstenberg's play "Try-It," which was given last June and was to have been presented at the Illinois Women's Athletic club on March 19, has been postponed until a week later, March 26.

Miss Betty Pain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Pain of Hubbard Woods, doesn't believe in leaving things to the last minute to decide. She and her fiancé, Quentin J. Hallburg, son of Mrs. Emanuel C. Hallburg of Evanston, have set their wedding date for June 21. She has chosen her wedding attendants to officiate on that occasion. Miss Margaret Atkin is to be maid of honor for Miss Pain, and the bridesmaids, most of them debutantes of the same season as the bride-to-be, will include Mrs. Walter S. Hochman (Virginia Wallace), Mrs. Warner Washburn (Elizabeth Lamson), Miss Betty McNair, Miss Mary Carson, Miss Ashton Wilson of Fayetteville, N. C., Miss Helen Shimmin, and Miss Ruth Farnham. Madeline Thompson is to be flower girl. The service is to be read at Christ church in Winnetka at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will be followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Arthur C. Sullivan.

The Chicago Arden Shore association has already decided on the date for its annual ball to take place next fall. It is to follow its custom, established for several years now, of giving its benefit on the night after Thanksgiving, which makes it fall on Nov. 28. Mrs. Herbert S. Nock has been succeeded by Mrs. Edgar F. Burch Jr. of 511 Belden avenue as chairman.

Lawrence Meeker is going in for junior entertainment in a big way. He has purchased himself a handsome accordion, taken some lessons, and is now able to strike a "Come one, come all. This rock shall fly from its firm base, as soon as I" attitude and play "Old Man River" with appropriate feeling AND pauses, to the great edification of any given assemblage.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Bunting of Lake Forest spent the month of February at Naples-on-the-Gulf in Florida and were so enchanted with the "delightfully primitive and old resort on the south end of Florida's west coast" that they bought some property on the beach, intending to have a winter residence there for future seasons.

The Hallett W. Thornes of Winnetka have been spending a few days at the Edgewater Gulf hotel at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of Hugh McBirney Johnston, took time off from her studies at Bryn Mawr to attend the Bal Masque, held recently at the Bellevue Stratford hotel in Philadelphia. The affair marked the close of Philadelphia's social season.

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Patrick of Goldsboro, N. C., announce the birth of a son a fortnight ago. Mrs. Patrick is the former Miss Paulina Miller, and the new baby is the grandson of Dr. Hugh T. Patrick of 1428 North State parkway. The Patricks were married at Mackinac island in 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence G. Smith entertained at dinner on Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bishop of Buenos Aires, South America, who are returning soon to Argentine. Mrs. Bishop is also leaving for California to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Reid Holabird in San Diego, Cal.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Silverstein of 1513 North Fairfield avenue announce the marriage on Saturday of their daughter, Rose, to Samuel Steinberg.

Traffic Club, Latest Art Sponsor, Opens Palmer House Show

The Traffic Club of Chicago is the latest organization to open its heart to the promotion of art. The members have arranged an interesting exhibit of paintings in Bentley hall, Palmer house, which will continue through the month. Of greatest importance are the portraits of various living Indians from the Glacier Park territory painted by Winold Reiss and from the collection of Louis W. Hill.

There are twenty portraits, and prominent among them are the stern features of Chief Two Guns White Calf, whose likeness appears on the buffalo nickel, and who has the reputation of being the most photographed and best known Indian living in the United States.

From these one turns to the other paintings and there is found a capitally chosen variety. James Topping shows a fine landscape with green fields overswept by a clouded sky. There are two or three other landscapes, a painting from Arabia, some definite winter scenes, and paintings of ships in American harbors and foreign waters. All things considered the exhibit is good for the first. Dudley Crafts Watson made a most interesting discussion of it on the opening day.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Leek Pie.

The onion and leek pies were devised by people who could not afford meat or could not get it, and in a time when meat pies were more universally used than today. The smooth and savory vegetables like leeks and onions, when combined with pastry, may give the same gratification that meat does. I found a leek pie a more interesting substitute for a meat pie than I should have guessed, and since we may use eggs and milk and bacon in it it gives us the same food return that a meat pie does. The crust I tried was made from yeast bread dough rolled out after it had risen once. It is necessary to remember that yeast dough will not roll after it is kneaded, but that it can be rolled quite thin after it has risen till double.

The filling for this pie is as follows: Cut the white parts of four leeks in small pieces, blanch, drain, and cook till tender. Add two eggs, about three slices of bread soaked in a little milk, and salt and pepper. Cook these well together and pour the mixture on the crust. Across this place a few slices of bacon whole or cut in tiny pieces. Put this into a 400 degree oven to crisp the bacon and after that lower the heat to 350 degrees, baking it in all one-half hour.

John Evelyn, whose diary covering the period from 1641 to 1706 is his best known work, also wrote "Acetaria: A Discourse of Sallets." This appeared in London in 1699 and today it seems one of the most charming books on salad ingredients ever written. Equally charming are his volumes on fruit growing and making cider, making a garden, and growing trees.

He begins the discourse on leeks by saying they are hot, and mentions a medical fact that is hardly suitable to put into a cooking column. Another medical fact that he mentions is that they are "friendly to the lungs and being sod in milk." By this last statement we take it he meant that they are excellent cooked and served in a white sauce on toast—as they are. And this might be considered a pie, or quite like one.

Hofmann at Piano, Spalding with Violin Give Sunday Concerts

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Several years have gone their way since Josef Hofmann last gave a piano recital in Chicago, an interval broken only by his joint appearance with Lea Luboshutz in a piano and violin sonata program. Back again at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon, he would seem to have devoted the time to putting an extra polish on what used to be practically immaculate, to-wit, his tone.

His is the most irreproachable piano tone before the public today. It is velvety and edgeless, it ranges from the gentlest whisper to all the power that any pianist could possibly need. But even when it is at its mightiest, no one ever has any fear that the instrument will break into indignant jangles from over persuasion.

Mr. Hofmann would seem somewhat less inclined to flame out into bursts of fireworks than he used to be. In fact, his own "Suite Antique," the Chopin group, and the Prokofieff encore that separated the two were miracles of fine, restrained playing. They were also miracles of beauty. The "Suite Antique" would seem to be based upon the back-to-Bach movement plus an admixture of the Hofmann technic, and resulted in an attractive example of its kind.

Most of the violinists in town went to Orchestra hall to hear Albert Spalding's recital, just as most of the pianists were listening to Mr. Hofmann, with the exception of Mischa Levitzki, and Moissaye Boguslawski, who preferred the Spalding recital. So Mr. Spalding with his admirable accompanist, Andre Benoist, played to them from the works of Bach, Padre Martini, and Schubert, from Lalo, Szymanowski, Schumann, and Paganini, meanwhile facing an audience that considered applause a game, the longest applauder being the winner.

Mr. Spalding finally cut the endurance contest short, announcing that what was to come was not an encore but his final group. One could hardly blame the Oliver Twists in the audience, however, for while his playing is studious and planned, it is also mannerly and warm, and that in a high degree. In Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" he developed the tense excitement that carries the piece with a rush, in Szymanowski's "La Fontaine d'Arethuse," the only modern work on the program, he did something altogether bewitching with the contemporary idiom. Incidentally, Mr. Benoist rates a high credit for what he did with its accompaniment.

Alvena Reckzeh and Kathryn Anderson, who specialize in the recital for two pianos, appeared at Kimball hall yesterday with a brilliant example of their characteristic program. Starting as far back as Clementi, they ranged through Saint-Saëns, Arensky, and Rachmaninoff, down to such moderns as Guy Maier, Alexander MacFadyen, and Louis Victor Saar, either as composers or arrangers for the two instruments. They had studied well, they played with the exactness of attack and interchange that means the development of an ensemble.

Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, in an address yesterday afternoon before the Holy Name union at Naperville, declared that another war in Europe is certain. Among them he cited increasing friction resulting from Italy's control of the Tyrol, Greek ambitions in the near east.

Wales Reviving Old Language in Its Schools

BY EMLYN MICHAEL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CARDIFF, March 9.—The growing interest in the Welsh language and Welsh culture, which seems likely to put an end to a time in which that ancient language almost disappeared from the chief Welsh cities, was marked by an important exhibition at the Cardiff city hall. The display of Welsh books and manuscripts there ended this month.

The collection, brought together by the public educational authorities and the university libraries, ranged from the unique book of Aneirin (Y Gododdyn), written 700 years ago, to the Welsh grammars of John Jones (1605-1610). Excellent examples of the bardic wooden book and a remarkable group of Welsh Bibles, from the earliest example dated 1567 to the edition of 1799, were on view.

The selection of early Welsh writers was particularly good. It included a work by Friar John of Wales, a Franciscan, who wrote in 1283, and a survey of Welsh hymnology from Morgan Llwyd o Wynedd (1619-1695) to Williams Pantycelyn (1717-1791). Those interested in typography were gratified by examples of the output of the Welsh press of Isaac Carter (1718-1725) and the more elaborate work still being issued from Gregynog.

Percy Watkins, secretary to the Welsh department of the British board of education, who is to receive a knighthood soon, told THE TRIBUNE correspondent that the exhibition was a natural outgrowth of the remarkable revival of interest in Welsh language and literature.

"In another twenty years," he said, "we shall see the effects of the efforts made in recent years, and particularly of the great impetus given to the study of Welsh by the issue of the departmental report over which the late bishop of St. David's presided.

"The schools are responding well to the call made to them in that report, and the board of education is doing all in its power to bring about a sane and rational recognition of the language in schools in all parts of Wales.

"I firmly believe that we shall shortly see very valuable results flowing from the coöperation between the schools, local educational authorities, the universities, and other national bodies in the endeavor to give the Welsh language and literature its proper place in the educational system of the future."

More Girls Adopted Than Boys, Reports Church Organization

Girl babies are more in demand than boys, due to the fact that it is the wives in childless couples rather than their husbands who usually are most active in seeking to adopt children, according to the annual report made at a meeting of the Catholic Home Finding association in the Palmer house yesterday.

Of the 116 orphaned children placed in private homes last year, 67 were girls and 49 were boys, Edward Houlihan, superintendent of the association, said. Seventy-two were under one years of age and 35 were under three years.

2 CONVENTIONS BRING MINE WAR TO CRISIS TODAY

Lewis Battles to Retain His Leadership.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Organized labor throughout the United States and Canada will watch the battle for supremacy which opens today in the national convention of the United Mine Workers in Indianapolis, and also in a meeting of coal miners in Springfield, Ill.

John L. Lewis, international president of the mine workers, says the Indianapolis conventinn will determine who are loyal members and who are enemies of the labor organization. Opposition from within the ranks of the coal diggers is not new to Lewis, who in the last 10 years has won several fights to keep his position.

Battle Centers in Illinois.

Strife has existed for years between the United Mine Workers of America and its Illinois unit. Peace was declared in 1928 when Frank Farrington resigned as head of the Illinois union to accept a reported $25,000 a year job with the Peabody coal interests. Lewis charges that Farrington is now directing the attack against the international body.

Another leader of the insurgent faction is John H. Walker, head of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who launched the cooperative movement among the Illinois coal diggers some years ago.

Last summer Lewis questioned the integrity of Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois branch, and other state union leaders. After an investigation which, Lewis said, disclosed irregularities, he summoned the Illinois chiefs to an Indianapolis hearing. They refused to appear and he revoked their charter, set up a provisional district and undertook to obtain control of the district records and offices.

An injunction stayed his hand. The Springfield meeting was called today by the insurgents to reorganize the union.

A Foe of Communism.

From without, as well as within, Lewis repeatedly has been attacked since 1920, when he succeeded Frank Hays as president of the miners. Communist agitators, seeking to bore into the union, always found Lewis against them. Efforts of mine owners in both the hard and soft coal fields to lower wages met with opposition.

Alexander Howat of Kansas disputed Lewis' authority and soon found himself on the outside.

John Brophy, Pennsylvania leader, met with a similar fate, while Walker of the state labor federation has met with one defeat after another when he clashed with the Lewis forces.

Lewis went to work in a Panama, Ill., mine in 1908 and was elected vice president in 1917. During the protracted strike of coal miners in 1922 Lewis mortgaged his home, along with other international union officers, to provide funds for the strikers and ther families.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Good Man Gone Away

Franck's D Minor Played Complete by Orchestra.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, W-G-N, 2 to 3 o'clock, was of first importance in matter of quality. Cesar Franck's immortal symphony in D minor was played complete, and words do not adequately express either the greatness of the work itself or of the grandeur of it as a radio expression from this orchestra. Mr. Stock in an address called it "one of the greatest of modern symphonic utterances; it is a discourse between the soul and the intellect; it is spiritual in matter and manner; it is music at once great and beautiful, in the highest spiritual sense of these terms." The concert closed with a charming and interesting "Midsummer Wake" by Alfven.

Dvorak's "New World" symphony was played admirably in the New York concert through KYW, 1 to 2 o'clock.

A novelty yesterday was the first of a series of orchestral concerts originating at CKAC, Montreal, Canada, through WMAQ, 2 to 2:30. Announcements are in French and English, the program classical and semi-classical works.

The Chicago Welsh male choir, Daniel Protheroe directing, presented a sacred program from WLS, 2:30 to 3.

Although I played hookey from my set late in the afternoon, I hear that Albert Salvi, harpist on the W-G-N's Symphony orchestra's Musical Melange, 4:45 to 5:30, proved a sensation, having an astounding technique, a beautiful liquid tone, and a knack of bringing out the melody beautifully.

Martha Atwood, soprano, and Mme. Renee Chemet, French violinist, were soloists on the New York concert through W-G-N, 8:15 to 9:15. Miss Atwood sprang a surprise by beginning with comparatively uninviting numbers, awakening our interest in a French group, and then winning us completely with her closing group of Stephen Foster songs. Mme. Chemet was charming throughout.

BURY ERLANGER WHILE "WIDOW" STAYS AT HOME

New York, March 9.—(Special.)—With representatives of the state and city, as well as amusement and fraternal organizations present, funeral services for Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, theatrical magnate, were held this afternoon at the Temple Emanuel. Mr. Erlanger, who was 69 years old, died Friday.

Contrary to expectations the woman who says she is Mrs. Erlanger was not at the services nor at the interment, which was at Bethel cemetery, Brooklyn. Relatives of Mr. Erlanger assert there is no Mrs. Erlanger.

At the Erlanger apartment on Riverside drive, it was explained that "Mrs. Erlanger is very ill and under the care of a doctor." Max D. Steuer, her attorney, said:

"Mrs. Erlanger collapsed again early in the day and could not go to the temple, or to the cemetery."

Mr. Steuer, who said yesterday that his client is entitled to half the $75,000,000 estate left by Mr. Erlanger, declared tonight he was preparing a statement.

At the home of former Justice Mitchel L. Erlanger, a brother of A. L. Erlanger, it was said tonight that the will left by the theatrical magnate would be opened Tuesday or Wednesday.

RAID SWANK N. Y. INN; 200 DANCERS NOT DISTURBED

New York, March 9.—(Special.)—Resuming with spectacular effect his drive against the sale of liquor in New York hotels, Maj. Maurice Campbell early today directed twenty prohibition agents in a raid on the fashionable Forest Hills inn, social center of a rigidly restricted residential community, and arrested Louis C. Gosdorfer, owner of the inn, a prominent Queens Republican, and nine employes.

According to the charges of sale and possession of liquor on which the ten were booked at the police station, later to be released in bail of $1,000 each, pending arraignment before a United States commissioner in Brooklyn tomorrow, a dozen bottles of assorted liquors and as many kegs of beer were seized behind the grill room bar.

About 200 patrons, most of them residents of Forest Hills, were on the dance floor or about the tables when the enforcement men made their way into the room. They were not molested.

Thumb Sucking Is a Habit That Needs to Be Cured

by Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A booklet by Mrs. Bevans on "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them" will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Those who are expert in child guidance admit that thumb sucking is one of the most baffling of what we might call the minor difficulties with children. Letters which come to me asking for help in that direction can scarcely be answered satisfactorily in a personal reply, since the subject requires a long discussion. Even then we cannot put up concretely helpful thumb posts.

At most we can only suggest causes and possible devices for cures. The latter seem to be largely matters of individual experiment. What works with one child will not work with another type. Also, what works with a child just beginning the habit will be utterly ineffectual with one who has had the habit long established. Those who have expertly cleared up their habits find it possible to give only hints on handling this one.

Some mothers are unduly distressed by seeing their children sucking their fingers, and attribute greater underlying significance to it than it has. Others have a happy go lucky attitude about it, and leave it to be outgrown.

Both attitudes are mistaken. The over-anxious mother is cramping her child's self-reliance and helpfulness by her tension and by believing all the—to her—unpleasant origins that are supposed to account for the thumb sucking habit. That is to me, however, a much more understandable attitude than the attitude of the mother who dismisses it. One day on a board walk I saw a charming, beautifully dressed little boy of 5 on a velocipede. He had on leather gloves, and the finger of the right glove was partly chewed off and hung down to where it joined the hand. Yesterday I saw a little girl of about 4 with her finger 'way in her mouth and an almost vacant look on her face. How can any mother who cares at all about her children's looks alone, not to speak about their effect of alertness, the expression of their faces, and the poise of their bodies be so offhand about this?

For those who consider thumbsucking a perfectly harmless habit, here are a few thoughts: It is harmless in a sense, intrinsically. But in another sense, that is, extrinsically, it is not. If persisted in it sometimes changes the shape of the mouth and affects the growth and position of the teeth. It certainly detracts from a child's, even a baby's, appearance.

But more important, in a way, than any of these results is the restraining effect it has upon his activity. The child who is not using his whole body, which includes both his hands, in vigorous, interested play loses in mental and physical development. Just stop and think for a moment of the impression made upon you by a child of 3 or 4 whose fingers are always in his or her mouth.

Tomorrow the subject will be continued.

Marriage, Like Murder, Will Out, Doris Maintains

BY DORIS BLAKE.

You can't keep a marriage dark. You cannot have a husband or a wife parked away in another part of the town, of the state, or of the country without some day having to confront the charge of being married, if you are posing as a single person.

Lately there have been reported to me a number of experiences in which the individual who tries to keep his or her past marriage secret figures prominently. Sometimes it has been a divorce that was ignored, and sometimes a mate from whom no legal separation was ever granted.

Discoveries, then, of a mate living form up like dark phantoms on what seemed, to the innocent party, a legitimate romance in the making. All manner of doubt follows the discovery. The single poseur, though he or she may have been a victim in the marriage episode, becomes a person whose word in everything is doubted.

Once one has delivered the fatal blow to a girl or man in whom faith has been a controlling feature of his or her affections, it is pretty difficult ever to be reinstated. The deceit is an affront to love, an affront to the good judgment most people in love believe they possess, whether they do or not. Anyway, faith in the individual is a major ingredient in the thing called love. That is why it is such a single person when one is at The truth about being married, like the truth about murder, will out.

It is not all villainy that prompts the silence, though you do find among the false aspirants for singleness consideration quite a percentage of downright crooks. Swindlers, preying on women's gullibility, use the single man disguise often,

Sometimes, however, it is cowardice, weakness. Sometimes two people unintentionally drift into a close relationship without either having felt impelled to reveal a wedded past. Sometimes, like Lou's beau, married at 16 and separated a month later, the fear of being a girl like Lou stops the confession.

The whys, however, do not matter when man or maid is face to face with the one whose faith has been destroyed. This is one time when the good old copy book maxim about honesty being the best policy should be accepted literally.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow who is much taller than I. I feel funny when I walk with him. But I hate to give him up. What can I do?

So much the easier to look up to him, Doubtful. There's no reason for feeling embarrassed because of the difference in your heights.

Paris Turns Up Brims of Smart Straw Hats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Most of the Paris spring millinery chic lies on the brim. Some modistes here are trying to restore to fashion those wide floppy brims that cover up a good deal of the face, but smart women along the Riviera are having their brims lifted so that practically all of the face is out in the open. This uplift is going on also in many of the greatest millinery salons of Paris.

Rose Descat, who holds the French record for 100 per cent becomingness in hats, is tucking brims of her hats and lifting them in front, thereby getting a frilly frame for the face, which is as flattering as flower petals would be. Her best hat of this type is shown at the top. It is made of green basket weave straw cloth, and the brim is tucked to within one-half inch of the edge, so that it ripples all around. At the side front the brim becomes narrower and is rolled back so that the forehead shows. A band of grosgrain ribbon circles the shallow fitted crown.

Hot Oil Treatment Is Recommended for the Dry Scalp

by Gabrielle Brandt

It seems to me that I am getting an unusual number of complaints this year about itchy scalp and itchy skin. My private theory is that excessive reducing subscribes to a number of the complaints. Not all, it is true. But it indicates a lack of oil in a scalp and skin. If one eliminates from her diet all fat making properties, one is more than apt to drain the sebaceous glands of the oil needed to keep scalp and skin on other parts of the body greased.

However, some folk suffer the condition without any change in their usual menus. No fat ogre prompts them into starvation diets. Nevertheless, the diet is worth looking into, though reducing may not be being indulged in. Some people have a natural taste for foods that have little fat making property. Butter they don't care much for, or olive oil, or fat meats, and milk to some is anathema.

Nervous conditions will cause the scalp and skin to itch. But nervous conditions, in turn, indicate a run-down system. So treatment had better begin from the inside, no matter what the type of menu followed or symptoms. Exercise, too, to get the blood in better circulation is needed for scalp and skin repair.

Relief from itchy scalp may be had from hot oil treatments. They can be taken frequently. It is well to take them for no other reason than to prevent the dandruff and loss of hair that so often follow appearance of the itching condition. They will relieve the itching and give the hair a softer feeling.

Heat olive oil by immersing the quantity you need to use in a cup that is put to warm in a tin of water. Apply to the scalp as warm as you can stand it and massage the scalp with the finger tips for about five minutes each evening. You can take a coarse towel and rub the scalp and hair with it after the treatment to get rid of superfluous oil. But even if it does look a bit oily for a couple of weeks it is worth while to bear it for the good effect gained.

For the skin on the body the warm olive oil rub will sometimes be effective enough. Or a mixture of twenty-five per cent glycerin in olive oil may be found more effective.
